Trustees oppose ward elections

by KURT BAER

The Arlington Heights Village Board apparently is not prepared to endorse the change to geographic representation advocated by Village Pres. James T. Ryan.

Several board members contacted by the Herald Thursday suggested changes in the present at-large system of electing trustees that would bring the village government closer to district representation.

But none of the six trustees who could be reached for comment said they supported a total change to electing board members from specific geographic wards.

The board soon will meet to discuss Ryan's proposal that a referendum be held on setting up district representation in the village. Ryan said there was a "groundswell" of support for the change, which was a major issue in his successful campaign for election in April.

TWO TRUSTEES, Madeline Schroeder and Frank Palmatier, Thursday said steps could be taken to incorporate some of the advantages of district representation into the existing at-large set up.

Mrs. Schroeder said she advocates electing half of the eight trustees on the village board by district, with the other half continuing to be elected at large.

Palmatier proposed that trustees be assigned informally to various sections of the village but continue to be elected by the community as a whole.

"I do think there is a value in having district representation because people have someone on the board they can feel clos to," Mrs. Schroeder said.

"The problem is that it gives a very parochial viewpoint to the people

Answers easier than questions

Librarian a daily quizmaster

by LINDA PUNCH

Librarian Joy Kennedy vividly remembers her first encounter with a difficult reference question.

"This man came up to me and said he needed to know the relative effectiveness of silicone-based lubrication in a closed-engine system. I'm sitting there saying to myself, 'Please mister, don't do this to me,' " she said.

Mrs. Kennedy has served as a reference librarian at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library for nearly a year. In that time she has answered questions ranging from 'Where is the bathroom?' to 'What is the name of the Slovak-language paper in New York?' "

"Telephone questions are the most difficult. We never know what people are gling to ask," Mrs. Kennedy said.

ONE OF THE MOST puzzling questions came from a secretary who wanted to know, "What is in the deicers used on airplane runways and airplane wings?" she said. After pouring through books on aviation and aeronautics and a fruitless call to the transportation library at Northwestern University, the librarian finally found an answer at the Federal Aviation Administration.

Reference librarians tend to be jigsaw and crossword puzzle addicts, Mrs. Kennedy said.

"You have to interpret the questions the patrons ask. I don't think the people who designed the cataloging system realized that people's needs don't always fit the master plan," she said.

Reference librarians often find themselves in the position of answering legal or medical questions for patrons, a position they avoid.

"We get an awful lot of questions on law and medicine, and people get angry when we won't give them an opinion. We'll show them the books and give them dictionaries but we can't give opinions," she said.

A SUCCESSFUL reference librarian needs good training and a lot of luck, Mrs. Kennedy said. She cites one case in which a woman was trying to track down a series of stories about a balck detective with a name "Something like Napoleon."

"I found the name of a detective named 'Boney' and I thought of Napoleon Bonaparte. It turned out to be the right one," she said.

The Arlington librarians have been successful in answering a wide range of questions, including, "What is Plimpton 223?" "What was Stonewall Jackson's horse's name?" "How do you build a wind tunnel?" "What is the history of the kitchen stove?" and "How often do you feed a grass snake?"

But Mrs. Kennedy notes there is always one question that keeps "nagging at you."

"The one question — and I swear no one's ever found the real answer to this — is 'Why do outhouses have a moon on the door?' " she said.

Indian summer not over yet; may be cooler Sunday

Near record high temperatures continued Thursday with the weather service predicting more of the same today, Saturday and next week.

According to the U.S. Weather Bureau, no temperature records have been set during the recent weather period but the thermometer has registered highs above the seasonal norm of 62.

The high temperatures recently have hovered around the 80-degree mark but the record for a typical October week is near 85. Thursday the high temperature reached 80 degrtes. The record for that date was 85 set in 1963. Last Oct. 23, the high temperature was 66.

There is a strong southwest air flow aloft over the area which is causing the good weather, said James Buchanan, forecaster.

Buchanan said today and Saturday probably will bring partly sunny skies with a chance of showers. Today's high will be around 80, Saturday's around 75.

He said a front will pass through Sunday with temperatures near normal. The normal high is in the upper 50s, and lower 60s range.

A warming trend is expected in the area beginning Monday with temperatures again in the 70s, he said.

Buchanan noted that the 30-day outlook, from mid-October to mid-November will bring near or slightly below normal highs.Normal high is around 49 degrees for that period, he said.

Caroline Kennedy has brush with death in London

LONDON (UPI) — Caroline Kennedy narrowly escaped death or injury Thursday in an explosion of a suspected Irish Republican Army bomb under a a car that was to have taken her to art class in London just minutes later. A passerby was killed and six other persons injured in the blast.

The bomb went off under a Jaguar sedan owned by Miss Kennedy's host, Conservative Member of Parliament Hugh Fraser.

Fraser was about to use the car to drive the 17-year-old daughter of assassinated President John F. Kennedy to her art course at Sotheby Park Bernet, the art auctioneer. A telephone call from anther member of Parliament delayed him.

THE EXPLOSION broke the Jaguar in two, flipped it on its roof and set a blaze still smoldering four hours later.

"Normally I would have been in the car when this happened, but I was on the telephone, said Fraser, his forehead slightly cut by flying glass.

"Caroline is very shaken, but she's all right. She had just finished breakfast and was in her bedroom.

The blast killed Prof. Gordon H. Fairley, a cancer research specialist, as he walked his French Poodle past the sprawling four-story home where Caroline is living while taking a London art course.

None of the injured was seriously hurt.

FRASER, a hard-line IRA opponent, has received many death threats recently, his secretary said.

"There is no doubt it was meant for me. Someone obviously wants to blow me up." Fraser, 57, said the bomb would only harden his determination to crack down on terrorism.

Miss Kennedy and the Frasers left the house shortly after the blast to stay with friends nearby.

Looking pale and distraught, Miss Kennedy stared straight ahead and said nothing as police guided her into a Blue Datsun.

"She is far too shocked to talk," said Lady Maclean, Fraser's sister. "She is too young. Surely you can see that."

A RESIDENT of the house where she was first taken said Caroline telephoned her mother, Jaqueline Kennedy Onassis, with assurances that she was not hurt.

The blast rocked Campden Hill Square, one of London's most fashionable neighborhoods where many government leaders and diplomats live.

Tessia Oandason, a 32-year-old Filipino servant in the Fraser house was hospitalized with shock. The other victims were so slightly hurt they refused medical aid.

Unofficial speculation linked the blast with life sentences given less than 24 hours earlier to three Irishmen and a London girl for planting a pub bomb that killed 12 persons earlier this year.

Override try fails

House school aid vote stalled

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — A final House vote on the restoration of $81 million cut from the state's education budget by Gov. Daniel Walker was postponed Thursday night after falling three votes short of the 89 needed for override of the veto.

The postponement — until at least the first week in November — came despite a rare and dramatic appearance all day by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley in which he urged the money be restored.

The preliminary vote was 86-86. Three House members were absent and the final two did not vote.

TWO OF THE absentees were Chicago Republicans who are expected to vote with Daley in favor of restoration when they return.

Daley, who seldom makes public appearances in the capital, began the day at an override rally at Springfield High School. He said the issue of school funding is not partisan. Asked if Walker is right when he says an override will lead to higher state taxes, Daley said, "Harry Truman used to say some people get so used to telling falsehoods that they can't recognize the truth."

Later, Daley told a joint meeting of the House and Senate that there is room in the state budget for full funding of the state-aid formula without higher taxes. He also said, "If we do need taxes, then we should enact them.

"The trouble with too many people is they don't have the guts to tell the truth," Daley said.

MANY LAWMAKERS who argued for an override of Walker's school aid reduction said it is the only way to prevent local taxes from going up.

"You're going to have either higher local taxes or a cut in services," said Clyde Choate, D-Anna.

The House also postponed action on Walker's cuts in "categorical" grants to local school districts — money earmarked for such specific purposes as bilingual education and pupil transport. That veto was up for consideration when weary members voted suddenly to adjourn until Nov. 3.

State jobless unit to be reorganized

The much criticized Illinois unemployment compensation operations will be split into three regions in the Chicago metropolitan area and persons from private industry hired to administer them, officials said Thursday.

I. Lawrence Richardson, administrator of the Employment Security Bureau, said 65 to 70 per cent of the state's 350,000 unemployed persons are located in northeast Illinois. He said having only one person directing such a big operation "was just an impossible job."

Richardson said he hoped to have three "top managers" from outside government running the new regions by early November. Each region was expected to have eight or nine offices.

Woman files sex-bias complaint

A former Palatine Police Dept. employe has filed a sex-discrimination complaint, alleging she was dismissed last week because she dated a radio operator. Mary Frantz, a 25-year-old, said Police Chief Jerry Bratcher fired her Oct. 13 because she dated the radio operator but the radio operator had not been disciplined. Bratcher has denied comment except to say there is more to the dismissal than the dating incidents.

Dist. 62 offers teachers $100 more

The Des Plaines Dist. 62 Board of Education has increased a teacher pay offer in an effort to avert a teachers' strike next week. The board agreed late Wednesday to increase its offer from $400 to $500, the first new salary proposal presented by the board since spring. The increase would raise the base salary from $9,350 to $9,850. Teachers are demanding a 10 per cent increase in the base, or $10,285. A strike vote calling for a Nov. 3 walkout has been set for Tuesday if no settlement is reached.

2 Schaumburg policemen injured

Two Schaumburg policemen were injured Thursday night when they were struck by a van driven by two men trying to escape investigation for an auto break-in at the Woodfield Shopping Center. Patrolmen Robert Cooksey and Michael Egan were taken to Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, where they were released after treatment. The two fleeing men were arrested later along Roselle Road by Roselle and DuPage County Sheriff's Police after the van went off a roadway and rolled over, police said.

Ford federal spending proposal nixed

Panel votes to continue 1975 tax cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ways and Means Committee voted Thursday to continue 1975 tax cuts at about the same level into 1976 and rejected President Ford's proposal to link a tax cut with a ceiling on federal spending.

If the committee's 21-16 action is approved by Congress, tax withholding rates would remain about the same when a new tax year starts Jan. 1.

But a year-end veto fight with Ford would almost certainly follow, and if no solution is reached before the end of the year, withholding rates would jump up to the same level as before current tax cuts were enacted last spring.

The vote in the committee divided along party and ideological lines, with all Republicans and four Democrats voting against both the Democratic plan and against a move to junk the Ford plan. All 21 aye votes were Democrats.

The $12.7 billion cut, which compares with the current annual tax rate cut of $12 billion, was proposed by committee Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore. It was included in the committee's large tax revision bill which is expected to go to the House floor early next month.

Essentially, the Democratic plan would leave no family paying more or receiving less than about $1 a week in tax withholding. Ford's plan would cut taxes somewhat below 1975's temporary cuts.

Ford's specific proposal — a $395 billion fiscal 1977 spending ceiling coupled with a $28 billion tax cut, about $11 billion more than current cuts — never was specifically debated by the committee.

Instead, Rep. Joe Waggonner, D-La., moved first to approve Ullman's $12.7 billion proposal subject to House budget committee action on an equal spending ceiling. When that was ruled out of order, he moved to delay action on a tax cut until the House Budget Committee agrees on a fiscal 1977 spending ceiling.

Twenty-one Democrats on the tax-writing committee combined to outvote Waggonner, three other Democrats and all 12 Republican members, defeating the Waggonner motion 21-16.

Debate generally broke down along party lines with Waggonner the only Democrat actively pushing a Ford-type combination of tax cuts and spending. The other three Democrats voting with Waggonner were Reps. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., Omar Burleson, D-Tex., and Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind.

In other economic news:

Detroit automakers Thursday reported their best mid-month new car sales performance in 17 months — up 37 per cent from a year ago — but cautiously scheduled new layoffs to avoid bulging inventories of the successful 1976 models.

The 234,670 cars sold in the Oct. 11-20 period was within 2 per cent of the same period two years ago, just before the Arab oil embargo pushed the industry into its deepest and longest sales slump since the Great Depression.

General Motors sales were up 43 per cent; Ford was up 28 per cent; Chrysler said its sales improved 33 per cent, and American Motors reported a 53.5 per cent jump from year-ago levels.

Syrian forces on limited alert in the Golan Heights

by United Press International

Syria has declared a limited army alert on the Golan Heights, possibly to coincide with renewal of the U. N. peacekeeping mandate in the Sinai Desert between Israel and Egypt, an Israeli government official said Thursday.

"A certain degree of alert has been declared in the Syrian forces. We don't know how much," the official told reporters.

The official said he could find nothing "in our own moves that could justify the alert except the replacement of one unit that caused movement." But he speculated the alert was timed to coincide with the renewal of the U.N. peacekeeping mandate in the Sinai.

The mandate, due to have expired Friday, was renewed Thursday by the U.N. Security council in New York. The 15-member council voted 13-0, with China and Iraq abstaining, to extend the mandate of the 3,987-man force until Oct. 24, 1976.

The U. N. peace-keeping mandate permitting 1,250 soldiers to patrol the Golan Heights between Israel and Syria expires Nov. 30.

Both Syria and Israel declared a full alert of their frontline Golan forces last year just before the U. N. mandate on the Heights was renewed for the first time.

In Cairo, meanwhile, diplomatic sources said Thursday Egypt had recalled its ambassador to Syria "for consultations" on the badly strained relations between the two Arab countries.

The ambassador, Hassan Fahmi Abdel-Meguid, arrived in Cairo Wednesday.

Relations between Egypt and Syria, allies in the October, 1973, war against Israel, have worsened steadily since Egypt and Israel signed a second-stage disengagement pact last month. Syria denounced the agreement as a sellout of the Arab cause.

A bomb exploded in a restaurant early Thursday in the Gulf of Aqaba port of Eilat at Israel's southernmost tip. Police said seven patrons were wounded in the blast, but the severity of their injuries was not known.

Police sources said initial indications were that the blast resulted from a feud rather than Arab guerrilla action.

GENERALISSIMO Francisco Franco, right, stands with Prince Juan Carlos in 1971. Franco Thursday suffered a setback, and there are signs another "coronary insufficiency" is on the way. Franco earlier had been reported recovering from Tuesday's severe heart attack.

36-year rule may be near end

Franco's blood flow is faltering

MADRID (UPI) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco, 82, suffered a setback Thursday in his struggle to survive the massive heart attack that felled him two days ago. The cabinet gathered at his El Pardo Palace and there were indications Franco's 36-year rule may be near an end.

A bulletin issued by 11 doctors treating the aged "Caudillo" reported the setback and said "early signs of another coronary insufficiency appeared" — meaning that the blood flow to his heart was faltering and that there were signs of an imminent heart failure.

Sources at the palace said Franco was under sedatives, but not actually dying. But the fact that Franco's ministers had been summoned to the palace, if not to his actual bedside, appeared to indicate a crisis was imminent.

Top Spanish officials met to discuss the possibility Franco would relinquish power permanently to his designated successor, Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, 37, who would become chief of state and Spain's first king in 44 years.

Prime Minister Carlos Arias Navarro, several members of the cabinet and the President of Parliament went to Franco's Pardo Palace late in he evening "to inquire about his health," Spanish news agency reports said.

There were unconfirmed reports that army units were ordered confined to the barracks and provincial authorities advised to be on standby.

Franco suffered a massive heart attack Tuesday but earlier was reported recovering and preparing to attend a cabinet meeting Friday to discuss the threat of war with Morocco over Moroccan plans to invade Spanish Sahara with an unarmed rabble of 350,000 men, women and children.

Thursday night a team of 11 doctors treating Franco said he "suffered a setback" in his recovery from the earlier heart attack and that "early signs of another coronary insufficiency have appeared."

As "El Caudillo (the leader)" struggled against the onset of another possibly fatal attack, the government met in a marathon 10-hour session. It was repeatedly interrupted so Prime Minister Arias could see visitors, and officials said such interruptions were almost unheard of.

One of the visitors was Cristobal Martinez-Bordiu Marquis de Villaverde, Franco's son-in-law and chief medical adviser who has previously acted as a family spokesman. He is a heart specialist and a close friend of Dr. Christiaan Barnard who visited him earlier this week.

Martinez-Bordiu also visited Juan Carlos and Alejandro Rodriguez de Valcarcel who, as President of parliament and the Council of the Realm, is the man constitutionally responsible for putting in motion the wheels for an orderly transfer of power to the prince.

Franco handed over power temporarily to Juan Carlos in July, 1974, when he suffered a near fatal attack of phlebitis, the circulatory problem that has plagued former President Richard M. Nixon. But he returned to power when he recovered.

All indications were that the handover this time — whenever it occurs — will be permanent. In fact, political sources said Juan Carlos himself was unwilling to take over again on a temporary basis.

Efforts mount to delay Sahara march

MARRAKESH, Morocco (UPI) — Morocco's King Hassan II Thursday told Spanish Saharans "we will meet soon," but diplomatic efforts mounted on three fronts to delay the march of 350,000 Moroccan men, women and children into the phosphate-rich colony Morocco claims.

The Moroccan national news agency reported, meanwhile, that a 20,000-strong vanguard of "peace marchers" began pulling in at midday at Tarfaya, 10 miles north of the border with the colony and the final assembly point for next weeks' march.

In New York, the United Nations Security Council unanimously voted Wednesday night to instruct U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim to intervene in the crisis. The council urged "restraint and moderation" on all sides.

In Madrid, the Spanish national news agency CIFRA said a high Moroccan official would arrive there by Friday with full powers to negotiate with the Spanish government.

Spain favors a U.S.-approved plebiscite in the northwest African territory, bordered by Morocco, Algeria, Mauritania and the Atlantitc Ocean.

Spanish emissary Jose Solis Ruiz, who conferred earlier in the week with the Moroccan king at his temporary royal headquarters here, said: "We have opened a door to a settlement. We have about two weeks to reach one. Armed confrontation is neither possible nor convenient."

His words were echoed by Alfred Atherton, U.S. assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern affairs, who also met with Hassan this week.

"It is within the jurisdiction of the United Nations to find an arrangement," Atherton said. "The doors of a diplomatic solution are still open."

Undaunted, however, Hassan Thursday reaffirmed he would personally lead the desert trek of 350,000 of his subjects into the Spanish Sahara. The Moroccan National news agency said the king's sisters, Princess Lalla Aicha and Princess Lalla Fatima, would join Hassan at the head of the marchers.

"We will meet soon," the monarch said in a radio-television speech beamed to the territory's 88,000 phosphate miners and nomadic herdsmen — few of whom own radios or TV sets.

The Moroccan government tobacco monopoly announced it was putting out three new brands of cigarettes in honor of the march: "Our Sahara," "Green March" and "All Faith."

Possible Zenith TV radiation cited

The Food and Drug Administration said Thursday it is investigating a possible radiation problem affecting about 1 million Zenith color television sets in use across the country. A spokesman said the problem appears to be a "marginal one." No exact identification of the sets involved is available, the FDA said, except they were all manufactured between the spring of 1974 and the spring of 1975.

Officials oppose ward elections

elected because they are more concerned about their individual district than the community at large."

STATE STATUTES allow mixed representation of this kind, Mrs. Schroeder said, adding that she is unaware of any community in the state that has adopted it.

"It's a kind of compromise where you get the best of both worlds," she said.

If a referendum on district representation is approved before the next general village election in 1977, the entire village board would have to run for election, she said.

Palmatier said assigning trustees unofficially to particular geographic districts would help trouble-shoot problems and give residents a feeling of identity on the board.

"I appreciate that some citizens feel reluctant to call a trustee," Palmatier said. "But they shouldn't. All our numbers are in the telephone book.

"I HAVE ALWAYS felt, and still feel that the village would be better served by a continuance of trustees elected at large. This way there is a much better cross-section and greater authority vested in each trustee.

"The tendency in a system where trustees are elected by districts is to reduce the importance of the individual trustee and correspondingly increase the importance of the mayor and village administration," he said.

Each trustee now has a "mandate from the entire community," and can support equally the needs of different areas of the village, Palmatier said.

Trustee Richard Durava said he opposed district representation "because, as a citizen, I want to have an equal shot at getting rid of everybody on the village board I don't like, not just the one trustee from my district."

A ward system makes it possible for political organizations to establish enclaves, or "safe seats" on the village board. "If your motive is democracy then give all of the people a chance to get at all of their elected officials," he said.

Richard Durava

Madeline Schroeder

TRUSTEE O. V. ANDERSON said he has changed his thinking on district representation for Arlington Heights.

"Some time ago I tended to think it was a great idea. But now I think it would be playing politics — one side against another. I think it would turn the village board into a political football," Anderson said.

Trustee Robert Miller also opposes geographic representation. "The at-large representation in the village now is more than adequate. I think people are actually better served then with geographic representation."

"If enough of the public is interested, then we should have a referendum. But I'd like somehow to have that (interest) shown to me," Miller said.

Trustee August C. Bettman said he was undecided. "I see some advantages and some disadvantages. But I am not greatly opposed to letting the people decide, it that's what the board wants to do."

The two other trustees on the village board — Alice Harms and David Griffin — could not be reached for comment Thursday. However, Griffin, Ryan's opponent in the last election, opposed a change to district representation.

'The Teahouse of the August Moon' set today

Rolling Meadows High School will continue its theatrical production today and Saturday of "The Teahouse of the August Moon." Performances will be held at the school, 2901 Central Rd., at 8 p.m. each evening.

Ronald Raben is directing the play, assisted by student director Steven Blake. Thomas Schuler is the designer. Seats are $1.75 and $2 reserved, and $1.50 unreserved.

Poet Bill Fritsch learned:

Muse can visit most anywhere

LIFE'S WORLD

In a world of dreams many do live, to escape a life they cannot live;
To live in a dream of great joy
so fair, leaving behind all life's despair.
But they do not know and fail to see, that this world, their world, better can be.

Bill Fritsch

by JOE SWICKARD

The muse can visit in the most unlikely places. The blithe spirit found Bill Fritsch sleeping in a Hersey High School study hall.

"I was sleeping in study hall and I awoke with about five minutes left. I realized that I had to write a reaction to the play 'The Glass Menagerie.' That was the first poem," said Fritsch.

That first effort, "Life's World" led eventually to his first collection of poems, "a growing grass," published this month by Vantage Press.

HIS POEMS AND their publication reflect the low key, yet direct approach, that is Fritsch.

"I had never published before. I had tried a few magazines but my poems were rejected. A friend said I had enough for a collection so I sent them out and I was accepted the first time," he said.

His writing is "not for money or for a profession," he said. Rather, it is "a relief valve. When the stress builds up, the writing helps vent it. It's a relief from the pressure."

The path of a poet is not always easy. It is a personal expression, one that the poet may be reluctant to share with others.

Fritsch's English teacher at Hersey, Lucille Jevitz, was the one who first read his work and encouraged him to continue.

OF HIS POETIC reaction to Tennesse Williams' play, he said, "She liked it and she encouraged me. I felt free to show her what I had done. Miss Jevitz never did anything to cause me to distrust her. Poetry is something you don't show to everyone when you're a junior in high school."

Fritsch continued his poetry while attending Carthage College in Kenosha, Wis. By the time he graduated in 1974 he had compiled what would become his first slim volume of verse.

The poems are in chronological order. The reader may be tempted to seek more in the poems, something Fritsch both encourages and rejects.

He doesn't want to be psychoanalyzed through his works. But he wants the reader to follow the development of differing styles and influences.

SOME OF HIS works are influenced by E. E. Cummings, especially the physical make up and visual impact of the structure.

"They can strike you visually. They don't have to be read aloud. By using the forms you can attain certain levels of understanding," he said.

Fritsch now teaches sixth grade in Waukesha, Wis. He started a literary magazine for the fifth and sixth graders.

"We took the ditto masters and cut them in half so it would have the appearance of a book. There are so many things the kids write. I figure, why write if no one is going to read it? The magazine gives them an audience," he said.

The bearded Fritsch wants to continue teaching and writing, but he plans continued growth. Secondary schools, with more specialized teaching assignments, appeals to him as does a growing interest in photography and other visual arts.

"You are given a certain number of years and you should do as much as you can. Everyone is given certain talents to do as much as possible. You should do it as long as it is healthy . . . There is so much you take in, but you must have output as well," he said.

". . . Time runs out your/eye, flows through/your veins and is/cast out of your Soul," he wrote.

Bill Fritsch wrote at Hersey

Bill Fritsch wrote his first poem, "Life's World," while he was a student at Hersey High School. Encouraged by his teacher, Lucille Jevitz, he has continued writing poetry. "Still" was written in 1973 and appears in his first book, "A Growing Grass."

STILL

But lies leaf — still
At home — earth black
Blade alive — world green
Morning break — heart lies still
Bird awing — free ahigh
Summer's burn — haze afire
Awaken souls — forest still
Red rich earth — black, still,

Defense attorney charges:

'Fulle refused Origer land deal'

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Builder Thomas Origer offered County Comr. Floyd Fulle partnership in a land trust to obtain zoning assistance, a defense attorney charged during the Fulle extortion trial Thursday.

"You've got the document there, but I don't recall it," Origer said during cross-examination by attorney Arthur Zimmerman.

Origer, who testified Wednesday that he paid Fulle about $39,000 to obtain county zoning in the Northwest suburbs between 1966 and 1970, identified his signature on the document.

Zimmerman produced a copy of a three-line "limited partnership agreement" to show that Fulle refused the land offer.

FULLE, 666 Laurel, Des Plaines, was indicted Feb. 13 on federal extortion, perjury and tax fraud charges.

"You don't recall the date at which time you left this document and requested he (Fulle) become your partner and assist you in zoning matters?" Zimmerman asked.

"He threw you out of the office," Zimmerman said.

The alleged "agreement" included a handwritten March 25, 1967 date, about a year after Fulle allegedly accepted $2,500 in cash from Origer to push county zoning of 7.5 acres in unincorporated Maine Township.

Fulle's name is not included in the agreement. Two spaces provided for the name of a 50 per cent partner with Origer in Citizens Bank and Trust Co. trust 938 are blank.

Zimmerman did not identify the location of the bank trust property.

"I don't recall any conversation regarding that document," Origer said.

ORIGER, 274 Dover Circle, Palatine, identified a county official who accepted a $2,500 zoning payoff about three years ago and two suburban mayors who benefited from Origer's building projects.

County official and former zoning administrator Bernard J. O'Brien, Oak Park, was indicted Feb. 13 on federal tax fraud charges, pleaded guilty and was sentenced June 25 to six months in prison. Federal officials did not identify O'Brien's unreported income during the sentencing hearing.

Zimmerman alleged that the $2,500 was in "marked" bills. "Did you ever try to give Mr. Fulle marked money?" he asked. "No," Origer answered.

Origer, who testified for 3½ hours Thursday, said he paid the $2,500 to O'Brien. Origer insisted that Fulle was the only Republican board member to receive zoning payoffs. Although O'Brien received the $2,500 from Origer, payoffs of more than $65,000 were funneled to board Democrats by zoning attorney Robert Haskins, Origer said.

THE TWO SUBURBAN officials identified by Origer, are Joseph Zizzo, former village president of Harwood Heights, and Donald Stephens, mayor of Rosemont. Zizzo, who is expected to testify against Fulle, purchased an apartment building from Origer in 1964 or 1965.

"That was a legitimate price," Zimmerman asked. "It was a discounted price," Origer answered. Zizzo also benefited as the agent in a $1.2 million Origer land exchange, Origer said.

Zizzo will testify about the purchase of a Florida vacation home by Fulle. Fulle told a federal grand jury last year that the purchase price was $35,000, but Zizzo has said the price was $45,000, including a $20,000 cash down payment.

The trial will continue in Federal Court today at 9:30 a.m.

Stocks in rally; Dow up 5.59

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices rallied in moderate trading Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which gained 2.75 Wednesday after a seesaw session, climbed 5.59 to 855.16. The blue chip indicator moved ahead in the afternoon following an uncertain opening. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 0.53 to 91.24. The price of an average NYSE common share added 17 cents.

Advances outdistanced declines, 911 to 480, among the 1,823 issues crossing the ticker. Sales totaled 17,900,000 shares, compared with 16,060,000 shares turned over Wednesday.

Trans World Airlines was the most active Big Board issue, up ¼ to 6¾ on 210,100 shares, including two blocks of 100,000 shares at 6½. Tenneco warrants "A" followed, off 7-64 to 9-64 on 189,200 traded. Howard Johnson was third active, up ½ to 15¼ on 180,600 shares.

The motors and chemicals paced the rally, while the glamors recorded some point-size gains.

The nation's automakers reported higher mid-October sales with General Motors adding 1 to 56¼, Ford 5/8 to 41½, and Chrysler 5/8 to 10¾.

Prices closed slightly higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The price of an average share picked up a penny. Volume totaled 1,576,000 shares, against 1,431,000 shares traded Wednesday.

Chalk whitens Dover's cliffs

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Hilary Kuzuw, 11, of Sommerset, N.J., for his question:
WHAT CAUSED THE WHITE CLIFFS OF DOVER?

On clar days the French people of Calais can look across the English Channel and see the famous White Cliffs of Dover, glistening in the sunshine. There are other white chalk cliffs along the French and English shores on opposite sides of the narrow channel. They have stodd there since the Ice Age, but their story began millions of years ago — under the sea.

The geography of the earth is constantly changing, inch by patient inch. The shores of the great oceans are spreading, causing the continents to drift like lazy rafts around the globe. Mountains rise and decline, new layers are added to the earth's crust, often with the help of living creatures.

For example, the chalky White Cliffs of Dover were built by foraminifera, tiny sea creatures that deposited layers of their discarded shells on the ocean floor.

Their mini shells were made of chalky calcium carbonate, extracted from salty sea water. This was during the Cretaceous Period of geological history, which began about 130 million years ago and lasted for roughy 70 million years.

During this patient chalk-building period the world's climate was mild and the global ocean was brimful of water. Shallow seas slopped over on much of the land. They covered southern England and parts of northern Europe. These warm, shallow waters suited the teeming foraminifera just fine. They thrived and multiplied. Through the ages, thick beds of chalk were deposited all the way from Scandinavia to southern Russia.

The Cretaceous Period was followed by climate changes, and new mountains began to arise. The mighty dinosaurs departed, and the age of the mammals arrived. In Europe and Asia, the land was lifted by the growing Alps and Himalayas. This changed the shorelines, and some of the great chalk deposits rose above the water.

Then came the Ice Age, when much of the world's water was frozen and trapped in enormous glaciers. There was less water in the ocean, and the sea level sank. More of the old chalk beds became dry land. In one region the rising Alps and the declining sea level hoisted aloft the white cliffs along the shores of the English Channel.

The chalky material in these snowy white cliffs is very clean, embedded with hard gobs of flint. This suggests that the Cretaceous seas were surrounded by dry, sandy deserts. For little or no muddy clay was mixed with the chalky shells. The flint nodules could have been formed from sand, blown in from the arid deserts.

Andy sends a seven volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Timothy Skorski, 7, of West Warwick, R. I., for his question:
HOW DO HURRICANES GET STARTED:

Hurricanes are made in the weathery sky when things up there are just right to get them started. The right place is high over a warm, sunny sea. The sun beats down for days on the shining waves. The air above gets warm and steamy. This huge mass of uncomfortable air begins to rise. Then from far and wide, cooler air begins to huff and puff and blow into the middle of the baby hurricane.

This causes a weathery tangle. Clouds begin to form, and the sky grows stormy. The windy air blows into the middle, and there it rises up to the sky above. As the huge storm grows stronger, the spinning earth twists its winds around. They swirl around in a great spiral, trailing their stormy clouds. Now the huge hurricane is ready to leave home — and weathermen fly above to track its path. If it seems headed for the shore, the people are warned. If it stays out to sea, it soon wears itself out and dies down.

East's spade discards baffle South

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Anyone can look at the hands and see that in spite of the bad diamond break and the loss of the spade finesse, South can take a club finesse and make his slam. Then how did expert South wind up in the soup?

It was because an even better player sat East. East won the first spade and led the suit back. South started after diamonds and East had to make three discards. The average good player would chuck one club right away; not our great expert. His first two discards were spades and then and only then did he jettison a club.

South cashed dummy's last spade and East let another club go. The ace-king and queen of hearts and ace of clubs were cashed leaving West with the jack of hearts and 10 of diamonds while East was holding on to the queen and 10 of clubs.

South knew where the high diamond was. He didn't know who had the jack of hearts and who had the queen of clubs. He led a second club from dummy. East played the 10 and South decided that East had started with four clubs to the 10. He rose with the king and another slam had bit the dust.

25 years of Bob Hope tonight

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC led the Nielsen ratings last week, with a superstar assist from televising the World Series, and now it hopes to score big with another tried and true winner — Bob Hope and his team of all-stars.

The title of the show is "Texaco Presents a Quarter Century of Bob Hope on Television," to be aired today from 7 to 9 p.m.

The program is a melange of spots in color and black-and-white, cut from Hope television shows over the years, with guests ranging from Ingrid Bergman to Flip Wilson, appearing in no particular order.

THE RESULT IS an odd mixture — the show opens with a Hope monologue taped at the last minute so the jokes could be as fresh as this week's headlines.

From there on its best moments are nostalgic as almost 100 guests appear, from then Gov. Nelson Rockefeller introducing Hope at a banquet to Jimmy Durante singing "September Song."

The humor is uneven and almost invariably broad instead of sharp, since Hope's monologues always have been topical and therefore not included here, except for a segment jibing at incumbent presidents.

For some, watching Hope and Jackie Gleason dressed up in women's clothes, with grapefruits where their decolletage ought to be, just isn't funny.

But to be reminded in black-and-white what a funny man Jerry Colonna was makes it all worth while, and many of the song-and-dance numbers are fun to watch again.

Here's a show with something of great appeal for everyone, and no performer except Hope is on long enough to provide a sitting target. And Hope can take care of himself.

The almanac

(by United Press International)

Today is Friday, Oct. 24, the 297th day of 1975 with 68 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Mercury, Mars and Saturn.

The evening star is Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Scorpio.

American playwright Moss Hart was born Oct. 24, 1904.

On this day in history:

• In 1861, the first telegram was transmitted across the United States from California Chief Justice Stephen Field to President Abraham Lincoln in Washington.

• In 1939, women's hosiery made of nylon went on sale for the first time.

• In 1945, U.S. Secretary of State James Byrnes announced the United Nations' charter had gone into effect following Soviet ratification.

• In 1973, President Nixon put U.S. armed forces on a worldwide alert, but the Mideast crisis eased as U.N. observers started patrolling the Suez front under a second cease-fire agreement.

A thought for the day: American novelist William Faulkner said, "I believe that man will not merely endure, he will prevail."

The way we see it

Stubbornness had key role

During the course of the Dist. 54 negotiations and strike, we have muted our comment on the conduct of the two sides because we felt it more important to urge an early settlement than to assess blame for the deteriorating situation.

While neither side, obviously, is blameless, it became particularly evident during the past week that this unnecessary strike resulted primarily from the school board's stubbornness.

The three-day strike ended Wednesday morning after teachers voted 4 to 1 to accept a 10 per cent salary increase.

Although money was the only item up for negotiation in the district this year, it became clear very quickly that the board was more concerned about its own prestige than parting with taxpayers' dollars.

What has gone on is a monument to obstinancy on the part of the board.

In early October the board flatly refused mediation after the teachers asked that a neutral third party enter the talks. The board's response, that it was solely their duty to set salaries in the district, did not show common sense.

When teachers voted to strike and went into 11th hour negotiations to reach a settlement, the board reacted by passing a resolution stating striking teachers would be fired and the board would not continue negotiating if a walkout were staged.

When the strike began Friday, the board sanctimoniously stuck by their guns in following the resolution to the letter.

Informal negotiations among attorneys took place during the weekend and a settlement was reached that appeared mutually agreeable. Instead of jumping on the chance to have school in session Monday, the board refused to initial the agreement until teachers were back at work.

The board declined an offer by the county superintendent of schools and the Illinois Office of Education to help mediate the dispute. The district returned to the bargaining table only when strongly urged to do so by a Circuit Court judge.

The strike has had a destructive impact on the Dist. 54 community, as we feared it would. People have taken sides, and neighbor has turned against neighbor as a result.

The teachers are not blameless, for it is they who called the strike and participated in it. But if the teachers were legally wrong the board was most certainly wrong in not taking sensible action to avert and cut short the walkout.

Official's proper role

Dr. Edgar Feldman has a lot to learn about what it means to be an elected public official.

Although Feldman has served on the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 board for a year and has been board president since September, he showed during the just-concluded teachers' strike that he doesn't understand his job.

Late last week, Dr. Feldman complained that he was receiving phone calls at home and at work from the general public:

"They (the union) are trying to disrupt my medical practice. My phone number as president of the school board is the number of the Dist. 54 office."

Elected officials are supposed to be lightning rods for public opinion. Within reasonable limits they should be accessible by phone at either home or at work. The best officials encourage such accessibility, for they need to know what the people are saying.

Parks vote endorsed

The Herald endorses Saturday's River Trails Park District referendum to annex a section of apartments and condominium apartments southwest of Palatine and Wolf roads in Prospect Heights.

The park district is small but provides a wide range of programs to young and old and recently completed additions to its recreation center in Mount Prospect to serve more residents. Six neighborhood parks are available with tennis courts, playground equipment and swimming pools.

It will cost the new residents 39 cents per $100 assessed valuation if the annexation is approved. Park officials plan to purchase a new park site in the area to be annexed and set up programs at Stevenson School and Robert Frost School to specifically serve the new residents.

The River Trails District wants to provide recreational facilities for the estimated 3,500 residents now served by no park district. The referendum deserves a positive vote by voters of that area.

A toot for U of I Band

I enjoyed reading Mike Klein's article on "Dear ol' Dad at U. of I." in the Oct. 18 Herald. Our oldest son is a freshman student in the School of Music at U. of I. This was a big first for my husband, going to U. of I. Our son auditioned for the "Marching Illini" in August and is playing trumpet in the band. A big first for band parents. Somehow you missed in your article any recognition of the "Marching Illini."

It took 12 years of continuous practice and study in rhythm theory, harmony, etc., to be able to play well enough to be accepted into this university's band. Many writers and reporters think in terms of football, beers and cheers only. What would that stadium be like without a great marching band playing? Can you imagine playing football (or any other sport) and no "music"? Newspapers (all) dedicate one whole sestion, daily, to sports and never give credit to an art that is an international language.

IN NO WAY CAN a sports persons play actively, long. It's only for a short time in life. Music is studied 12 months a year, not just for a season. Music has no short-lived varsity team. They have a long lived camaraderie. Don't forget, too, "keep music alive" next time you write homecoming, football, queens, cheerleaders, pom pons, etc. Be mindful of the marching band members who take hours of practice in drill, maneuvers plus playing. These people are a tremendous show too.

'Born Innocent' film airing on TV protested

We object to the showing of "Born Innocent" this Saturday, Oct. 25 at 8 p.m. on NBC-TV. It is an unintelligent, worthless, vulgar movie with no moral in it, showing graphic scenes inside a girls' detention home. One girl was stripped and raped with a broom handle. Last year after this show was aired, two young girls in San Francisco were assaulted in the same way by some children who had seen the movie, resulting in an $11 million suit against the local station and NBC-TV.

We feel this movie should not be shown, and we are doing our utmost by calling NBC-TV. We are hoping through this letter that more people will become concerned and voice their objections to NBC-TV by also calling. If the public needs to be educated to this type of violence we feel it would be better presented in a documentary form with less sensationalism.

It's time we quit letting the producers decide what is a profit-making for them instead of what is good for our society.

Who'll use empty schools?

Without very much publicity the residents of the Harper College district passed a bond issue to include a second campus. The $2.1 million for the second campus is just the beginning. To follow is the development cost, new buildings, increased staff, pensions, etc.

Within a few days, the people of the district are informed of a projected decrease in enrollment of 22 per cent in eight Dist. 214 high schools.

It is quite possible that two of the Dist. 214 high schools will be closed.

Who will use these closed h igh schools?

School strike upsetting

I don't really believe that the teachers took any great pride in going on strike. It appears as if that was the only resource remaining.

I did find the situation somewhat confusing Friday, because I was under the impression that if an ongoing educational program was not in progress, schools would be closed. Not so. I made an appearance at junior high (which my son attends) seeking answers to some questions I had. Some of my questions were answered, some unanswered, and from what I viewed it appeared to me that an educational program was not in session and the intent was to keep the school open. I accepted the possibility that there were two trains of thought as to what a n ongoing educational program should be. Off to the elementary school (which my son attends). There, my questions were honestly answered by the principal, and lo and behold, my faith restored when a teacher was kind enough to express her definition as to what an educational program should be. We were on the same wavelength.

It was evident that an educational program was not in effect, but these two schools remained opened — junior high til 2 p.m., elementary til 3 p.m.

By 10:15 a.m., Friday, I believed I had the information I needed and my sons remained at home.

I think I'm going to have to admit, to the fact, that I woke up this morning feeling somewhat critical, because I would also like to comment on the leadership of the negotiating parties. At times, I did detect the elements of games adults play. This should be a no - no.

Would also like to comment on remarks appearing in Saturday's Herald:

Students are being cheated of an education — I don't think so. Many times, without hesitation, students are removed from school for vacations, appointments, etc.

Students are being taught it's permissible to break the law. Are any of us truly innocent in this area? While driving, if we ever made a U-turn, parked in a no-parking area, exceeded the speed limit, we, too, are guilty of breaking the law.

Making radicals of students, viewing and questioning a strike in progress, should hold no damaging influences.

Band members deserve courtesy

I am a member of the Rolling Meadows High School Band, and feel that not enough credit is given to the band. Every week many people show up at the football games and those who are courteous enough to stay and watch the half-time performance only watch for mistakes; they comment only on the missed notes and on the kids who are out of step. Not much is ever said about the well-planned shows, the good sound of the band or the neat uniforms the band wears.

The Mustang Music Boosters put in a lot of their time, effort and even money to help support the band and make each show a success. The band director, Mr. Len King, and his associate, Mr. Richard Kennel, are also to be congratulated for all they do for each show. Without them, there probably wouldn't be a show. So much goes into making one 10-minute half-time show.

I just wish the next time people watch a half-time show, they do it for entertainment and enjoyment, not to pick out mistakes. After all, that is the sole purpose of the Rolling Meadows band.

MICHAEL KLEIN

Klein given Herald Award of Excellence

The Paddock Publications award of excellence for September goes to Herald sports columnist Michael Klein for his aggressiveness and determination in developing an exclusive Herald sports story.

Klein scooped all Chicago newspapers when he broke the story of a top high school gymnast, Bart Conner of Maine West High School, who lost his eligibility because he is representing the United States in the Pan Am games.

The monthly award of excellence was presented to Klein by Herald Vice President and Editor Daniel E. Baumann.

OTHER HERALD staff members cited by Baumann at the monthly award ceremony were:

—Medley Editor Genie Campbell for overall editing and planning of the Friday Herald Medley section.

—Sports Editor Bob Frisk, Associate Sports Editor Paul Logan and their staff for developing and implementing a broad new approach toward Herald sports coverage.

— Photographer Dave Tonge for his dramatic photos of a railroad hobo.

—Assignment Editor Gerry Kern for his follow-up and writing about a Mount Prospect girl reunited with her natural mother.

— Staff Writer Jill Bettner for her coverage of the city manager controversy in Rolling Meadows.

— Staff Writer Joe Franz for turning a routine story of a railway accident into a human account of a near tragedy of a woman who escaped from her camper truck before it was crushed by a North Western train.

Pesticide, fish rights bills OKd

From Roll Call Report

U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and U. S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th, were on opposite sides on votes on pesticide regulation and fishing rights taken by the U. S. House just before Congress' Columbus Day recess.

On the Senate side, U. S. Sen. Charles Percy voted with the majority in tabling two amendments to the Joint Resolution approving the Arab-Israeli Sinai accord. U. S. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III voted against tabling one amendment which would have declassified a State Dept. memo on the accord.

House

PESTICIDES. Amendment to give the Environmental Protection Agency the power to require states to have a certification program for private users of pesticides, adopted 250 to 155.

A certification program would require all individuals buying certain dangerous pesticides to be certified by the state and instructed in the use of the poisons. Opponents of the amendment said it would unnecessarily increase federal regulation of agriculture, since those affected would be mainly farmers.

YES: Mikva, Metcalfe, Murphy, Russo, Collins, Rostenkowski, Yates, Annunzio, Hall, Anderson, Price and Simon.

NO: Crane, Derwinski, Hyde, McClory, Erlenborn, O'Brien, Michel, Findley, Madigan and Shipley.

NOT VOTING: Fary and Railsback.

FISHING. A bill extending U. S ocean fishing jurisdiction from 12 to 200 miles beyond the U. S. coastline, adopted 208 to 101.

The bill was designed to protect domestic fishermen from foreign fishing fleets. It would take effect July 1, 1976, and terminate when an international agreement on fishing rights is established under the United Nations. It was sent to the Senate for action.

YES.: Crane, Russo, Hyde, Collins and Michel.

NO: Mikva, Murphy, Rostenkowski, Yates, Annunzio, McClory, Erlenborn, Hall, Anderson, O'Brien, Railsback and Simon.

NOT VOTING: Metcalfe, Derwinski, Fary, Findley, Madigan, Shipley and Price.

Senate

SINAI. An amendment to declassify a State Dept. memorandum detailing all secret U. S. commitments underlying the Sinai agreement, tabled 59 to 32. Much of the memo was leaked previously to the press.

YES: Percy.

NO: Stevenson.

SINAI. An amendment to prohibit U. S. troops from entering the Sinai to rescue 200 American technicians if fighting erupts, tabled, 68 to 25. The technicians will be stationed in the Sinai as part of the Arab-Israeli agreement.

YES: Percy and Stevenson.

Local woman candidate for national NOW office

Sherry Reynolds

The National Organization for Women will tackle the question of whether to endorse political candidates and will elect new officers this weekend at the organization's eighth annual convention in Philadelphia.

One of the candidates for the organization's national board will be Sherry Reynolds, 282 Ida Rd., Hoffman Estates, a member of Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 and a five-year member of NOW.

Reynolds said Thursday she is the only member of the Northwest suburban chapter of NOW planning to attend the convention. She said her own plans are in some doubt because of scheduling problems created for her by the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 teachers' strike earlier in the week.

"The strike has put my time schedule off," she said. "I really hope I'll be able to get there, but as of now I'm not sure."

REYNOLDS SAID the organization is expected to go through some internal fights during the convention where seven candidates are running for president and many other candidates will be vying for other offices.

"In any organization people have different ideas of how to achieve the same ends," she said. "The women's movement is maturing and dissent is something every movement goes through."

Other issues facing the organization, which has 70,000 members nationally, will be whether to begin endorsing political candidates or to leave such activity to the National Women's Political Caucus, a group which was an outgrowth of NOW several years ago.

In addition, workshops will focus on issues of women's history, education, women and religion and other aspects of the women's movement.

THE CONVENTION IS taking place in Philadelphia during the Bicentennial year, Reynolds said, because suffragette Susan B. Anthony celebrated the nation's centennial by reading the Declaration of Women's Rights at Independence Hall.

Campaigns for leadership positions in the organization are expected to be particularly heated at the convention because of new rules which allow unlimited campaigning by candidates. In addition to the seven candidates for president, there are three women running to head the national board, two for legislative vice president, four for legal vice president and four for finance vice president.

Betty Friedan, "mother" of the women's movement because of her book "The Feminine Mystique" and a NOW founder, and U. S. Rep. Bella Abzug, D-New York, will be among the convention speakers.

Girls state tennis tourney opens today

Arlington High to host final matches Saturday

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Tennis Editor

Oak Park-River Forest will try to turn the clock back 12 hours before the rest of the nation this weekend, specifically to that hour last year when Joyce Carlson's Huskies won their third straight Illinois High School Athletic Association girls state tennis championship.

And while Carlson may get an extra hour of sleep on Saturday night she may lose much more than that Friday night because her team, although rated as favorites to continue a streak that has lasted as long as the tournament has been held, is far from a shoo-in.

"The girls have been feeling the pressure," Carlson admitted, "and although most of it is pressure they feel from within they know there are going to be some excellent teams playing this weekend."

Oak Park, champions of their own district last weekend, will gather with 29 other district winners plus assorted individuals on the courts of Arlington, Hersey, Forest View, Prospect and Rolling Meadows high schools beginning at 9 a.m. today to settle the issue.

On Saturday the quarterfinals will begin at Arlington at 9 a.m. with the semifinals to be played at 11 a.m. and the finals to be played at center court one hour after the completion of the semifinal round.

The showcase of the tournament will be Oak Park senior singles player Sue Replogle, who has won two state titles in the last three years.

"Sue is coming to the state tournament in good shape," Carlson said. "She has certain goals which she wants to attain and she's reaching the top level at just the right time."

Carlson is an avid supporter of her top player, praising her temperament and maturity.

"I've been extremely pleased with the improvement she has made in the four years she has been here," Carlson said. "There's nothing she wouldn't do to become a better tennis player."

At just 5-3, Replogle relies on placement and finesse to smother her opponents and Carlson is aware of her limitations as a player.

"Her height is her biggest drawback," Carlson said, "but she makes good use of what she has. If she was taller she'd have more power and le-

St. Viator vs. St. Francis for spot in playoffs

by MIKE KLEIN

Their names are Lou Citro and John Gillen. In your program, they are Nos. 14 and 32 respectively. When this old football season was young and new heroes were yet to be unveiled, Citro had a position that he wasn't playing. Gillen didn't even have a position.

Together, they watched.

Those days are no more. The two young men covet integral roles in St. Viator football, although each has come to that status by a different route.

Citro will spend much of this afternoon and early evening in silent contemplation. The same is true of Gillen.

And then together, alongside so many equally determined teammates, Citro and Gillen shall march onfield to answer a great challenge, the most important football game of their brief careers.

With Citro quarterbacking his second starting assignment, and bull-like Gillen running the ball in his fifth, St. Viator will attempt tonight to run St. Francis de Sales out the Elk Grove stadium gates, back onto the expressway and due southeast into Chicago from whence the Pioneers will come.

This one should make a good rooster fight or greyhound racing with live bunnies look pale in comparison. All the intense action begins at eight o'clock.

It will be the 15th round between these perrenial East Suburban Catholic football giants. DeSales, which has won the past three meetings by a combined 23-15 score, going into overtime once, joins the Chicago Catholic League next year.

Tonight's match between two angry football teams includes the honor of an ESCC championship and accompanying berth in IHSA Class 5A playoffs.

The loser departs Elk Grove with nothing. Whoever comes to defeat cannot possibly qualify for an IHSA playoff series at-large berth.

Teams with less than .800 winning percentages are not eligible for at-large berths. St. Viator already has two losses and deSales one, a 36-6 clubbing inflicted by Arlington.

The Pioneers defend a 5-0 ESCC mark and 6-1 total record. St. Viator's 5-2 season includes a conference loss to Marist and non-league defeat t Hersey.

DeSales has won five straight and last week crushed Notre Dame, 28-8, despite 13 penalties which left coach John Cappello feeling sick in his stomach.

"Our defense can be sporadic," said Cappello even though de Sales has crushed opponents by a combined 149-66. "We can play well, but we give up too much on penalties. If we don't stop that, it's Viator's ballgame."

The Pioneers haven't allowed more than one touchdown per week during their winning streak. There are no shutouts in that stretch, but Racine (Wis.) settled for one field goal.

Viator's patchwork offense has been good enough to thrust aside Notre Dame, Holy Cross, Carmel and St. Patrick. In truth, they've won with defense.

But it's no coincidence that 6-foot-2, 190-pound Gillen joined the offense before Viator beat Notre Dame. That wasn't much for the junior fullback, nine rushes for 18 yards.

But Gillen has been spectacular ever since, gaining 341 yards in three games and averaging 4.2 yards per carry. He came over from Viator's linebacking corps and has given the Lions something they lacked . . . ball control potential.

Viator head coach Lyne was committed to finding someplace for Gillen. But Citro apparently was destined to watch Jim Thompson quarterback the Lions all season.

Then Thompson got hurt, tearing knee ligaments two weekends ago during a 41-19 win over Carmel. Citro finished that game and worked all of Viator's 7-0 win at St. Patrick.

Now he enters a pressure game. "Last week, I was not too confident," Citro admitted. "I had never faced a first string defense." Lyne helped Citro by calling just one pass which fell incomplete. Gillen ran well, 108 yards.

"I've got a great offensive line in front of me, the best Viator's ever had," Citro said of guards Rich Somers and Dave Michuda plus tackles George Catalano and Dan Skarzynski and center Mark LaMantia.

"They do a lot for you. They're smart and the pick up stunts."

Lyne has promised Viator's most liberal offense to date. To heck with caution. "We're gonna do everything," said Lyne who has a 35-9 record at Viator.

"We're hungry and we want it. We don't feel any pressure. It's our last chance," said Lyne. "I don't know what's going to happen, but I know this, we're going at them."

Citro will throw. He's confident of a good passing game. "I've got good receivers. They've got good hands and the line gives me lots of time," he said.

The young man is very enthused

WWMM-FM will cover the football action tonight at Elk Grove High School between St. Viator and St. Francis deSales.

Bob Houghton of WM radio and Bob Frisk of the Herald will be at the microphones for the crucial East Suburban Catholic battle between the Lions and Pioneers.

Air time is 8 p.m. at 92.7 on the FM dial although the varsity kickoff always is dictated by the length of the preliminary game.

The winner of tonight's game qualifies for the East Suburban Catholic berth in the Illinois state high school tournament.

Golf title contender puts Bork back in spotlight

Bob Frisk
Sports Editor

He is a product of the 1950s, that simple decade when hip was hep, good was boss and everything nice was copacetic.

Chicks in high school were gals with names like Peggy Sue and Barbara Ann, and squares were guys who parted their hair and wore pants with belts in the back.

The coolest cats of all strummed guitars, but the sports hero was still a big man on campus with his crewcut and letter sweater.

There were plenty of problems in the world, but those high schoolers in the 1950s didn't seem to care. The big worries were about cars, records, who broke up with whom, and, believe it or not, the weekend game. Ah, those were the days.

George Bork is a product of those times, an amiable, if quiet, young man in his playing days at Arlington High School, an extraordinary athlete with blond, crew-cut hair, a narrow face with a bony nose.

Bork now is cast in a different high school role, a coaching role, and this could be his biggest sports weekend since the time he was throwing footballs with the quick, wrist-snapping motion of a man firing darts.

Bork coaches the powerful Prospect High School golf team, and the Knights rank as one of the favorites in the state finals that will unfold today and tomorrow in Champaign.

"We've definitely got a chance," says Bork, "although Rockford Guilford has to be the favorite. They won it last year but now with Barrington and Hallberg (Bronco ace Gary) out, that seems to open up all sorts of possibilities. I know we're going down there in the right frame of mind.

"We're a closer-knit group than others I've had because we are smaller in number with only eight boys. I can give them a little more individual attention. This is just a super bunch of kids to work with. They've made my job so enjoyable."

If Prospect could shoot its way to a state championship, a dazzling new chapter would be added to the George Bork story, a story of excellence on the playing field and now excellence in the coaching ranks.

Goerge Paul Bork was Mr. Everything in high school, certainly one of the most gifted athletes I've ever watched in 30 years of following area sports.

He was a spectacular quarterback in football with the softest, most accurate passes you'd ever want to see. Quick pump and let it fly, short or long.

He was a high-scoring guard in basketball with a picture jump shot that belonged in the instructional guides. So effortless. So very accurate. Stop, jump, flick of the wrist ... two points.

He was a versatile regular in baseball, stepping in wherever needed with solid contributions. Nothing fancy, no .400 average, just steady play.

The headlines continued in football and basketball at Northern Illinois University, and he was the most celebrated small-college grid star in the nation. Yes, the nation. He passed opponents dizzy. He was featured in Sports Illustrated magazine. He threw for seven touchdowns in one game — and completed 37 passes in another.

Northern coach Howard Fletcher realized he had something very special when Bork came to college, and he provided the Huskies with an offense to take advantage of the passing.

Fletcher went to the shotgun with the ends split wide and the two halfbacks and fullback arrayed close behind the line of scrimmage. Bork was as isolated as a tree on the bare prairie, stationed eight to 10 yards back of the center.

He usually had five receivers breaking downfield, which put a great deal of pressure on the five blocking linemen, but part of Bork's success stemmed from this quintet's mobile effectiveness.

While searching downfield for his receivers, Bork was able to sidestep the tacklers. He would backpedal swiftly, move up into a protective pocket or scamper frantically from one side of the field to the other. He called the plays, but he was instructed never to run the ball himself.

Bork was so special at Northern that one cold, bright Saturday afternoon in DeKalb the band spelled out B-O-R-K at halftime and played "You Gotta Be a Football Hero." Yes, he was a bona fide hero, the kind you read about in books, Frank Merriwell and all that. The story was a smash best-seller for years.

Suddenly, the headlines stopped. The story stopped selling. Bork was passed over completely in the professional draft. "Too small" was the rap on this 6-foot-1, 170-pounder despite glowing pre-draft praise by pro scouts. Was he strong enough? Could he take a beating and still bounce back?

The Oakland Raiders (among others) contacted him after the draft and offered a contract, but George turned them down with the feeling, "Since you didn't draft me, I'm not anxious to play for you."

Bork did play professionally four years in Canada and two with the Chicago Owls of the Continental Professional Football League, a team that preceded our beloved Chicago Fire and Winds as bombs.

The Owls folded owing Bork a $2,500 paycheck and as he recalled later, "I got the hint to hang up the ol' football shoes right then and there."

Bork first tried golf as a high school student in the 1950s, but he "became a fanatic" while living in Canada, working his game to the scratch level and eventually returning home as the head coach at Prospect.

"It was a rough decision when golf was switched to a fall sport," Bork remembers. "It was a question of becoming head golf coach or staying as an assistant in football. I still miss being associated with football because it was a big part of my life, but I've never regretted the choice. Coaching golf here has been very rewarding."

And it could become even more rewarding for Bork this weekend.

The big prize — a state title — that eluded him in his high school days may be the end result of 36 demanding holes over the University of Illinois Savoy course. Prospect has a chance, a good chance.

There were many exciting chapters in the story of George Bork, the athlete.

A fascinating new chapter may unfold this weekend in the story of George Bork, the coach.

It just might be best-seller time again after all these years.

Those were the days...

NBA says 'No' to wishful ABA

National Basketball Association Commissioner Larry O'Brien announced Thursday that on advice of counsel he is rejecting "for the time being" the applications of all nine American Basketball Association teams for admission to the NBA..

The New York Nets and Denver Nuggets applied for admission to the NBA last month and on Monday of this week the remaining seven teams sent identical telegrams to the NBA also requesting applications for admission.

O'Brien said at the time he would have no comment until he sought the advice of NBA lawyers.

"As a result of the ongoing lawsuit originally instituted by the Players Association against the NBA and ABA," O'Brien said Thursday, "he NBA and the ABA are both presently subject to an injunction prohibiting the merger."

Because of that injunction, O'Brien said the NBA would suspend all action on the Nets' and Nuggets' applications, plus the seven others, until the ABA first obtains court approval permitting their consideration.

American Basketball Association President John Y. Brown, whose league won 31 and lost 17 in pre-season games with the NBA, said any merger would be done "for the sake of the sport" rather than for mere financial salvation.

What's up for WFL players?

Uncertainty over the future of ex-World Football League players continued Thursday, but the NFL Players Association made its stand known by demanding that teams increase their roster sizes so fewer players will lose their jobs to WFL refugees.

In a telegram to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle and Sargent Karch, executive director of the owners' council, NFLPA Executive Director Ed Garvey urged an immediate meeting to solve the problem of absorbing former WFL players into the NFL.

On other fronts, Miami Dolphins' owner Joe Robbie waited for word from NFL officials before attempting to reacquire Larry Csonka, Jim Kilck and Paul Warfield.

Celeveland Browns' owner Art Modell said he wants to negotiate for Csonka and Warfield. Los Angeles Rams' owner Carroll Rosenbloom said he believes the former WFL franchises in Memphis and Birmingham will be considered for NFL membership.

The NFL New Orleans Saints badly want WFL players to hopefully improve their team. Players from the defunct WFL Shreveport Steamer have said they will take legal action to gain at least partial payment of contracts.

Solid gold Americans at Pan-Ams

Seventeen-year-old Kathy Heddy of Summit, N.J., won her fourth gold medal on America's women's freestyle relay team at the Pan-American Games Thursday night.

That completed another sweep for the U.S.A. swimmers who took four events, pushing America's gold medals to 92, three more than it won four years ago.

America began the day with 87 golds and received another when Lele Forood of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., won in women's tennis singles. The 92 medals do not include two basketball golds which have not been awarded yet.

Camile Wright of New Albany, Ind., won women's 200-meter butterfly and Bobby Hackett of Yonkers, N.Y., won men's 1,500-meter freestyle.

Mike Currington of Birmingham, Ala., upset world champion Gregg Jagenburg of West Chester, Pa., in men's 100-meter butterfly. The U.S.A. men's basketball team defeated the Virgin Islands, 137-70.

Sonics ship Haywood to Knicks

A smoldering feud has ended in Seattle with Supersonics head coach Bill Russell trading forward Spencer Haywood to the New York Knicks. Haywood has been a member of the NBA All-Star team four times.

Haywood, a Detroit University graduate, said he has felt he was not appreciated in Seattle, a feeling which began during the playoffs last year and just kept growing.

verage but she knows exactly where the ball is going each time she hits it and I think she moves better than any high school player I've seen."

Joining Replogle in the Oak Park title bid will be a pair of doubles teams made up of junior Mary Ann Nelson and freshman Lynne Elbert and seniors Jean Barr and Janelle Barclay.

Both combinations reached the finals of the district where Nelson and Elbert ruled 6-1, 6-1.

Oak Park's stiffest test may come from the other side of the state, where Rock Island has a pair of doubles teams to challenge the best. The Rocks of Emma Trackwell won a district title last weekend and will field seniors Marsha Bladel, Beth McLaughlin, Carol Foss and Ann Radloff.

Bladel and McLaughlin are the defending state doubles champions while Foss teamed up to form half of the 1972 champions.

The host Arlington Cardinals won the Prospect district last week and, along with Fremd, will carry the area's hopes into the state tournament.

Mary Lou Hundt will have Leslie Grabitz going in singles while Mary Flynn and Maureen Coleman will be Arlington's doubles entrant.

Fremd will be counting on a pair of doubles teams. Heidi Giesler and Linda Warder knocked off fellow Vikes Kathy Pfaender and Kim Whiting in the championship of the Hoffman Estates district.

Lisa Smart, a freshman from Buffalo Grove who plays a smart placement game, was singles champ in the Prospect district and may be the area's best hope for a state title.

Clare Dowling of Hoffman Estates, with a district championship to her credit, and Barb Gallo of Rolling Meadows will be the other top area individuals competing in the state tournament.

New Trier West will counter with Niles West district singles champion Kathy Karzen and Colette Bennett while New Trier East, who won the Niles West district, will have doubles players Stephanie Frei and Liz Stogin.

Hinsdale Central clobbered the Richards district field and will be a contender with singles player Betsy Heidler and a doubles team of Mary and Nancy Keil.

On the eve of their fourth title defense Carlson speculated on the continuation of the Oak Park dynasty.

"This is a tennis community," she said, "and we are expected to do well. Our success is kind of taken for granted. Because we have done so well for so long we don't generate the enthusiasm that a school just starting out would.

"The upperclassmen have their pride and they feel the pressure to do their very best. We lost two dual meets this year (to Hinsdale Central and New Trier West) and we haven't done that in years. Still, I think we are ready to run our streak to four.

about Gillen ("He blows people out.") and in Viator's total rushing attack which also features Jack Gracheck, Mark Bonucchi and Bill Deal ("When the line blows them out, it doesn't matter who's running.").

DeSales boasts two fine runners in 5-11, 185-pound Len Funk and (6-0, 195) Rich Pavichevich. But the Pioneers are expected to pass at Viator's short defensive secondary.

Cornerback Vince Hall, at 5-11, is the Lions' tallest pass defender. Of shorter vintage are safety Terry Frett plus cornerback Nick Josten.

The Lions' third cornerback will be Craig Ameel, Steve Hauser or both. At 5-11, Hauser is two inches taller than Ameel.

Viator's defensive Front Four remains the same with ends Scott Zettek and Dave Nicolau plus tackles Bill Schmidt and Dan Young.

Zettek might spell Catalano at offensive tackle. Catalano was shaken in Tuesday's practice.

The Lions will uniform wide receiver Jim Kane who's been out with hamstring muscle pulls. But Kevin McAleer starts the game.

Mike Klein
Sports Columnist

The great, proud football teams of suburban St. Viator and cityside St. Francis deSales, where a young man earns his varsity letter by eating raw meat, ligaments and all, just haven't been smart enough to leave each other alone. Their lives would have been so much simpler.

Reminiscent of two upper slope residents from the Matterhorn, they've crashed bone into bone, muscle into muscle and helmet into helmet. The bodies strain, the inches come hard and viciously, the young men blend into piles of surging purpose.

There is damage which hasn't been witnessed since that suicidal maniac Humpty Dumpty hurled himself off the famous wall. With every young man so intent upon victory, they are often twisted into painful positions, then led away as the stadium falls quiet.

In all recent exhibitions of blocking, tackling, facemasking and other techniques which are football, it's been the suburban boys who've not lasted the extra mile.

City footballers claimed triumphs in each of the past three chapters to their personal argument. Although not by much. It was 6-2 in mud. Then 7-6. And 10-7 in overtime.

These are always vicious confrontations where the point totals suggest bad offense. In truth, the Lions and Pioneers have great defensive football teams.

While scores generally remain low, emotions are generated to a fever pitch. There are two games a St. Viator football player never misses lest someone question the strength of his pride.

The first is Hersey. And the second deSales.

A young man's most nagging injury confounds modern medicine as it remarkably heals before a deSales game. The pains which he might mention any other day are now kept quiet.

The smallest defensive back can suddenly leap higher than anyone ever knew. And even the slowest offensive lineman develops feet so quick you might think he had been trained on live coals.

Every young man who steps onto the field, whether he's among the Lions or Pioneers, comes assured of a good fight. The opponent who has been a fictitious figure drawn in so many ways upon a blackboard, and who has been only an air bag dummy all week, now looms before him in angry flesh.

Hit or be hit. Block or be trampled. Tackle or lose. Play football as if you were born to do nothing else. Or find yourself replaced in the lineup. You give everything of yourself in this game because you owe your teammate that much effort.

It's an exceptional football series which St. Viator and deSales will continue at eight o'clock tonight in Elk Grove's Haskell Stadium. They've played to capacity crowds and tonight will be no different.

All that matters this evening is the East Suburban Catholic championship and the IHSA Class 5A playoff berth which comes as its prize. It has always been that way, one excellent team against another. No fan ever complains he has been cheated at night's end.

One overpowering quality, intensity, cannot be mistaken between these Lions and Pioneers. But how did it become so magnified? The question is not easily answered.

These are schools 40 miles apart. They are young men who would not recognize each other on any street. It is not like playing against Hersey and perhaps knowing the kid who defends at Huskie cornerback is your next door neighbor and former little league teammate.

But when 7:45 p.m. becomes eight o'clock, the young men who are Viator and deSales football players move toward the middle of their stage.

There is no more time for designing new plays, boasting of accomplishments from games played long ago or talking of how badly this opponent will be defeated.

The first kickoff moves downfield into waiting hands, eyes shuffle back and forth searching for even the smallest speck of space. Within seconds, there is a great collision. It has begun.

They always play this game along the line of scrimmage. The football is fierce. As it was with Vince Lombardi teams, the ball itself seems unimportant. You do not move the ball downfield. You move the team.

It is the same fiercely competitive credo advanced by Jim Lyne of St. Viator. And John Cappello at St. Francis deSales. Some young men, because they are stronger and bigger, play the game better than others. All of them are good.

And therein lies the answer to the intensity which has been so important between St. Viator and deSales. It's the game, and their love of playing football well, which has these two schools so intensely determined.

It's knowing that the opponent is worthy of your respect. And that you are worthy of his. It's knowing that you can't quit because he won't.

And it's the realization that you have spent one entire year getting ready for a challenge which lasts just two hours.

This is high school football, as Viator and deSales have so brilliantly played it. From the dingy old field which deSales used for many years in Hammond, Ind., to any of Viator's "homes," they've battled and pushed and played the game with heart.

The series ends tonight. There will be no more getting ready to play deSales for the Eastern Suburban Catholic championship. There will be no more remembering last year's game, how that man handled you or how you dominated him.

There will be no more trips to Hammond, Ind. Or even to deSales' new home which is Gately Stadium on Chicago's far south side. And they will not come to the suburbs.

St. Francis deSales joins the Chicago Catholic League next year. It is an intelligent decision which speaks of realistic traveling distances and close-to-home opponents. It is progress.

There will be new rivalries for the Pioneers and Lions. But even should Viator and deSales meet in non-conference games, it won't be the same.

This was East Suburban Catholic football at its finest. A series which grew bigger than any individual athlete who ever participated in it.

So they are down to the last game. It's very sad, really, almost like finding out that your father is Santa Claus. Or that all the King's Men couldn't put Humpty Dumpty back together again.

Where is girls' cross country?

Fan's forum

I read the article in Wednesday, Oct. 22 about the "new prize" — a girls Paddock Cup for girls sports. Good idea! It gives girls teams something to really work for as a whole. You also mentioned that for a sport to be included, half the MSL had to have teams.

Tehn why isn't cross country included in this contest? There are, or your paper lists, 13 schools. Out of these, the following have teams: Arlington, Prospect, Fremd, Hersey, Palatine, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, and Rolling Meadows. That's eight. Half of, or rather more than half, of the MSL's schools do have girls teams. So what's the problem?

I'd also like to say that your coverage on girls cross country leaves a lot to be desired. Many times after a meet I'll go buy a paper and there would be a little, just names, no story whatsoever. Once, there wasn't even names (Prospect-Hersey duel).

Thank you for listening.

Jody Stembridge and the rest of the Hersey girls team

EDITOR'S NOTE: The athletic directors and the principals of the Mid-Suburban League Schools voted not to consider girls' cross country a conference sport this fall. There was a meet at the end of the season for the girls, but it wasn't considered a league championship. Thanks for your interest.

CLEANUP HURLERS

Fans Forum:

I was dissatisfied with your answer to the question in last week's (Friday, Oct. 17), Fans Forum regarding pitchers who have batted somewhere other than the ninth spot in the order. You mentioned Babe Ruth, but there have been plenty of others.

I recall, for one, Bob Freind of the Pirates who batted seventh in several games in 1956 under manager Bobby Bragan. Also Don Larsen, who hit 14 homers in his career, batted cleanup in his rookie year with the St. Louis Browns and also later on with the Kansas City Athletics. Bob Lemon, a good hitting pitcher with the Indians, also hit cleanup on occasion. The Cubs' Hal Jeffcoat frequently hit higher than ninth.

I remember too, that Bert Campaneris was the starting pitcher and the leadoff batter in a game in 1965 when he played all nine positions.

It is especially true that in the old days, way back in the 19th century, pitchers commonly batted higher than ninth.

TROPICAL WORLD SERIES

Dear Editor:

How come every time it rains in the world series, the newspapers start talking about shortening the season or moving the series to Tampa or Seattle or Dry Gulch? It's rained about a half dozen times in all the history of the series, and only three times — 1911, 1962, and this year — has there been a lengthy delay. So what's the big deal? There may be some good reasons for reducing the length of the season, but the weather in October isn't one of them. Who wants the series in Timbuktu in the middle of July? Not me.

Ted Frew
Palatine

HELPING LEAD Prospect to second place in the Mid-Suburban League's archery meet was Carol Hoeckelberg. She posted two seconds at her position.

Just when I thought I'd buy a Cutlass Supreme, I found I could own a Grand Prix for $32 less!

PONTIAC

I thought I knew all there was to know about the specialty cars. But when I saw the price on a '76 Grand Prix, I had to think again.

It turns out the manufacturer's suggested retail price on '76 Grand Prix with wheel covers and AM radio is actually $32 lower than the m.s.r.p. for a comparably equipped Cutlass Supreme.

And with Grand Prix, you get a 350 cu. in. engine, turbo-hydromatic transmission, power disc brakes, power steering and clock as standard equipment.

That meant I could afford to choose. And as you can see, I'm very, very choosy.

1976 Pontiac's looking better all the time.

CSL scramble nears showdown

Central Suburban South leader Maine South must look to avoid being upset and runner-up Glenbrook South should win with few problems as the two teams point toward their meeting next weekend which will decide the CSL championship.

Maine South's Hawks host Niles West on Saturday afternoon. The Hawks haven't lost any of their seven games and last weekend gave defending state champion Glenbrook North its second straight shutout defeat.

Niles West brings a 4-3 record into the fracas. The Indians own consecutive victories over Niles East, 49-19, and Niles North, 35-8.

Glenbrook South visits Niles North tomorrow and should be more alert after Maine West nearly pulled a fine upset last Saturday, losing 14-13 when a two-point conversion try failed in the game's closing seconds.

The two Friday night games have Niles East at Maine West in the Warriors' final home game plus Maine East and Glenbrook North meeting in Northbrook.

Those are 8 p.m. games.

Maine West and Niles East are tied for sixth in the Central Suburban South, both holding 1-4 league records. Maine is 2-5 overall, having beaten Evanston in a crossover with the CSL North. The Warriors' league victory came against Niles North, 9-7.

Niles East claimed its only victory against Niles North, 21-16, but that was four weeks ago. They've since lost to Glenbrook South, Maine South, Niles West and Maine East.

Glenbrook North and Maine East, with identical 3-2 league records, will likely decide who finishes third in the CSL South.

Youth sports conference ahead

The first National Conference On Youth Sports will be held in Chicago, Nov. 19-21, with over 30 national youth sports organizations represented. The conference is being hosted by The Athletic Institute.

"Our purpose in sponsoring the conference" stated director Fred Engh, "is to provide a means for these organizations to learn from each other in the areas of similar needs and interests. Up until now, the heads of youth organizations have had little opportunity to share information and expertise about the many facets of youth sports in America."

An impressive lineup of talent and topics will be presented at the three-day conference. Dr. Rainer Martens, a noted Sports Psychologist from the University Of Waterloo in Ontario, Canada, will discuss the "Psychological Impact of Competitive Sports on Youth." In addition, Kyle Rote, Jr., former Superstar Champion and member of the Fellowship Of Christian Athletes, will talk on the importance sports play in the development of attitudes. Other topics to be covered at the conference include: "Reaching the Media With the Message," "The Role of Girls in Youth Sports," "Leadership Motivations and Communications," and "Fund Raising Techniques."

While the conference is open to Directors of Youth Sports Organizations and Staff, anyone wishing follow-up information about the conference is invited to contact The Athletic Institute Youth Sports Department, 705 Merchandise Mart, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Adult judo class signup

Classes in introductory Judo techniques and self defense will begin Oct. 28 for adults and Nov. 1 for those ages 10 to 16 at the Northwest Suburban YMCA, 300 E. Northwest Hwy. in Des Plaines.

Ernest Hauser, third degree black belt, will instruct the classes. Mr. Hauser who has 20 years of judo experience will focus on competitive sport judo and physical fitness, incorporating self defense maneuvers into the weekly classes.

Those interested may sign up for classes at the YMCA —membership at the Y is not required. The adult class meets from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, young people's class from 9 to 10 a.m. Saturdays.

Recently 12 judo club members attained rank promotions. In the adult club Jack Detzner, a student at Harvard University from Des Plaines, and Maurice Chung, Arlington Heights, were promoted to Sankyu (3rd class brown belt), and Casimer Dlugokecki, Arlington Heights, to Yonkyu.

Juniors receiving promotions were Jamsheed Attari, 12, to Yonkyu (orange belt); Bob Speer, 11, to Gokyu (yellow belt); Brad Johnson, 7, to Gokyu; Danny Lindstrom, 12, to Yonkyu; and Ed Leahy, 14, to Gokyu. All are from Arlington Heights. Also promoted were Keith Everman, 14, Elk Grove Village, to Yonkyu; and Peter and Werner Letscher, 11 and 10 respectively, of Schaumburg, promoted to Gokyu.

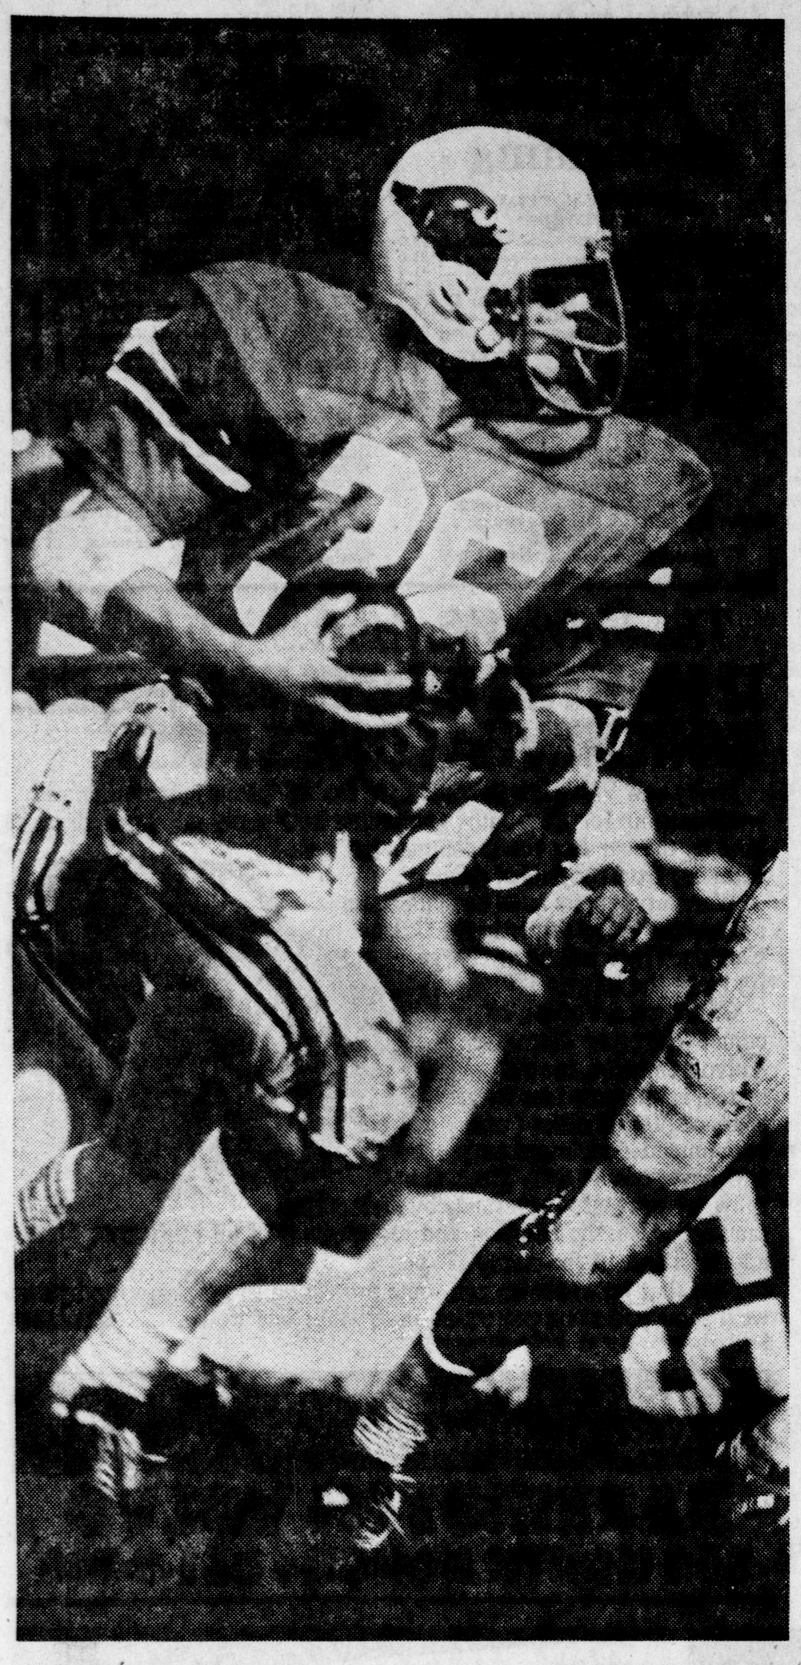
Title chases end but Mid-Suburban teams still have goals remaining



LOOKING FOR Fremd trouble is Arlington's Steve Leonhard as he carries for some of his 61 yards during Arlington's homecoming game. The Cardinals won, 29-15. (Photo by Dom Najolia)

This has to be one of the toughest weekends of the Mid-Suburban League football season.

The conference's North and South division champions were determined the week before, ending the hopes of the few remaining contenders.

All 13 MSL coaches face the challenge of getting their players 'up' for this seemingly meaningless weekend. Here are some of the reasons these head men will use for this second last game of the regular season:

- Schaumburg and Hersey — maintain their perfect records.
- Buffalo Grove, Prospect and Hoffman Estates — finish in second place.
- Palatine and Arlington — seeking their best records in years.
- Rolling Meadows — looking for its best record ever.
- Forest View and Elk Grove — .500 marks . . . in the league for the Grenadiers and over-all for the Falcons.
- Fremd — the chance to be a spoiler.
- Conant and Wheeling to win a couple of firsts . . . in the league for the Wildcats and over-all for the Cougars.

With this in mind, here are the weekend's matchups. All but one game — Hoffman at Schaumburg — will be played tonight, starting at 8:00.

Fremd will be entertaining Hersey, owner of a 7-0 mark and highly ranked in the prep polls. The Vikings (1-(1-6) could post an upset if the Huskies happen to still be enjoying their North Division championship.

"We're trying to gain a little momentum, we want to keep the pressure on . . . no let down," said Joe Gliwa, Hersey's coach. "We want to have an excellent game on offense . . . There's a lot of pressure off our kids now."

On Saturday at 2 p.m., the start of possibly a great rivalry will take place when Schaumburg hosts Hoffman Estates.

"We still are shooting for a perfect season," said Bob Ferguson, Schaumburg's coach.

The Saxons will be hoping that homecoming festivities will help give them the needed lift to get past a fired up Hoffman Hawks team. The Hawks of Coach Bill Gourley were eliminated from the South Division race last week, so they'll have nothing to lose and a spoiler's role to gain Saturday.

Schaumburg will be facing the top passer in the division — Wayne Jackson. And he'll be looking at one of the best secondaries in the state — Bob Connell, Steve Conrad, Scott Mielke and Gary Geels.

"At the beginning of the season, we thought the secondary was our weakest spot," said Tom Cerasani, its coach. "It turns out that it is just the other way around."

The Saxon defensive backs have allowed just 18 completions in 82 attempts for 187 yards or 27 per game. Six times they've intercepted.

Prospect and Hoffman are presently tied for second in the South with Buffalo Grove all along in second up North.

Buffalo Grove will face a stiff challenge from hosting Arlington as the Cardinals try to move into a tie for the runnerup spot. Arlington is also shooting for a 7-2 over-all record, needing victories in its last two games for the best mark since its perfect season in 1970.

Prospect must tackle a fast-improving Rolling Meadows team, winner of three straight. The Mustangs need two wins for a 6-3 mark.

Palatine has both a team and an individual record to shoot for — two wins will give the Pirates their best season since 1968 and another fine effort by Jim Popp will make him the all-time area rusher.

Popp has 1015 yards. The single-season record is held by Forest View's Mike Pryor at 1104. Palatine's super Warranty repairs must be made at an authorized Volvo dealer in the U.S. or Canada. There will be no charge for parts and labor.

Of course, a Volvo also comes with other warranties: Volvo's emission control system is warranted for five years or 50,000 miles (with recommended maintenance) whichever occurs first. Tires, naturally, are warranted separately by their manufacturer. Also, the addition and replacement of all lubricants, fluids and filters are at the owner's expense.

Girls dive in for spots in state swimming meet

Swimming Editor

The young woman who coaches Sacred Hearts' water ladies, and who further admits her college swimming career was "no big deal," has generated some startling conclusions after six weeks on her first job.

"Everyone at this school is named Kathy or Mary," says Trisha Dean. "They are."

That trend does not apply to four young women known as Cheryl and Chris (Takata) plus Terry and Josie (Fitzsimons) who are new coach Dean's premier swimmers.

They will carry the little school's fortunes when Sacred Heart joins six Mid-Suburban Conference members, which includes repeat champion Prospect, in the 15-team field at Saturday's IHSA district swim meet in Olympic Pool.

Diving begins at 9:30 a.m. and swimming events at 2 p.m.

It's also the first district meet coaching shot for Dean who swam at Lawrence University before graduate studies at Northwestern.

Dean inherited Sacred Heart's program from Kathy Dalton who departed for New Trier West. It was love at first sight.

"She was quitting and I just happened to walk in the door," said Dean. "I was the only person they could dig up."

Right off, Dean was confident of more success for Sacred Heart. "Kathy Dalton was this super woman," said Dean. "Then they (the swimmers) get this person they don't even know."

And after Sacred Heart responded with a 5-1 dual meet record, there's not the least reason to be nervous about districts.

"I've been going crazy these past few days," Dean confided. "There are a lot of things I'd do differently next year. I have a whole list of them . . . somewhere."

If poor Miss Dean appears slightly shaken, her swimmers probably aren't, and Sacred Heart could become the glue which catches flies at this district meet.

The Takata and Fitzsimons sisters all should qualify for next weekend's state finals at New Trier East.

The four comprise Sacred Heart's medley relay team which should fight against Prospect and Elk Grove for the district title. At any rate, all those teams are fast enough to reach state finals.

Terry Fitzsimons could have 50 freestyle to her lonesome unless Arlington's Sue Cripe entered the event. Cripe waited until after Thursday's practice before selecting between the 50 and 200 frees.

Cripe, Arlington's little pixie who captured two MSL titles last weekend, will compete in 100 free plus with Judy Weber, Wendy Meyers and Jill Nason on the Cardinals' 400 free relay team.

Sacred Heart's Cheryl Takata, Arlington's Cripe and Elk Grove's Kathy Amato are part of an outstanding 100 free field. And Chris Takata should give breaststroke entrants, who include MSL champion Patti Larsen of Prospect, a run for the glory.

There's no denying there's strength in this district which has MSL runner-up Arlington plus third place Elk Grove and fourth place Hersey. Rolling Meadows and Forest View are also in the group.

MSL schools Wheeling and Buffalo Grove are sentenced into the Highland Park district. Wheeling's Ann Mackie has excellent chances there in 50 and 100 freestyles. Their medley relay of Lori Nelson, Terri Wallace, Maureen Geisler and Mackie rates highly as does Wallace in breaststroke.

Buffalo Grove looks for strong efforts from its medley relay team of Sue Eliot, Debbie Cornell, Ann Rusche and Cheryl Kashmere. All those girls have chances to qualify individually, also, as does Teresa DeGroh.

Prospect is the team title favorite at Arlington's Olympic Pool. Other team entrants are Dundee, Maine West, York, Proviso West, Conant, West Leyden, Fremd and Palatine.

The following summary should provide a scratch sheet of swimmers who have chances to qualify for state finals at New Trier East.

PROSPECT: Medley relay team of Jema Allen, Patti Larsen, Pam Wilken and Terry Wilken. Allen and Larsen in individual medley. Larsen in breaststroke. Barb Stewart in 200 free plus Stewart and Nora Halversen in 500 free. The freestyle relay team of Ann Halas, Laura Prinslow, Stewart and Mary Ann Withey.

ARLINGTON: Divers Kelly Holland and Donna Wasielewski. Freestyle relay of Judy Weber, Wendy Meyers, Jill Nason and Cripe. Meyers in Butterfly and backstroke. Nason in 100 free. Cripe in all events she swims. Perhaps Weber in 50 free.

ELK GROVE: Medley relay of Kathy Amato, Sharon Bird, Shelley Bird and Diane Chrysokos. Amato in 100 free and backstroke. Sharon Bird in butterfly and backstroke.

HERSEY: Medley relay of Linda Merle, Barb Loner, Barb Behnke and Sue Richartz. Behnke in butterfly. Sue Laursen, Becky Wheeler, Mary Beth Wendell and Patti Wilcox in freestyle relay. Diver Wendy Hawes. Wheeler and Richartz in freestyle. Richartz and Loner in breaststroke. Behnke and Loner in individual medley.

FOREST VIEW: Pam Funk in 50 and 100 frees. Lynn Osswald in breaststroke and individual medley.

ROLLING MEADOWS: Freestyle relay of Connie Wilson, Debbie Royal, Kathy Nicklin and Dawn Grunwald. Wilson in 100 and 200 frees. Grunwald in 50 free.

runner could do it tonight at home against Wheeling with 90 yards.

It the Wheeling Wildcats could pull off an upset, they would register their first league win.

Winless Conant will have Elk Grove as its homecoming guest. The Cougars have shown some signs of being ready to break out of their slump. However, the Grenadiers — fresh from a big win over Hoffman — also appear to be finishing strong.

If the Grenadiers can come out ahead in this battle, they'll pull even in the South Division with a 3-3 record.

Forest View hosts Waukegan East tonight in a non-conference clash. The Falcons have an excellent chance of also reaching the .500 mark overall for Waukegan has only won one game.

Stenger's performance in the Carleton game was extremely versatile as he gained 73 yards in 23 carries and caught a trio of passes for 59 yards.

The former Conant High School star scored the final touchdown with 1:05 left in the game to insure the victory.

—Ken Slepicka, a sophomore signal caller from Wheeling High School now attending North Park College, has suffered a dislocated collarbone and will miss the next three games.

—Junior defensive back Paul Cuccinotto from Des Plaines, made the fumble recovery that led to Northern Michigan University's third touchdown in the opening period of a 20-7 win over Eastern Michigan.

—Robert C. Thompson, a Knox College sophomore from Arlington Heights, has been named winner of the Arvid P. Zetterberg Award. The honor goes to an athlete who, during the freshman year, "exemplifies the highest qualities of character, scholarship and interest" in collegiate athletics.

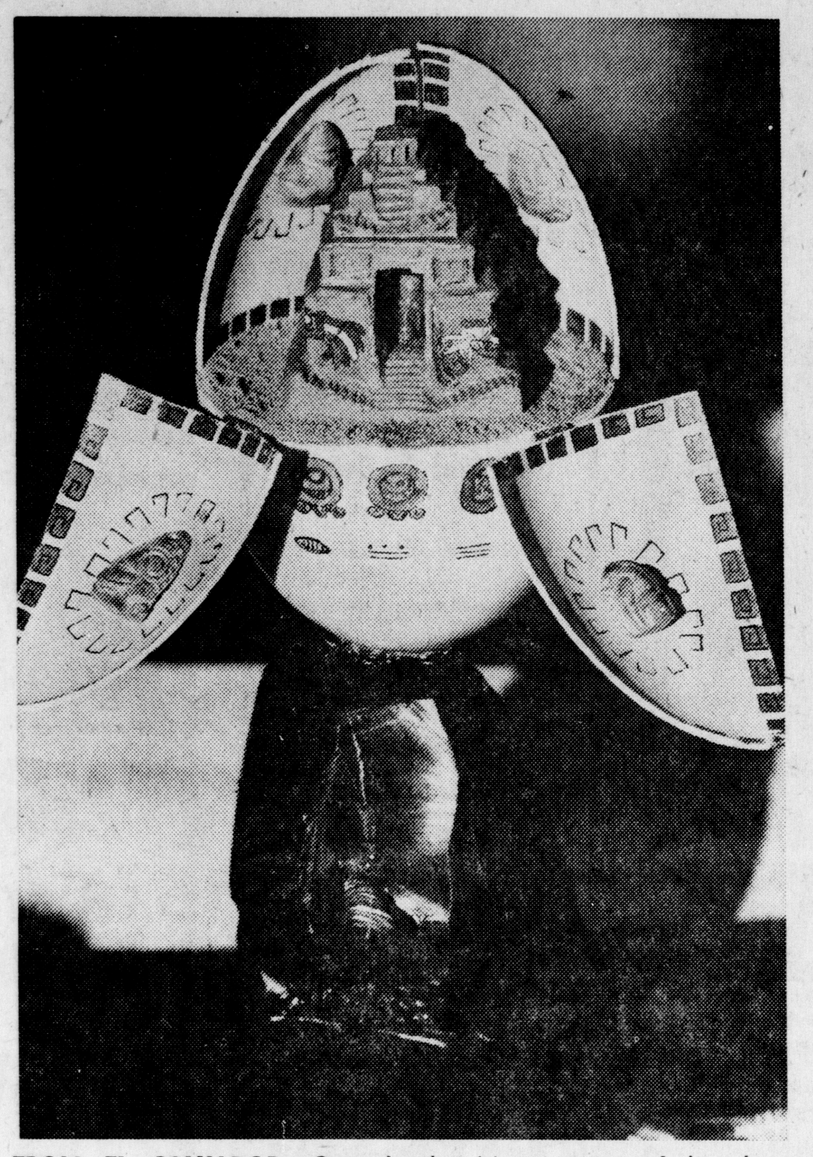
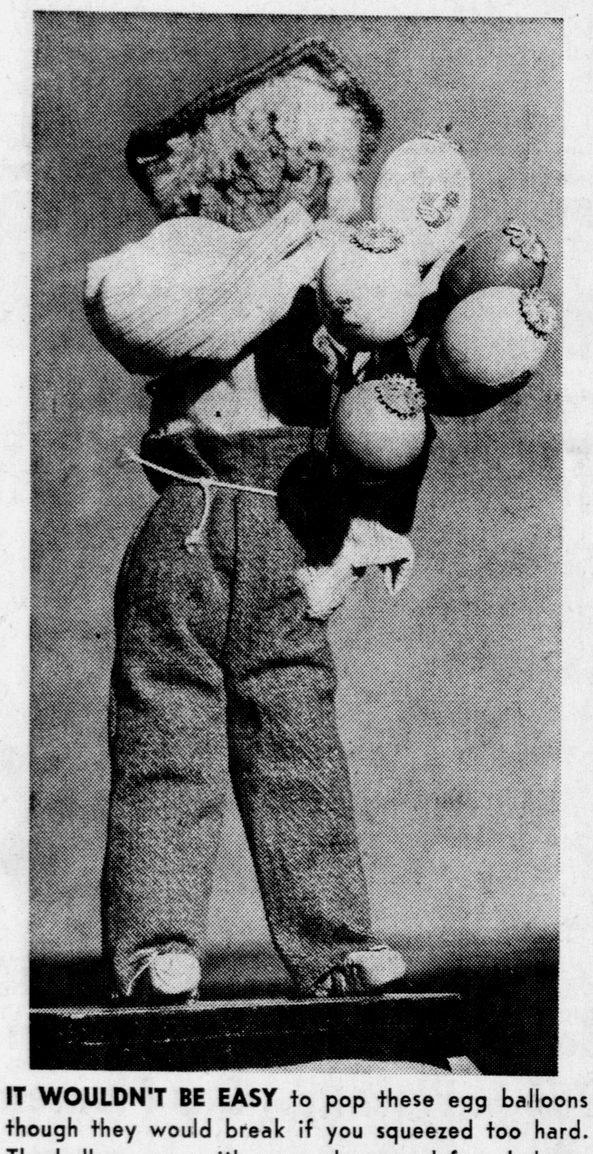
PEGGY DICKMAN of Granville, Mich., honors the Bicentennial. The figure of Betsy Ross is made out of bread dough.



FROM EL SALVADOR, Central America, Conchita Llach decorated this egg which highlights the Mayan ruins of her home country. She has put lights in many of her eggs.

THE RHEA WHO laid this egg would never recognize his work. It was decorated by Doris Lundsten of Wauconda, who has been an egger for 12 years. "It's a way of life now," she said.



IT WOULDN'T BE EASY to pop these egg balloons though they would break if you squeezed too hard. The balloon man with an apple carved face belongs to Grace Cummins of Scottsboro, Ala.

Decorated eggs

They dazzle even the Easter bunny

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Goose eggs, ostrich eggs, duck eggs, swan eggs and pheasant eggs all decked out in rhinestones, jewels and fancy trim. It's enough to dazzle the Easter bunny, put the goose who laid the golden egg to shame.

About 100 eggers from all over the U.S., and even from Central America, met earlier this week at Arlington Park Hilton for the annual Isobel Taylor Invitational Egg Show.

Once a year members meet to marvel over each other's private collections, exchange decorating ideas and, of course, occasionally trade eggs.

Though decorating eggs as a craft has become increasingly popular just in the last several years, it really dates back to the beginning of time, said Iva Britton of Waukegan, chairman of this year's show.

"EGGS WERE ONCE considered the source of life. Decorated ones were given as gifts to newly married couples to insure fertility. Or they were given to very good friends. Pagan ancestors used them in their rites to welcome in spring and then, of course, the Christians introduced eggs into their Easter celebration."

Yet much more time and effort go into the decorating of these eggs than what's usually put into a child's Easter basket. Truly, many of them are works of art and may be valued into the hundreds of dollars.

"Once you start you get hooked," said a 15-year veteran egger from Michigan who, like many others, started out by decorating eggs as Christmas ornaments for her tree. From chicken eggs she graduated to ostrich, rhea and goose eggs, painstakingly gluing on elaborate trims and often adding a miniature scene inside. Favorite themes are religious, weddings, nature and now the Bicentennial. Many of them even light up.

Unfortunately the Isobel Taylor show (named after a Galena resident who, though never an egger herself, supported many others in their endeavors) is not open to the public. For the ornamental display of dozens and dozens of hand-decorated eggs is an unusual exhibit indeed.

Yet the intent of the show is not to sell eggs or gain personal recognition.

"IT'S A SHOW OF friendship, a chance to visit and exchange ideas among ourselves," said Mrs. Britton. No judging is done. No awards are presented.

Many women turned to egging as a release from everyday housework. And though some have backgrounds in art which show up in handpainted eggs, scratched-carved eggs or some that have been specially decoupaged, most eggers were complete novices when they started, learning more by trial and error than anything else.

The only male member in attendance at the show, Harold Vickers of Darlington, Wis., became interested in decorating eggs 11 years ago. He often uses a very fine drill to cut out designs in many of his eggs.

Though there are mail order outlets available where one can order supplies, from the smallest egg, the hummingbird, to the largest, the ostrich, Vickers prefers buying directly from local farmers and hatcheries. And spring, the laying season, is the best time to stock up, he said.

The Isobel Taylor show was first organized five years ago by an egger from Three Rivers, Mich., who decided at the last minute to have a party and invite several eggers from her hometown to meet her egger friend from Tennessee. On the invitations she cordially invited all who knew other eggers to urge them to come, too. Altogether 68 eggers from 10 different states showed up.

TOO GOOD OF A thing to let die, they decided to meet annually. Next year the two-day convention is taking place in Atlanta, Ga.

Book tells how to ride almost everything . . . except a horse

by KAREN BLECHA
(A Review)

Do it yourself is an American motto, a way of life. Whether to make money, save money or outplumb the plumber, we have become possessed with the desire of "how to."

How to bake bread, build a houseboat or clean a sewer — countless books have been written on subjects like these. You can learn how to hook a rug, clip a poodle or improve your life in 10 easy lessons.

Now there's a new book for the do-it-yourself shelf. It won't save you money or make you money. But it will answer the basic question: "Hey, am I going to break my neck?"

THIS LATEST adventure in "how to" is called "How To Ride Just about Everything (except a horse)" and is billed as a guide to simple mastery of things that wheel and scoot, sail and fly, ride, slide and glide (Greatlakes Living Press, $4.95).

It is written byPaul DuPre, who at the age of six was swept over a 150-foot waterfall in a homemade raft. From then on, it's been up and down for DuPre on skis and hang gliders, in sailboat and dune buggies. DuPre says he doesn't have anything against horses, he just decided to stick to mechanical sports.

DuPre describes his book as "basic instruction with a light touch." It includes the basics of skiing, sailboating, ice and roller skating, skateboarding, surfing, windsurfing, cycling and snowmobiling.

YOU LEARN WORDS like luffing, blow back and thermal boosts, necessary in the sport of hang gliding. There are chapters on skimming the water in a hovercraft and types of motor homes and four-wheel drive vehicles on today's market.

With each sport, DuPre lists references including books, magazines, associations and schools for the sport as well as where to try out the sport and what equipment can cost. He also includes some history on each one.

Besides getting a basic idea of what you can do on a weekend, the book gives some practical tips. There are diagrams on how to build a soapbox racer and how to shift the gears and park an automobile. DuPre tells you how to size a bicycle, operate a motorcycle and select a motor home that gives good mileage. There is even a chart on wind-chill-factors so you know what to expect with a snowmobile.

"THE MOST INTERESTING chapter in the book is the one on hitchhiking, hitchen or "riding the thumb,' written by the author's son, Phillip A. DuPre. He says hitchen is "a good way to observe human nature, all kinds."

To hitchhike the right way, you've got to have the right attitude, Phillip writes. "You've got to put out good vibes," he says. "Hold the thumb close to your thigh and smile."

His tips for successful hitchen include being aware of the law since many states, including Illinois, do not permit hitchhiking; not hitching on trains and being able to psych out your driver.

Natalie Cole impressive in recent debut album

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

Natalie Cole's "Inseparable" (Capitol records) is an impressive debut album by the 25-year-old daughter of the late Nat King Cole.

Through a varied selection of 10 new songs, all written by producers Chuck Jackson and Marvin Yancy, Ms. Cole demonstrates the power and range of her strong, clear voice. She handles both ballads and shouting rockers equally well.

It is evident at this point in her career that the singer has been influenced by Aretha Franklin. There is the same gospel-based feel to her performance, and Ms. Cole has said she would like to do a gospel album someday.

ALL THE SONGS are short, 3½ minutes or under, and the arrangements are uniformly bright. The single from the album is "This Will Be" which is highlighted by horns. Other strong songs are the disco-oriented "Needing You," the funky ballad "Joey," the gospel-tinged, mid-tempo "I Can't Say No" and the pretty titled ballad.

Ms. Cole is a strong argument for talent being inherited as well as acquired. She should develop into one of our best contemporary singers.

Another woman who has proved she can shout with the best of them is Tina Turner, whose new album is "Acid Queen" (United Artists). Named after her role in the recent film version of "Tommy," the album has two distinct sounding sides.

On the first, she more than ably handles songs by the Rolling Stones, the Who and Led Zeppelin, with the title song, "Let's Spend the Night Together," and "Whole Lotta Love" as standouts. The second side features all original songs by husband Ike Turner and the music is more soulful, although the Sid Sharp Strings add a touch that will make it appeal to pop audiences as well. "Baby — Get It On" (sung with Ike) is my favorite.

Also new and of note are:

"STAMP ALBUM" by Climax Blues Band (Sire). This somewhat underrated group now has a long streak of fine albums and this may be the tightest, most compact yet. The band's bluesy rock style has expanded somewhat with the addition of a fifth member, Richard Jones on keyboards. "Using the Power" is its most commercial song to date. Also good are "The Devil Knows," "Running Out of Time" and "I Am Constant" (which also was on the band's 1973 "FM Live" album).

"Nomadness" by the Strawbs (A&M). Veteran British folk group (originally a bluegrass band) continues to expand into rock, while not abandoning its more folky elements. As always, David Cousins' lyrics are somewhat complex, particularly on the fine "Hanging In the Gallery." "The Golden Salamander" with its dulcimer and cascading background vocals also is fine. The better rockers are "To Be Free" and the very basic "Little Sleepy."

"WORLDS COLLIDE" by Hudson-Ford (A&M). This is the third album for the Strawbs' former rhythm section, Richard Hudson and John Ford. They are even more heavily into rock, so much so that the ballads are their weaker efforts. Still each of their albums has been very likeable and this one is no exception. There's heavy use of synthesizers, and the first two songs, "Did Worlds Collide?" and "Mechanics," deal with a Von Daniken-type visit by ancient astronauts.

"Ritchie Blackmore's Rainbow" (Polydor). Blackmore, former lead guitarist and founder of Deep Purple, has chosen members of the group Elf to form his new hard rock band. Unfortunately, I don't think the rest of the group is even close to Blackmore's playing ability and the album's strengths lie only with his guitar playing. Ronnie James Dio, in particular, is too one-dimensional (loud) as the singer.

The album is worth hearing just for Blackmore's licks, however, and there's a pretty good song in "Man on the Silver Mountain." The instrumental version of Yardbirds' "Still I'm Sad" also is good.

Newsman chronicles life of the war correspondent

by PHILIP KNIGHTLEY
Harcourt Brace Javanovich
$12.95

The book stall

"The first casualty when war comes is truth," Sen. Hiram Johnson, 1917.

"In the end, the Vietnam War was better reported than any other examined here. But that is not saying much," Philip Knightley, 1975.

These two statements somewhat painfully sum up, in my opinion, what happens when war and the news media come together.

Philip Knightley, an Australian who has never covered war himself, has put together a rich book on the history of that unique profession of war correspondent.

But the reader comes away with understanding that after toiling through the battlefield, fighting the censors and editors, the war writer's work did not add up to much.

KNIGHTLEY'S BOOK is filled with examples of individual correspondents battling on their own to try to get information to the public. But it is also filled with countless examples of how supposedly independent newsmen cowered in the face of government censorship or willingly lent their pens to help sell dozens of wars.

The author, who is a correspondent for the Sunday Times of London, also paints a portrait similiar to Tomothy Crouse in "Boys on the Bus." Whereas Crouse was writing about political reporters on the campaign trail, both men show that journalists tend to run in packs and are sometimes satisfied with just putting out the same information their colleagues may have.

Pack journalism, in war or politics, makes it easier for the government to suppress what it does not want the public to know. Knightley, like Crouse before him, shows that while the government threw up some roadblocks, journalists generally accepted the role of lap dog.

THE BOOK chronicles the work of men and women throughout the past 125 years and Knightley suggests that war reporting has improved as lines of communication became more available. Knightley points to some of the more legendary war correspondents like William Russel in the Crimea, Ernie Pyle and Edward R. Murrow during WW-II and Peter Arnett, the Associated Press man who after spending a decade in Vietnam left when he said he could no longer write about killing but found himself inexplicably pulled back when Saigon fell.

Knightley does not condemn all war correspondents outright, however, the "was it worth" type question must be asked after reading of correspondents racing across continents to escape a censor only to learn that the government finally decided to release certain information and beat them into print.

This book will be a natural for journalists everywhere, partly because becoming a war correspondent is one of those goals writers tend to set for themselves while laboring in the bowels of journalism school.

BUT THIS COOK should also be examined widely by the general public because it helps to clean away a little of the mystery that sometimes clouds the news media and leads to criticism of the press.

Without the war correspondent, the public would probably not know a great deal about the various wars which have been fought. Their failings cannot be tolerated, but like the failings of the generals and the government, they might serve as useful lessons for the future, because the future will certainly contain more of those horrible social events called war. And there will be a need for men and women to write about it.

Impossible to leave without feeling full

It's easy to overeat and the temptation is particularly keen when dining out. But lest you want to return home feeling extremely uncomfortable, my warning to anyone trying the Copper Chimney Restaurant is to simply pace yourself. You may be sorry if you don't.

Not only are the portions generous but the price of the meal includes homemade soup, salad bar and, with the main course, choice of potato and corn on the cob.

I suggest foregoing the latter two items altogether. French fries or baked potato are always readily available and the mini ear of corn, out of season, will most likely turn off the true sweet corn connoisseur. I know it did me.

"I'VE YET TO come across corn on the cob in a restaurant that was satisfactory. It's truly an item that requires preparation in a home setting.

Featuring Copper Chimney

Located at the intersection of Rand and Quentin roads, with actually a Barrington address, the Copper Chimney is new this year, having opened in February. But the owner is not new to the business. He also operates Little Heidelberg at 164 N. State, Chicago, a restaurant which for many years had specialized in German cuisine.

Though the Copper Chimney does not specialize in German food, it does feature on the menu smoked thueringer or bratwurst served with sauerkraut, $4.50, Schnitzel Ala Heidelberg, $5.50, and a nice selection of reasonably priced German wines.

We began our meal with a tureen of homemade lentil soup, the soup of the day, and though a cup would have been plentiful, I easily finished it all. Good homemade soup is hard to pass up.

THE SALAD BAR is next and, once again, it's easy to get carried away. In addition to a large bowl of crisp lettuce with all the accompaniments, there are usual items such as potato salad, three-bean salad, carrot salad and cottage cheese. It's all good but very predictable, except the macaroni salad made with a vinegar and oil base dressing instead of the usual, heavy mayonaise and that's worth seconds.

The salad bar can be a meal in itself $1.95. Soup a la carte is 60 cents.

Because it was framed and highlighted in the middle of the menu, I picked the combination of barbecued ribs and chicken, $7.95. The ample slab of ribs would have been enough, but I was also served a half chicken. The sauce was tangy but not overpowering and the ribs exceptionally lean. It was a wise choice.

MY PARTNER, tempted by the lobster tank she saw advertisd upon entering the restaurant, ordered the whole live Maine lobster broiled, $11.95 (market price). Prepared correctly, it was as good as any she'd eaten.

In addition to the regular menu that also includes sauteed whole red snapper, $6.95, and country-style broiled pork chops, $5.50, a nightly special is always added. That night it was roast chicken and dressing, $4.95. Our waitress told us the specials usually vary in price from $3.95 to $7.95 for prime rib featured Saturday and Sunday.

It's difficult to describe the decor of Copper Chimney other than to say it's cozy. A fireplace in one corner sets off the small dining room which is flanked on two sides by wide booths. A middle partition separates the dining room from the lounge area.

I was most impressed with the young waitresses who were most courteous and gracious. Reservations are recommended on weekends only. And when you decide to go, make sure you have a ferocious appetite.

Actor returns home to do 'Cat'

by Genie Campbell

For actor JOHN REILLY, coming to Chicago to play Breck in ARLINGTON PARK THEATRE'S production of "CAT ON A HOT TIN ROOF" means returning home.

He was raised here, attended Mt. Carmel High School on the south side and worked here 10 years after college before deciding to move to New York. His family and three brothers all reside in Chicago and so do his two daughters.

But John won't have very much visiting time this trip. Since deciding just last Friday evening to take the major role being vacated by David Selby, who is leaving the show to join a new Broadway production, John has been dividing his time between memorizing lines and rehearsing the role of Breck and continuing to do his role of the last year and a half, that of Dr. Dan Stewart on "As the World Turns" (12:30 p.m., Channel 2).

Although knowing it was going to be extremely hectic, John accepted the role. It was worth all the plane hops and long hours.

"I like the role very much and wanted to work with Sandy (Sandy Dennis). Altogether it's an excellent cast. Let's just say it's a good opportunity to do a good role with good people. It's just a little tiring, that's all. But I get on and off planes very quickly.

Unlike most actors who plan a career in theater from day one, John had never even considered acting until five years ago. After attending college in Minnesota he worked in Chicago 10 years as an account executive before deciding to trade business for acting.

"I just decided to do it. I knew I could make a living at it." said John.

Getting his feet wet in community theater, he appeared in many Chicago professional productions, before moving to New York. He has since resided there except for a short time when he lived in California to do guest television spots and gain experience in films. He appeared in a bit part with Robert Redford in "The Great Waldo Pepper."

But during the last year and a half, he's been regularly appearing in "As the World Turns" and expects to continue for another year.

"It's the hardest work for an actor. The pressure is on from 7:30 a.m. when you first receive the script until 1:30 p.m. when the taping is made," he said. Originally, "As the World Turns" was done live.

"Soap operas are the last vestage of melodrama in our country on a day-to-day basis."

"It's amazing how many people do watch them," continued John, who added that many viewers are men who are currently unemployed and home during the day.

He labels them as "closet watchers."

"They don't like to admit to it because it means they're not working. People get tired of the game shows that just cater to man's greed. There's only so much you can take of that, particularly if you're unemployed."

The exposure, he admits, has been great though he's really in it "because that's what I like to do," which is why he decided to do "Cat" at Arlington Park Theatre. David Selby's engagement ends Sunday, and John Reilly steps in as Breck beginning Tuesday through Nov. 9.

COUNTRY CLUB COMEDY THEATRE will feature another world premiere this season, a four-character musical, "WHAT A SPOT!" co-written by Elk Grove playwright JACK SHARKEY and DAVE REISER, chairman of the music department at Palatine High School.

The production will open Dec. 10 in place of "EAT YOUR HEART OUT," which had been originally scheduled but is no longer available.

The current play, "WHO'S ON FIRST?", which was also written by Jack Sharkey, closes Sunday, "NORMAN, IS THAT YOU?" opens next Friday for a month's run. Featured is KENT MONKEN with ED SAUER, MARK FENSKE, DORIS SILVER and JANET PODOLSKY.

Prime ribs of beef is Lawry's only entree for dinner. Luncheon, from 11:30 to 2, offers a varied menu with other choices.

Italian Indian chosen for film 'Winterhawk'

by VERNON SCOTT

Michael Dante is a proud and noble Italian who stars as a proud and noble Indian in "Winterhawk."

There are those who would cry foul, claiming an Indian should play an Indian.

But Dante, a hard-working actor whom stardom has eluded for a decade, only shrugs.

"I don't get angry at all the non-Italian actors who play Italians," he said. "There are hundreds of Italian actors, but who played 'The Godfather?"

"In more than a hundred roles I've portrayed an Italian only once. I guess that's because there are more ethnic-looking Italian actors than I. Ben Gazzara and Harry Guardino, for instance."

CERTAINLY, THERE are some Indians who are more ethnic in appearance than Dante. But few have had experience in leading roles.

The best known Indian in recent film history was "Cochise" — played by Burt Lancaster and the late Jeff Chandler in movies and Mike Ansara, a Lebanese, on television.

"Winterhawk" may be Dante's passport to stardom at long last.

The tall, handsome native of Stamford, Conn., is one of those rare actors who is neither a superstar nor starving to death.

HE WORKS regularly, usually a movie a year and several fat guest roles in television. He's never had a bad review.

"But if a great part comes along, Steve McQueen wants it," Dante said, "and that's that.

"I've always had to battle for recognition. I've done five independent films in the past few years without a studio behind them. That makes it difficult.

"So I've become something of a loner. I've even written five screenplays for myself out of frustration. The time for me is now. I'm not going to wait until I'm an old man."

DANTE SPENT five years as a professional baseball player, including a stint with the defunct Washington Senators — which gives one an idea of how Dante's luck has run.

Now, however, the future looks promising. Plans are afoot to film a sequel to "Winterhawk" which has been a huge box office success.

" 'Winterhawk' is a symbol of positive forces of the Indian," Dante said. "The Blackfeet Indians have made me an honorary tribe member.

"The most difficult thing I had to do was learn the Blackfeet language. An old Indian woman in Kalispell, Mont., taught me for hours on end. I learned to speak their language phonetically.

"INDIANS WHO have seen the picture tell me I speak it perfectly. They saw the film before it was released to make certain it didn't belittle them.

"We used 25 members of the Cree and Blackfeet tribes as warriors and a couple of hundred Indians of both tribes as extras."

"Winterhawk" has been released in various parts of the country. It is a great favorite wherever Indians have seen the film. Since its completion, Dante has visited the Rocky Boy and Blackfeet reservation in Montana where he has become something of a hero.

"I got the role on the strength of the old "Custer" television series in which I played Chief Crazy Horse," Dante explained.

"THE PRODUCERS were looking for an actor they thought could play an Indian convincingly. They settled for me.

"But what pleases me most is the reaction of the Indians who have seen the picture. They are proud of the way their tribes are depicted.

"And not a single one of them has objected to the fact that an Italian is playing one of their braves."

How to ride anything

"I had one driver who for 180 miles told me over and over that he was a demolition expert for Twentieth Century Fox Studios and that my seat was wired with enough explosives to blow me to bits," he writes. "You meet a lot of weirdos."

DuPRE, WHO BUILT his own skateboard before the manufacturers did, admits that any of the sports in his book can be dangerous.

"But almost anything can be dangerous if you don't do it properly and try to exceed your limits," he says, adding that he left out how to fly a plane because he learned the wrong way — with a book, plane and a buddy who had done it before.

The author points out that even a cartload of books is not equal to one good instructor. He says his book is primarily to interest the person in the sport and give him an idea of what he has to go through to learn it. One problem with the book, however, is that it is written in a factual manner and doesn't make any of the sports sound particularly exhilarating.

DuPre has tried all the sports in the book but said he likes riding a motorcycle or a convertible in nice weather the best.

His book is full of advice and maybe the most wise of it is this: Whether you are 15 or 50, seize every opportunity for fun outdoors. Do it now. Don't wait.

Partners Wayne, Hepburn squandered in 'Cogburn'

by DAVID DUGAS

John Wayne and Katherine Hepburn are formidable assets for any movie marquee, but that investment is squandered in thier first joint effort. "Rooster Cogburn" (". . . and the Lady" was a last minute title amendment) is a trite and unconvincing western comedy, mildly diverting at best.

As Rooster Cogburn, the one-eyed U.S. marshal who fought his way to an Academy Award in "True Grit" six years ago, Wayne this time must keep a shipment of nitroglycerine out of the hands of no-good varmints led by Richard Jordan. He also wants to avenge the slaying of Hepburn's missionary father.

HEPBURN, AS THE Bible-quoting Eula Goodnight, helpfully tags along, fulfilling a plot function performed in "True Grit" by spunky young Kim Darby although the role now seems to have been written with Doris Day in mind.

"God help us!" Hepburn exclams in a moment of peril.

"If he does, I'll give up drinkin'!" Wayne drawls in an exchange typical of the limp script apparently written by producer Hal B. Wallis but credited to Martin Julien.

A lot of fellows are shot dead in the conventionally bloodless fashion of earlier Hollywood days. But the survivors prove bloodless too as they make their way through the pretty scenery of Oregon's Rogue River country.

SEVERAL OTHER actors, among them Anthony Zerbe, John McIntire and Strother Martin, appear in the picture. But "Rooster Cogburn" is tailored to the presence, if not the talents, of Wayne and Hepburn and subsidiary characters hardly matter, especially given Stuart Millar's uninspired direction.

"Rooster Cogburn" is a Universal picture, rated PG.

Bride, groom design church wedding banner

A wedding banner designed by the bride and groom decorated the church Sept. 27 for the wedding of Alicia Lynn Feaster and Dale Edward Ankele. Daughter of the Robert K. Feasters, Arlington Heights, Alicia and Dale, son of the Edward Ankeles, Barrington, were married in St. Paul United church of Christ, Barrington.

For the 1 p.m. service, during which the couple exchanged matching gold bands, Alicia wore her mother's wedding gown of hand loomed imported lace and her waist-length veil. Her flowers were orchids with dried baby's breath, wheat and pheasant feathers.

Alicia's sister, Vicki, was maid of honor wearing a floral print gown in brown, blue and cream. Her flowers were white mums, blue bachelor buttons and pheasant feathers. Bridesmaids were Ruth Barr, Hagerstown, Md., and Donna MacMurray, Arlington Heights, who wore print gowns in orange, brown and cream and carried white and orange mums with pheasant feathers.

SIX-YEAR-OLD Charity Teresi, Palatine, whose father, Frank, was one of the groomsmen, was flower girl. She was in a cream gown and carried her flowers in a basket. Ring bearer was the bride's 7-year-old brother, Richard.

Dale chose his brother, Don, as best man, and besides Teresi, the groom was also attended by Graham McNeill and Rich Flubacher, Palatine; Jon Rische, Barrington, and the bride's brother, Rob.

A reception for 130 guests was held in the church after which the couple spent a week honeymooning in Jamaica.

A '73 graduate of Rolling Meadows High, Alicia attended Northern Illinois University for two years as a textile major. Dale received a degree in journalism from Harper College and is now a sales representative for Anro Color Service, Chicago.

Nylon notable for picking up color

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: My nylon lingerie is a mess. Some are dingy, and some of the white things have yellowed. Is there anything I can do to bring them back to their once-lovely white?—Gretchen Hankins

It depends on how long they've been stained. A stain allowed to stand for long often becomes part of the fabric. I suspect you've also been washing white nylons with other colors. Nylon is a notable scavenger as far as color is concerned. Anyway, try one of the popular fabric whiteners. These not only whiten dingy whites, but brighten colored garments. If this doesn't work, you'll have to move to a color remover.

Dear Dorothy: Here's a tip that may prove useful for those who haven't yet closed up their summer cottages. Last year, on leaving, we sprinkled powdered borax in the shower and around the edges of the bathroom floor. When we returned this last spring we found a mildew-free bathroom. We closed up shop a couple of weeks ago, and I did the same thing.—Nancy Bowen

Dear Dorothy: When I bake a pie crust, I prick it all over with a fork, but the crust still shrinks. What else might I do?—Joyce Valentine

Sounds as if you might be starting with not quite enough crust. You shouldn't have to stretch hard to cover the pan. I always watch a crust while it's baking; and if it looks like it's going to shrink, I pull it out and put a few more holes in the shell with a fork.

Dear Dorothy: I find that hair spray takes the ballpoint ink out of my husband's shirt pockets. I work it in just a little, then launder.—Claudia Zoll

400 guests greet bridal pair Sept. 13

Mr. and Mrs. Steven M. Swanson

Four hundred guests attended the wedding reception of a Sept. 13 bridal pair, Margaret Ann DiMatteo of Palatine and Steven M. Swanson of Crest Hill, Ill. The party at the Regency Hyatt House, Rosemont, followed their double ring ceremony in St. Giles Church, Oak Park.

The newlyweds then honeymooned at Dorado Beach, Puerto Rico, and are making their home in Crest Hill.

Margaret is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick DeMatteo Jr. Steven's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel R. Swanson of Galesburg.

The bride's sister, Katherine, was her maid of honor and two other sisters, Donna Owen, Oak Brook, and Mary Ellen Bond, Palatine, were bridesmaids along with Deb Svendsen, Hinsdale, the groom's sister, Pamela Schuetz of Mount Prospect and Elizabeth Hammond of Palatine.

SERVING THE groom as best man was his brother, Samuel Swanson III, Galesburg. Groomsmen included Robert Svendsen, Hinsdale; the bride's brother James DiMatteo; Michael Doyle, Mobile, Ala.; David Welch, Arlington, Va.; and Dirk Anderson, Arlington Heights.

The wedding guests were seated by Steven Lindley of Houston, Tex.; James B. Kite Jr., Oklahoma City; and William Kirkendall, Schaumburg.

Margaret graduated from Fremd High School, attended the University of Arizona and then graduated from Mundelein College, Chicago. Her husband attended Southern Methodist University and is employed at the Union National Bank in Joliet.

Drizzly weather forces garden wedding inside

Drizzly weather cancelled the garden wedding plans of Ann Youngren and Gary Larson, and just 45 minutes before the 11 a.m. appointed hour the service was switched to LeSueur Lutheran Church, LeSueur, Minn.

LeSueur is the home of Ann's parents, the Earl Youngrens. Gary's parents are the Ralph Larsons of Hoffman Estates.

Attending Ann for the double ring service was her college roommate, Nancy Thomas of Melville, Long Island, N.Y., and attending Gary was his brother Jeffrey. A reception for 150 guests was held at the Holiday House in St. Peter, Minn.

ANN AND GARY, who met at the University of Colorado, honeymooned at Gull Lake, Minn., and are now making their home in San Diego, Calif., where the bridegroom plans to work and the bride, a graduate of the university, plans to go on to para-legal school.

Next on the agenda

THE SPARES

Attorney Albert E. Jenner Jr., former minority counsel for the House Judiciary Committee in its deliberations on impeaching former President Nixon, will speak Sunday evening to the Spares Sunday Evening Club. The meeting will be held at 7:30 in Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, Glenview.

Tight girdle contributes to her hiatal hernia problem

My mother is older than 75 and says she cannot stand it without a tight girdle that pushes her insides up against her chest cavity. This has been going on for several years. Now she is always complaining about her stomach hurting her, and her children have all tried to tell her that this could be causing her problem. What is the danger of this?

In your mother's age group she has a good chance of having a hiatal hernia, part of the stomach sliding through the hole in the diaphragm. This is often associated with leaking acid digestive juice into the lower esophagus (food tube) -where it connects to the stomach.

Tight girdles, belts or other tight garments squeeze the stomach and cause it to push through the enlarged hole and may contribute to reflux of acid digestive juice. This can cause burning and pain in the pit of the stomach.

You should not assume that is all that is wrong with your mother. To avoid missing something more serious I think she should have an examination. The presence or absence of a hiatal hernia could be established, and if she has some other cause for her stomach distress it could be diagnosed and treated.

I would like to add that tight belts and girdles can interfere with the normal movement up and down of the diaphragm. This can affect the functions of the lungs. There are many reasons to avoid an excessively tight constriction around the abdomen.

You wrote that a man with atrial fibrillation was given a pacemaker by his doctor. You didn't mention what kind of heart disease the man had. My husband has arteriosclerotic heart disease with atrial fibrillation. I asked his doctor if pacemakers were used to control atrial fibrillation and he just said, "no."

Does it depend upon the type of heart disease? Would you please clarify your comments?

You must have misunderstood something you have read. Atrial fibrillation is a fast beating of the upper chambers of the heart, usually about 500 per minute, so fast that they twitch rapidly and do not contract.

The lower pumping chambers beat at a normal rate but are irregular. Sometimes they beat too fast or too slow and medicines may be needed for that.

A defibrillator is sometimes used to return the heart to a normal rhythm. This is not done in all cases but is useful in selected cases. It depends on what is causing the fibrillation, and the length of time a person has had it and the patient's overall medical status. This is not the same thing as a pacemaker. It is an instrument to deliver a sudden electric shock to the heart and jolt it back to normal.

If there is a complete block between the upper and lower chambers of the heart so that the lower chambers beat very slowly then a pacemaker is needed in some cases. This can occur in some patients with atrial fibrillation. I assume that your husband's lower heart chambers are beating at an adequate rate and that this is not his problem. Hence your doctor didn't go into details about the need or lack of need for an electrical pacemaker for him.

COUNTRY YARNS

Some things just naturally go together like homemade jam and hot rolls fresh from the oven. Or this slacks and top combination from the Haggar Country Yarns Collection.

The top is a rich oxford weave of 100% Dacron® polyester that's machine washable and dryable. Deep side vents and flap patch pockets accent shirt jacket styling for only $25.

The slacks are in coordinating plaids on heather-toned grounds for fall. Haggar's Comfort-Plus® styling with fashion pockets, and a gentlemen's flare complete a tasteful look for only $20.

Of course they're machine washable and dryable in 100% polyester doubleknit. So who says the cost of looking good is going up?

Only $45 for a complete Haggar outfit.

Trustees oppose ward elections

by KURT BAER

The Arlington Heights Village Board apparently is not prepared to endorse the change to geographic representation advocated by Village Pres. James T. Ryan.

Several board members contacted by the Herald Thursday suggested changes in the present at-large system of electing trustees that would bring the village government closer to district representation.

But none of the six trustees who could be reached for comment said they supported a total change to electing board members from specific geographic wards.

The board soon will meet to discuss Ryan's proposal that a referendum be held on setting up district representation in the village. Ryan said there was a "groundswell" of support for the change, which was a major issue in his successful campaign for election in April.

TWO TRUSTEES, Madeline Schroeder and Frank Palmatier, Thursday said steps could be taken to incorporate some of the advantages of district representation into the existing at-large set up.

Mrs. Schroeder said she advocates electing half of the eight trustees on the village board by district, with the other half continuing to be elected at large.

Palmatier proposed that trustees be assigned informally to various sections of the village but continue to be elected by the community as a whole.

"I do think there is a value in having district representation because people have someone on the board they can feel clos to," Mrs. Schroeder said.

"The problem is that it gives a very parochial viewpoint to the people

Answers easier than questions

Librarian a daily quizmaster

by LINDA PUNCH

Librarian Joy Kennedy vividly remembers her first encounter with a difficult reference question.

"This man came up to me and said he needed to know the relative effectiveness of silicone-based lubrication in a closed-engine system. I'm sitting there saying to myself, 'Please mister, don't do this to me,' " she said.

Mrs. Kennedy has served as a reference librarian at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library for nearly a year. In that time she has answered questions ranging from 'Where is the bathroom?' to 'What is the name of the Slovak-language paper in New York?' "

"Telephone questions are the most difficult. We never know what people are gling to ask," Mrs. Kennedy said.

ONE OF THE MOST puzzling questions came from a secretary who wanted to know, "What is in the deicers used on airplane runways and airplane wings?" she said. After pouring through books on aviation and aeronautics and a fruitless call to the transportation library at Northwestern University, the librarian finally found an answer at the Federal Aviation Administration.

Reference librarians tend to be jigsaw and crossword puzzle addicts, Mrs. Kennedy said.

"You have to interpret the questions the patrons ask. I don't think the people who designed the cataloging system realized that people's needs don't always fit the master plan," she said.

Reference librarians often find themselves in the position of answering legal or medical questions for patrons, a position they avoid.

"We get an awful lot of questions on law and medicine, and people get angry when we won't give them an opinion. We'll show them the books and give them dictionaries but we can't give opinions," she said.

A SUCCESSFUL reference librarian needs good training and a lot of luck, Mrs. Kennedy said. She cites one case in which a woman was trying to track down a series of stories about a balck detective with a name "Something like Napoleon."

"I found the name of a detective named 'Boney' and I thought of Napoleon Bonaparte. It turned out to be the right one," she said.

The Arlington librarians have been successful in answering a wide range of questions, including, "What is Plimpton 223?" "What was Stonewall Jackson's horse's name?" "How do you build a wind tunnel?" "What is the history of the kitchen stove?" and "How often do you feed a grass snake?"

But Mrs. Kennedy notes there is always one question that keeps "nagging at you."

"The one question — and I swear no one's ever found the real answer to this — is 'Why do outhouses have a moon on the door?' " she said.

Indian summer not over yet; may be cooler Sunday

Near record high temperatures continued Thursday with the weather service predicting more of the same today, Saturday and next week.

According to the U.S. Weather Bureau, no temperature records have been set during the recent weather period but the thermometer has registered highs above the seasonal norm of 62.

The high temperatures recently have hovered around the 80-degree mark but the record for a typical October week is near 85. Thursday the high temperature reached 80 degrtes. The record for that date was 85 set in 1963. Last Oct. 23, the high temperature was 66.

There is a strong southwest air flow aloft over the area which is causing the good weather, said James Buchanan, forecaster.

Buchanan said today and Saturday probably will bring partly sunny skies with a chance of showers. Today's high will be around 80, Saturday's around 75.

He said a front will pass through Sunday with temperatures near normal. The normal high is in the upper 50s, and lower 60s range.

A warming trend is expected in the area beginning Monday with temperatures again in the 70s, he said.

Buchanan noted that the 30-day outlook, from mid-October to mid-November will bring near or slightly below normal highs.Normal high is around 49 degrees for that period, he said.

Caroline Kennedy has brush with death in London

LONDON (UPI) — Caroline Kennedy narrowly escaped death or injury Thursday in an explosion of a suspected Irish Republican Army bomb under a a car that was to have taken her to art class in London just minutes later. A passerby was killed and six other persons injured in the blast.

The bomb went off under a Jaguar sedan owned by Miss Kennedy's host, Conservative Member of Parliament Hugh Fraser.

Fraser was about to use the car to drive the 17-year-old daughter of assassinated President John F. Kennedy to her art course at Sotheby Park Bernet, the art auctioneer. A telephone call from anther member of Parliament delayed him.

THE EXPLOSION broke the Jaguar in two, flipped it on its roof and set a blaze still smoldering four hours later.

"Normally I would have been in the car when this happened, but I was on the telephone, said Fraser, his forehead slightly cut by flying glass.

"Caroline is very shaken, but she's all right. She had just finished breakfast and was in her bedroom.

The blast killed Prof. Gordon H. Fairley, a cancer research specialist, as he walked his French Poodle past the sprawling four-story home where Caroline is living while taking a London art course.

None of the injured was seriously hurt.

FRASER, a hard-line IRA opponent, has received many death threats recently, his secretary said.

"There is no doubt it was meant for me. Someone obviously wants to blow me up." Fraser, 57, said the bomb would only harden his determination to crack down on terrorism.

Miss Kennedy and the Frasers left the house shortly after the blast to stay with friends nearby.

Looking pale and distraught, Miss Kennedy stared straight ahead and said nothing as police guided her into a Blue Datsun.

"She is far too shocked to talk," said Lady Maclean, Fraser's sister. "She is too young. Surely you can see that."

A RESIDENT of the house where she was first taken said Caroline telephoned her mother, Jaqueline Kennedy Onassis, with assurances that she was not hurt.

The blast rocked Campden Hill Square, one of London's most fashionable neighborhoods where many government leaders and diplomats live.

Tessia Oandason, a 32-year-old Filipino servant in the Fraser house was hospitalized with shock. The other victims were so slightly hurt they refused medical aid.

Unofficial speculation linked the blast with life sentences given less than 24 hours earlier to three Irishmen and a London girl for planting a pub bomb that killed 12 persons earlier this year.

Override try fails

House school aid vote stalled

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — A final House vote on the restoration of $81 million cut from the state's education budget by Gov. Daniel Walker was postponed Thursday night after falling three votes short of the 89 needed for override of the veto.

The postponement — until at least the first week in November — came despite a rare and dramatic appearance all day by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley in which he urged the money be restored.

The preliminary vote was 86-86. Three House members were absent and the final two did not vote.

TWO OF THE absentees were Chicago Republicans who are expected to vote with Daley in favor of restoration when they return.

Daley, who seldom makes public appearances in the capital, began the day at an override rally at Springfield High School. He said the issue of school funding is not partisan. Asked if Walker is right when he says an override will lead to higher state taxes, Daley said, "Harry Truman used to say some people get so used to telling falsehoods that they can't recognize the truth."

Later, Daley told a joint meeting of the House and Senate that there is room in the state budget for full funding of the state-aid formula without higher taxes. He also said, "If we do need taxes, then we should enact them.

"The trouble with too many people is they don't have the guts to tell the truth," Daley said.

MANY LAWMAKERS who argued for an override of Walker's school aid reduction said it is the only way to prevent local taxes from going up.

"You're going to have either higher local taxes or a cut in services," said Clyde Choate, D-Anna.

The House also postponed action on Walker's cuts in "categorical" grants to local school districts — money earmarked for such specific purposes as bilingual education and pupil transport. That veto was up for consideration when weary members voted suddenly to adjourn until Nov. 3.

State jobless unit to be reorganized

The much criticized Illinois unemployment compensation operations will be split into three regions in the Chicago metropolitan area and persons from private industry hired to administer them, officials said Thursday.

I. Lawrence Richardson, administrator of the Employment Security Bureau, said 65 to 70 per cent of the state's 350,000 unemployed persons are located in northeast Illinois. He said having only one person directing such a big operation "was just an impossible job."

Richardson said he hoped to have three "top managers" from outside government running the new regions by early November. Each region was expected to have eight or nine offices.

Woman files sex-bias complaint

A former Palatine Police Dept. employe has filed a sex-discrimination complaint, alleging she was dismissed last week because she dated a radio operator. Bratcher has denied comment except to say there is more to the dismissal than the dating incidents.

Dist. 62 offers teachers $100 more

The Des Plaines Dist. 62 Board of Education has increased a teacher pay offer in an effort to avert a teachers' strike next week. The board agreed late Wednesday to increase its offer from $400 to $500, the first new salary proposal presented by the board since spring. The increase would raise the base salary from $9,350 to $9,850. Teachers are demanding a 10 per cent increase in the base, or $10,285. A strike vote calling for a Nov. 3 walkout has been set for Tuesday if no settlement is reached.

2 Schaumburg policemen injured

Two Schaumburg policemen were injured Thursday night when they were struck by a van driven by two men trying to escape investigation for an auto break-in at the Woodfield Shopping Center. Patrolmen Robert Cooksey and Michael Egan were taken to Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, where they were released after treatment. The two fleeing men were arrested later along Roselle Road by Roselle and DuPage County Sheriff's Police after the van went off a roadway and rolled over, police said.

Ford federal spending proposal nixed

Panel votes to continue 1975 tax cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ways and Means Committee voted Thursday to continue 1975 tax cuts at about the same level into 1976 and rejected President Ford's proposal to link a tax cut with a ceiling on federal spending.

If the committee's 21-16 action is approved by Congress, tax withholding rates would remain about the same when a new tax year starts Jan. 1.

But a year-end veto fight with Ford would almost certainly follow, and if no solution is reached before the end of the year, withholding rates would jump up to the same level as before current tax cuts were enacted last spring.

The vote in the committee divided along party and ideological lines, with all Republicans and four Democrats voting against both the Democratic plan and against a move to junk the Ford plan. All 21 aye votes were Democrats.

The $12.7 billion cut, which compares with the current annual tax rate cut of $12 billion, was proposed by committee Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore. It was included in the committee's large tax revision bill which is expected to go to the House floor early next month.

Essentially, the Democratic plan would leave no family paying more or receiving less than about $1 a week in tax withholding. Ford's plan would cut taxes somewhat below 1975's temporary cuts.

Ford's specific proposal — a $395 billion fiscal 1977 spending ceiling coupled with a $28 billion tax cut, about $11 billion more than current cuts — never was specifically debated by the committee.

Instead, Rep. Joe Waggonner, D-La., moved first to approve Ullman's $12.7 billion proposal subject to House budget committee action on an equal spending ceiling. When that was ruled out of order, he moved to delay action on a tax cut until the House Budget Committee agrees on a fiscal 1977 spending ceiling.

Twenty-one Democrats on the tax-writing committee combined to outvote Waggonner, three other Democrats and all 12 Republican members, defeating the Waggonner motion 21-16.

Debate generally broke down along party lines with Waggonner the only Democrat actively pushing a Ford-type combination of tax cuts and spending. The other three Democrats voting with Waggonner were Reps. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., Omar Burleson, D-Tex., and Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind.

In other economic news:

Detroit automakers Thursday reported their best mid-month new car sales performance in 17 months — up 37 per cent from a year ago — but cautiously scheduled new layoffs to avoid bulging inventories of the successful 1976 models.

The 234,670 cars sold in the Oct. 11-20 period was within 2 per cent of the same period two years ago, just before the Arab oil embargo pushed the industry into its deepest and longest sales slump since the Great Depression.

General Motors sales were up 43 per cent; Ford was up 28 per cent; Chrysler said its sales improved 33 per cent, and American Motors reported a 53.5 per cent jump from year-ago levels.

Syrian forces on limited alert in the Golan Heights

by United Press International

Syria has declared a limited army alert on the Golan Heights, possibly to coincide with renewal of the U. N. peacekeeping mandate in the Sinai Desert between Israel and Egypt, an Israeli government official said Thursday.

"A certain degree of alert has been declared in the Syrian forces. We don't know how much," the official told reporters.

The official said he could find nothing "in our own moves that could justify the alert except the replacement of one unit that caused movement." But he speculated the alert was timed to coincide with the renewal of the U.N. peacekeeping mandate in the Sinai.

The mandate, due to have expired Friday, was renewed Thursday by the U.N. Security council in New York. The 15-member council voted 13-0, with China and Iraq abstaining, to extend the mandate of the 3,987-man force until Oct. 24, 1976.

The U. N. peace-keeping mandate permitting 1,250 soldiers to patrol the Golan Heights between Israel and Syria expires Nov. 30.

Both Syria and Israel declared a full alert of their frontline Golan forces last year just before the U. N. mandate on the Heights was renewed for the first time.

In Cairo, meanwhile, diplomatic sources said Thursday Egypt had recalled its ambassador to Syria "for consultations" on the badly strained relations between the two Arab countries.

The ambassador, Hassan Fahmi Abdel-Meguid, arrived in Cairo Wednesday.

Relations between Egypt and Syria, allies in the October, 1973, war against Israel, have worsened steadily since Egypt and Israel signed a second-stage disengagement pact last month. Syria denounced the agreement as a sellout of the Arab cause.

A bomb exploded in a restaurant early Thursday in the Gulf of Aqaba port of Eilat at Israel's southernmost tip. Police said seven patrons were wounded in the blast, but the severity of their injuries was not known.

Police sources said initial indications were that the blast resulted from a feud rather than Arab guerrilla action.

Possible Zenith TV radiation cited

The Food and Drug Administration said Thursday it is investigating a possible radiation problem affecting about 1 million Zenith color television sets in use across the country. A spokesman said the problem appears to be a "marginal one." No exact identification of the sets involved is available, the FDA said, except they were all manufactured between the spring of 1974 and the spring of 1975.

Officials of Baker Beech-Nut Corp., H. J. Heinz Co., and Gerber Products Co. told UPI they believe baby foods were unfairly singled out in reports of new FDA regulation on lead levels.

36-year rule may be near end

Franco's blood flow is faltering

MADRID (UPI) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco, 82, suffered a setback Thursday in his struggle to survive the massive heart attack that felled him two days ago. The cabinet gathered at his El Pardo Palace and there were indications Franco's 36-year rule may be near an end.

A bulletin issued by 11 doctors treating the aged "Caudillo" reported the setback and said "early signs of another coronary insufficiency appeared" — meaning that the blood flow to his heart was faltering and that there were signs of an imminent heart failure.

Sources at the palace said Franco was under sedatives, but not actually dying. But the fact that Franco's ministers had been summoned to the palace, if not to his actual bedside, appeared to indicate a crisis was imminent.

Top Spanish officials met to discuss the possibility Franco would relinquish power permanently to his designated successor, Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, 37, who would become chief of state and Spain's first king in 44 years.

Prime Minister Carlos Arias Navarro, several members of the cabinet and the President of Parliament went to Franco's Pardo Palace late in he evening "to inquire about his health," Spanish news agency reports said.

There were unconfirmed reports that army units were ordered confined to the barracks and provincial authorities advised to be on standby.

Franco suffered a massive heart attack Tuesday but earlier was reported recovering and preparing to attend a cabinet meeting Friday to discuss the threat of war with Morocco over Moroccan plans to invade Spanish Sahara with an unarmed rabble of 350,000 men, women and children.

Thursday night a team of 11 doctors treating Franco said he "suffered a setback" in his recovery from the earlier heart attack and that "early signs of another coronary insufficiency have appeared."

As "El Caudillo (the leader)" struggled against the onset of another possibly fatal attack, the government met in a marathon 10-hour session. It was repeatedly interrupted so Prime Minister Arias could see visitors, and officials said such interruptions were almost unheard of.

One of the visitors was Cristobal Martinez-Bordiu Marquis de Villaverde, Franco's son-in-law and chief medical adviser who has previously acted as a family spokesman. He is a heart specialist and a close friend of Dr. Christiaan Barnard who visited him earlier this week.

Martinez-Bordiu also visited Juan Carlos and Alejandro Rodriguez de Valcarcel who, as President of parliament and the Council of the Realm, is the man constitutionally responsible for putting in motion the wheels for an orderly transfer of power to the prince.

Franco handed over power temporarily to Juan Carlos in July, 1974, when he suffered a near fatal attack of phlebitis, the circulatory problem that has plagued former President Richard M. Nixon. But he returned to power when he recovered.

All indications were that the handover this time — whenever it occurs — will be permanent. In fact, political sources said Juan Carlos himself was unwilling to take over again on a temporary basis.

Efforts mount to delay Sahara march

MARRAKESH, Morocco (UPI) — Morocco's King Hassan II Thursday told Spanish Saharans "we will meet soon," but diplomatic efforts mounted on three fronts to delay the march of 350,000 Moroccan men, women and children into the phosphate-rich colony Morocco claims.

The Moroccan national news agency reported, meanwhile, that a 20,000-strong vanguard of "peace marchers" began pulling in at midday at Tarfaya, 10 miles north of the border with the colony and the final assembly point for next weeks' march.

In New York, the United Nations Security Council unanimously voted Wednesday night to instruct U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim to intervene in the crisis. The council urged "restraint and moderation" on all sides.

In Madrid, the Spanish national news agency CIFRA said a high Moroccan official would arrive there by Friday with full powers to negotiate with the Spanish government.

Spain favors a U.S.-approved plebiscite in the northwest African territory, bordered by Morocco, Algeria, Mauritania and the Atlantitc Ocean.

Spanish emissary Jose Solis Ruiz, who conferred earlier in the week with the Moroccan king at his temporary royal headquarters here, said: "We have opened a door to a settlement. We have about two weeks to reach one. Armed confrontation is neither possible nor convenient."

His words were echoed by Alfred Atherton, U.S. assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern affairs, who also met with Hassan this week.

"It is within the jurisdiction of the United Nations to find an arrangement," Atherton said. "The doors of a diplomatic solution are still open."

Undaunted, however, Hassan Thursday reaffirmed he would personally lead the desert trek of 350,000 of his subjects into the Spanish Sahara. The Moroccan National news agency said the king's sisters, Princess Lalla Aicha and Princess Lalla Fatima, would join Hassan at the head of the marchers.

"We will meet soon," the monarch said in a radio-television speech beamed to the territory's 88,000 phosphate miners and nomadic herdsmen — few of whom own radios or TV sets.

The Moroccan government tobacco monopoly announced it was putting out three new brands of cigarettes in honor of the march: "Our Sahara," "Green March" and "All Faith."

Officials oppose ward elections

elected because they are more concerned about their individual district than the community at large."

STATE STATUTES allow mixed representation of this kind, Mrs. Schroeder said, adding that she is unaware of any community in the state that has adopted it.

"It's a kind of compromise where you get the best of both worlds," she said.

If a referendum on district representation is approved before the next general village election in 1977, the entire village board would have to run for election, she said.

Palmatier said assigning trustees unofficially to particular geographic districts would help trouble-shoot problems and give residents a feeling of identity on the board.

"I appreciate that some citizens feel reluctant to call a trustee," Palmatier said. "But they shouldn't. All our numbers are in the telephone book.

"I HAVE ALWAYS felt, and still feel that the village would be better served by a continuance of trustees elected at large. This way there is a much better cross-section and greater authority vested in each trustee.

"The tendency in a system where trustees are elected by districts is to reduce the importance of the individual trustee and correspondingly increase the importance of the mayor and village administration," he said.

Each trustee now has a "mandate from the entire community," and can support equally the needs of different areas of the village, Palmatier said.

Trustee Richard Durava said he opposed district representation "because, as a citizen, I want to have an equal shot at getting rid of everybody on the village board I don't like, not just the one trustee from my district."

A ward system makes it possible for political organizations to establish enclaves, or "safe seats" on the village board. "If your motive is democracy then give all of the people a chance to get at all of their elected officials," he said.

Richard Durava

Madeline Schroeder

TRUSTEE O. V. ANDERSON said he has changed his thinking on district representation for Arlington Heights.

"Some time ago I tended to think it was a great idea. But now I think it would be playing politics — one side against another. I think it would turn the village board into a political football," Anderson said.

Trustee Robert Miller also opposes geographic representation. "The at-large representation in the village now is more than adequate. I think people are actually better served then with geographic representation."

"If enough of the public is interested, then we should have a referendum. But I'd like somehow to have that (interest) shown to me," Miller said.

Trustee August C. Bettman said he was undecided. "I see some advantages and some disadvantages. But I am not greatly opposed to letting the people decide, it that's what the board wants to do."

The two other trustees on the village board — Alice Harms and David Griffin — could not be reached for comment Thursday. However, Griffin, Ryan's opponent in the last election, opposed a change to district representation.

'The Teahouse of the August Moon' set today

Rolling Meadows High School will continue its theatrical production today and Saturday of "The Teahouse of the August Moon." Performances will be held at the school, 2901 Central Rd., at 8 p.m. each evening.

Ronald Raben is directing the play, assisted by student director Steven Blake. Thomas Schuler is the designer. Seats are $1.75 and $2 reserved, and $1.50 unreserved.

Poet Bill Fritsch learned:

Muse can visit most anywhere

LIFE'S WORLD

In a world of dreams many do live, to escape a life they cannot live;
To live in a dream of great joy
so fair, leaving behind all life's despair.
But they do not know and fail to see, that this world, their world, better can be.

Bill Fritsch

by JOE SWICKARD

The muse can visit in the most unlikely places. The blithe spirit found Bill Fritsch sleeping in a Hersey High School study hall.

"I was sleeping in study hall and I awoke with about five minutes left. I realized that I had to write a reaction to the play 'The Glass Menagerie.' That was the first poem," said Fritsch.

That first effort, "Life's World" led eventually to his first collection of poems, "a growing grass," published this month by Vantage Press.

HIS POEMS AND their publication reflect the low key, yet direct approach, that is Fritsch.

"I had never published before. I had tried a few magazines but my poems were rejected. A friend said I had enough for a collection so I sent them out and I was accepted the first time," he said.

His writing is "not for money or for a profession," he said. Rather, it is "a relief valve. When the stress builds up, the writing helps vent it. It's a relief from the pressure."

The path of a poet is not always easy. It is a personal expression, one that the poet may be reluctant to share with others.

Fritsch's English teacher at Hersey, Lucille Jevitz, was the one who first read his work and encouraged him to continue.

OF HIS POETIC reaction to Tennesse Williams' play, he said, "She liked it and she encouraged me. I felt free to show her what I had done. Miss Jevitz never did anything to cause me to distrust her. Poetry is something you don't show to everyone when you're a junior in high school."

Fritsch continued his poetry while attending Carthage College in Kenosha, Wis. By the time he graduated in 1974 he had compiled what would become his first slim volume of verse.

The poems are in chronological order. The reader may be tempted to seek more in the poems, something Fritsch both encourages and rejects.

He doesn't want to be psychoanalyzed through his works. But he wants the reader to follow the development of differing styles and influences.

SOME OF HIS works are influenced by E. E. Cummings, especially the physical make up and visual impact of the structure.

"They can strike you visually. They don't have to be read aloud. By using the forms you can attain certain levels of understanding," he said.

Fritsch now teaches sixth grade in Waukesha, Wis. He started a literary magazine for the fifth and sixth graders.

"We took the ditto masters and cut them in half so it would have the appearance of a book. There are so many things the kids write. I figure, why write if no one is going to read it? The magazine gives them an audience," he said.

The bearded Fritsch wants to continue teaching and writing, but he plans continued growth. Secondary schools, with more specialized teaching assignments, appeals to him as does a growing interest in photography and other visual arts.

"You are given a certain number of years and you should do as much as you can. Everyone is given certain talents to do as much as possible. You should do it as long as it is healthy . . . There is so much you take in, but you must have output as well," he said.

". . . Time runs out your/eye, flows through/your veins and is/cast out of your Soul," he wrote.

Bill Fritsch wrote at Hersey

Bill Fritsch wrote his first poem, "Life's World," while he was a student at Hersey High School. Encouraged by his teacher, Lucille Jevitz, he has continued writing poetry. "Still" was written in 1973 and appears in his first book, "A Growing Grass."

But lies leaf — still
At home — earth black
Blade alive — world green
Morning break — heart

Bird awing — free ahigh
Summer's burn — haze afire
Awaken souls — forest still
Red rich earth — black, still,

Defense attorney charges:

'Fulle refused Origer land deal'

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Builder Thomas Origer offered County Comr. Floyd Fulle partnership in a land trust to obtain zoning assistance, a defense attorney charged during the Fulle extortion trial Thursday.

"You've got the document there, but I don't recall it," Origer said during cross-examination by attorney Arthur Zimmerman.

Origer, who testified Wednesday that he paid Fulle about $39,000 to obtain county zoning in the Northwest suburbs between 1966 and 1970, identified his signature on the document.

Zimmerman produced a copy of a three-line "limited partnership agreement" to show that Fulle refused the land offer.

FULLE, 666 Laurel, Des Plaines, was indicted Feb. 13 on federal extortion, perjury and tax fraud charges.

"You don't recall the date at which time you left this document and requested he (Fulle) become your partner and assist you in zoning matters?" Zimmerman asked.

"He threw you out of the office," Zimmerman said.

The alleged "agreement" included a handwritten March 25, 1967 date, about a year after Fulle allegedly accepted $2,500 in cash from Origer to push county zoning of 7.5 acres in unincorporated Maine Township.

Fulle's name is not included in the agreement. Two spaces provided for the name of a 50 per cent partner with Origer in Citizens Bank and Trust Co. trust 938 are blank.

Zimmerman did not identify the location of the bank trust property.

"I don't recall any conversation regarding that document," Origer said.

ORIGER, 274 Dover Circle, Palatine, identified a county official who accepted a $2,500 zoning payoff about three years ago and two suburban mayors who benefited from Origer's building projects.

County official and former zoning administrator Bernard J. O'Brien, Oak Park, was indicted Feb. 13 on federal tax fraud charges, pleaded guilty and was sentenced June 25 to six months in prison. Federal officials did not identify O'Brien's unreported income during the sentencing hearing.

Zimmerman alleged that the $2,500 was in "marked" bills. "Did you ever try to give Mr. Fulle marked money?" he asked. "No," Origer answered.

Origer, who testified for 3½ hours Thursday, said he paid the $2,500 to O'Brien. Origer insisted that Fulle was the only Republican board member to receive zoning payoffs. Although O'Brien received the $2,500 from Origer, payoffs of more than $65,000 were funneled to board Democrats by zoning attorney Robert Haskins, Origer said.

THE TWO SUBURBAN officials identified by Origer, are Joseph Zizzo, former village president of Harwood Heights, and Donald Stephens, mayor of Rosemont. Zizzo, who is expected to testify against Fulle, purchased an apartment building from Origer in 1964 or 1965.

"That was a legitimate price," Zimmerman asked. "It was a discounted price," Origer answered. Zizzo also benefited as the agent in a $1.2 million Origer land exchange, Origer said.

Zizzo will testify about the purchase of a Florida vacation home by Fulle. Fulle told a federal grand jury last year that the purchase price was $35,000, but Zizzo has said the price was $45,000, including a $20,000 cash down payment.

The trial will continue in Federal Court today at 9:30 a.m.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices rallied in moderate trading Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which gained 2.75 Wednesday after a seesaw session, climbed 5.59 to 855.16. The blue chip indicator moved ahead in the afternoon following an uncertain opening. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 0.53 to 91.24. The price of an average NYSE common share added 17 cents.

Advances outdistanced declines, 911 to 480, among the 1,823 issues crossing the ticker. Sales totaled 17,900,000 shares, compared with 16,060,000 shares turned over Wednesday.

Trans World Airlines was the most active Big Board issue, up ¼ to 6¾ on 210,100 shares, including two blocks of 100,000 shares at 6½. Tenneco warrants "A" followed, off 7-64 to 9-64 on 189,200 traded. Howard Johnson was third active, up ½ to 15¼ on 180,600 shares.

The motors and chemicals paced the rally, while the glamors recorded some point-size gains.

The nation's automakers reported higher mid-October sales with General Motors adding 1 to 56¼, Ford 5/8 to 41½, and Chrysler 5/8 to 10¾.

Prices closed slightly higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The price of an average share picked up a penny. Volume totaled 1,576,000 shares, against 1,431,000 shares traded Wednesday.

Chalk whitens Dover's cliffs

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Hilary Kuzuw, 11, of Somerset, N.J., for his question:

WHAT CAUSED THE WHITE CLIFFS OF DOVER?

On clar days the French people of Calais can look across the English Channel and see the famous White Cliffs of Dover, glistening in the sunshine. There are other white chalk cliffs along the French and English shores on opposite sides of the narrow channel. They have stodd there since the Ice Age, but their story began millions of years ago — under the sea.

The geography of the earth is constantly changing, inch by patient inch. The shores of the great oceans are spreading, causing the continents to drift like lazy rafts around the globe. Mountains rise and decline, new layers are added to the earth's crust, often with the help of living creatures.

For example, the chalky White Cliffs of Dover were built by foraminifera, tiny sea creatures that deposited layers of their discarded shells on the ocean floor.

Their mini shells were made of chalky calcium carbonate, extracted from salty sea water. This was during the Cretaceous Period of geological history, which began about 130 million years ago and lasted for roughy 70 million years.

During this patient chalk-building period the world's climate was mild and the global ocean was brimful of water. Shallow seas slopped over on much of the land. They covered southern England and parts of northern Europe. These warm, shallow waters suited the teeming foraminifera just fine. They thrived and multiplied. Through the ages, thick beds of chalk were deposited all the way from Scandinavia to southern Russia.

The Cretaceous Period was followed by climate changes, and new mountains began to arise. The mighty dinosaurs departed, and the age of the mammals arrived. In Europe and Asia, the land was lifted by the growing Alps and Himalayas. This changed the shorelines, and some of the great chalk deposits rose above the water.

Then came the Ice Age, when much of the world's water was frozen and trapped in enormous glaciers. There was less water in the ocean, and the sea level sank. More of the old chalk beds became dry land. In one region the rising Alps and the declining sea level hoisted aloft the white cliffs along the shores of the English Channel.

The chalky material in these snowy white cliffs is very clean, embedded with hard gobs of flint. This suggests that the Cretaceous seas were surrounded by dry, sandy deserts. For little or no muddy clay was mixed with the chalky shells. The flint nodules could have been formed from sand, blown in from the arid deserts.

Andy sends a seven volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Timothy Skorski, 7, of West Warwick, R. I., for his question:

HOW DO HURRICANES GET STARTED:

Hurricanes are made in the weathery sky when things up there are just right to get them started. The right place is high over a warm, sunny sea. The sun beats down for days on the shining waves. The air above gets warm and steamy. This huge mass of uncomfortable air begins to rise. Then from far and wide, cooler air begins to huff and puff and blow into the middle of the baby hurricane.

This causes a weathery tangle. Clouds begin to form, and the sky grows stormy. The windy air blows into the middle, and there it rises up to the sky above. As the huge storm grows stronger, the spinning earth twists its winds around. They swirl around in a great spiral, trailing their stormy clouds. Now the huge hurricane is ready to leave home — and weathermen fly above to track its path. If it seems headed for the shore, the people are warned. If it stays out to sea, it soon wears itself out and dies down.

East's spade discards baffle South

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Anyone can look at the hands and see that in spite of the bad diamond break and the loss of the spade finesse, South can take a club finesse and make his slam. Then how did expert South wind up in the soup?

It was because an even better player sat East. East won the first spade and led the suit back. South started after diamonds and East had to make three discards. The average good player would chuck one club right away; not our great expert. His first two discards were spades and then and only then did he jettison a club.

South cashed dummy's last spade and East let another club go. The ace-king and queen of hearts and ace of clubs were cashed leaving West with the jack of hearts and 10 of diamonds while East was holding on to the queen and 10 of clubs.

South knew where the high diamond was. He didn't know who had the jack of hearts and who had the queen of clubs. He led a second club from dummy. East played the 10 and South decided that East had started with four clubs to the 10. He rose with the king and another slam had bit the dust.

25 years of Bob Hope tonight

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC led the Nielsen ratings last week, with a superstar assist from televising the World Series, and now it hopes to score big with another tried and true winner — Bob Hope and his team of all-stars.

The title of the show is "Texaco Presents a Quarter Century of Bob Hope on Television," to be aired today from 7 to 9 p.m.

The program is a melange of spots in color and black-and-white, cut from Hope television shows over the years, with guests ranging from Ingrid Bergman to Flip Wilson, appearing in no particular order.

THE RESULT IS an odd mixture — the show opens with a Hope monologue taped at the last minute so the jokes could be as fresh as this week's headlines.

From there on its best moments are nostalgic as almost 100 guests appear, from then Gov. Nelson Rockefeller introducing Hope at a banquet to Jimmy Durante singing "September Song."

The humor is uneven and almost invariably broad instead of sharp, since Hope's monologues always have been topical and therefore not included here, except for a segment jibing at incumbent presidents.

For some, watching Hope and Jackie Gleason dressed up in women's clothes, with grapefruits where their decolletage ought to be, just isn't funny.

But to be reminded in black-and-white what a funny man Jerry Colonna was makes it all worth while, and many of the song-and-dance numbers are fun to watch again.

Here's a show with something of great appeal for everyone, and no performer except Hope is on long enough to provide a sitting target. And Hope can take care of himself.

The Descent of Man

The almanac

(by United Press International)

Today is Friday, Oct. 24, the 297th day of 1975 with 68 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Mercury, Mars and Saturn.

The evening star is Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Scorpio.

American playwright Moss Hart was born Oct. 24, 1904.

On this day in history:

• In 1861, the first telegram was transmitted across the United States from California Chief Justice Stephen Field to President Abraham Lincoln in Washington.

• In 1939, women's hosiery made of nylon went on sale for the first time.

• In 1945, U.S. Secretary of State James Byrnes announced the United Nations' charter had gone into effect following Soviet ratification.

• In 1973, President Nixon put U.S. armed forces on a worldwide alert, but the Mideast crisis eased as U.N. observers started patrolling the Suez front under a second cease-fire agreement.

A thought for the day: American novelist William Faulkner said, "I believe that man will not merely endure, he will prevail."

The way we see it

Stubbornness had key role

During the course of the Dist. 54 negotiations and strike, we have muted our comment on the conduct of the two sides because we felt it more important to urge an early settlement than to assess blame for the deteriorating situation.

While neither side, obviously, is blameless, it became particularly evident during the past week that this unnecessary strike resulted primarily from the school board's stubbornness.

The three-day strike ended Wednesday morning after teachers voted 4 to 1 to accept a 10 per cent salary increase.

Although money was the only item up for negotiation in the district this year, it became clear very quickly that the board was more concerned about its own prestige than parting with taxpayers' dollars.

What has gone on is a monument to obstinancy on the part of the board.

In early October the board flatly refused mediation after the teachers asked that a neutral third party enter the talks. The board's response, that it was solely their duty to set salaries in the district, did not show common sense.

When teachers voted to strike and went into 11th hour negotiations to reach a settlement, the board reacted by passing a resolution stating striking teachers would be fired and the board would not continue negotiating if a walkout were staged.

When the strike began Friday, the board sanctimoniously stuck by their guns in following the resolution to the letter.

Informal negotiations among attorneys took place during the weekend and a settlement was reached that appeared mutually agreeable. Instead of jumping on the chance to have school in session Monday, the board refused to initial the agreement until teachers were back at work.

The board declined an offer by the county superintendent of schools and the Illinois Office of Education to help mediate the dispute. The district returned to the bargaining table only when strongly urged to do so by a Circuit Court judge.

The strike has had a destructive impact on the Dist. 54 community, as we feared it would. People have taken sides, and neighbor has turned against neighbor as a result.

The teachers are not blameless, for it is they who called the strike and participated in it. But if the teachers were legally wrong the board was most certainly wrong in not taking sensible action to avert and cut short the walkout.

Official's proper role

Dr. Edgar Feldman has a lot to learn about what it means to be an elected public official.

Although Feldman has served on the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 board for a year and has been board president since September, he showed during the just-concluded teachers' strike that he doesn't understand his job.

Late last week, Dr. Feldman complained that he was receiving phone calls at home and at work from the general public:

"They (the union) are trying to disrupt my medical practice. My phone number as president of the school board is the number of the Dist. 54 office."

Elected officials are supposed to be lightning rods for public opinion. Within reasonable limits they should be accessible by phone at either home or at work. The best officials encourage such accessibility, for they need to know what the people are saying.

Parks vote endorsed

The Herald endorses Saturday's River Trails Park District referendum to annex a section of apartments and condominium apartments southwest of Palatine and Wolf roads in Prospect Heights.

The park district is small but provides a wide range of programs to young and old and recently completed additions to its recreation center in Mount Prospect to serve more residents. Six neighborhood parks are available with tennis courts, playground equipment and swimming pools.

It will cost the new residents 39 cents per $100 assessed valuation if the annexation is approved. Park officials plan to purchase a new park site in the area to be annexed and set up programs at Stevenson School and Robert Frost School to specifically serve the new residents.

The River Trails District wants to provide recreational facilities for the estimated 3,500 residents now served by no park district. The referendum deserves a positive vote by voters of that area.

A toot for U of I Band

I enjoyed reading Mike Klein's article on "Dear ol' Dad at U. of I." in the Oct. 18 Herald. Our oldest son is a freshman student in the School of Music at U. of I. This was a big first for my husband, going to U. of I. Our son auditioned for the "Marching Illini" in August and is playing trumpet in the band. A big first for band parents. Somehow you missed in your article any recognition of the "Marching Illini."

It took 12 years of continuous practice and study in rhythm theory, harmony, etc., to be able to play well enough to be accepted into this university's band. Many writers and reporters think in terms of football, beers and cheers only. What would that stadium be like without a great marching band playing? Can you imagine playing football (or any other sport) and no "music"? Newspapers (all) dedicate one whole sestion, daily, to sports and never give credit to an art that is an international language.

IN NO WAY CAN a sports persons play actively, long. It's only for a short time in life. Music is studied 12 months a year, not just for a season. Music has no short-lived varsity team. They have a long lived camaraderie. Don't forget, too, "keep music alive" next time you write homecoming, football, queens, cheerleaders, pom pons, etc. Be mindful of the marching band members who take hours of practice in drill, maneuvers plus playing. These people are a tremendous show too.

'Born Innocent' film airing on TV protested

We object to the showing of "Born Innocent" this Saturday, Oct. 25 at 8 p.m. on NBC-TV. It is an unintelligent, worthless, vulgar movie with no moral in it, showing graphic scenes inside a girls' detention home. One girl was stripped and raped with a broom handle. Last year after this show was aired, two young girls in San Francisco were assaulted in the same way by some children who had seen the movie, resulting in an $11 million suit against the local station and NBC-TV.

We feel this movie should not be shown, and we are doing our utmost by calling NBC-TV. We are hoping through this letter that more people will become concerned and voice their objections to NBC-TV by also calling. If the public needs to be educated to this type of violence we feel it would be better presented in a documentary form with less sensationalism.

It's time we quit letting the producers decide what is a profit-making for them instead of what is good for our society.

Who'll use empty schools?

Without very much publicity the residents of the Harper College district passed a bond issue to include a second campus. The $2.1 million for the second campus is just the beginning. To follow is the development cost, new buildings, increased staff, pensions, etc.

Within a few days, the people of the district are informed of a projected decrease in enrollment of 22 per cent in eight Dist. 214 high schools.

It is quite possible that two of the Dist. 214 high schools will be closed.

Who will use these closed h igh schools?

School strike upsetting

I don't really believe that the teachers took any great pride in going on strike. It appears as if that was the only resource remaining.

I did find the situation somewhat confusing Friday, because I was under the impression that if an ongoing educational program was not in progress, schools would be closed. Not so. I made an appearance at junior high (which my son attends) seeking answers to some questions I had. Some of my questions were answered, some unanswered, and from what I viewed it appeared to me that an educational program was not in session and the intent was to keep the school open. I accepted the possibility that there were two trains of thought as to what an ongoing educational program should be. Off to the elementary school (which my son attends). There, my questions were honestly answered by the principal, and lo and behold, my faith restored when a teacher was kind enough to express her definition as to what an educational program should be. We were on the same wavelength.

It was evident that an educational program was not in effect, but these two schools remained opened — junior high til 2 p.m., elementary til 3 p.m.

By 10:15 a.m., Friday, I believed I had the information I needed and my sons remained at home.

I think I'm going to have to admit, to the fact, that I woke up this morning feeling somewhat critical, because I would also like to comment on the leadership of the negotiating parties. At times, I did detect the elements of games adults play. This should be a no - no.

Would also like to comment on remarks appearing in Saturday's Herald:

Students are being cheated of an education — I don't think so. Many times, without hesitation, students are removed from school for vacations, appointments, etc.

Students are being taught it's permissible to break the law. Are any of us truly innocent in this area? While driving, if we ever made a U-turn, parked in a no-parking area, exceeded the speed limit, we, too, are guilty of breaking the law.

Making radicals of students, viewing and questioning a strike in progress, should hold no damaging influences.

Band members deserve courtesy

I am a member of the Rolling Meadows High School Band, and feel that not enough credit is given to the band. Every week many people show up at the football games and those who are courteous enough to stay and watch the half-time performance only watch for mistakes; they comment only on the missed notes and on the kids who are out of step. Not much is ever said about the well-planned shows, the good sound of the band or the neat uniforms the band wears.

The Mustang Music Boosters put in a lot of their time, effort and even money to help support the band and make each show a success. The band director, Mr. Len King, and his associate, Mr. Richard Kennel, are also to be congratulated for all they do for each show. Without them, there probably wouldn't be a show. So much goes into making one 10-minute half-time show.

I just wish the next time people watch a half-time show, they do it for entertainment and enjoyment, not to pick out mistakes. After all, that is the sole purpose of the Rolling Meadows band.

MICHAEL KLEIN

Klein given Herald Award of Excellence

The Paddock Publications award of excellence for September goes to Herald sports columnist Michael Klein for his aggressiveness and determination in developing an exclusive Herald sports story.

Klein scooped all Chicago newspapers when he broke the story of a top high school gymnast, Bart Conner of Maine West High School, who lost his eligibility because he is representing the United States in the Pan Am games.

The monthly award of excellence was presented to Klein by Herald Vice President and Editor Daniel E. Baumann.

OTHER HERALD staff members cited by Baumann at the monthly award ceremony were:

—Medley Editor Genie Campbell for overall editing and planning of the Friday Herald Medley section.

—Sports Editor Bob Frisk, Associate Sports Editor Paul Logan and their staff for developing and implementing a broad new approach toward Herald sports coverage.

— Photographer Dave Tonge for his dramatic photos of a railroad hobo.

—Assignment Editor Gerry Kern for his follow-up and writing about a Mount Prospect girl reunited with her natural mother.

— Staff Writer Jill Bettner for her coverage of the city manager controversy in Rolling Meadows.

— Staff Writer Joe Franz for turning a routine story of a railway accident into a human account of a near tragedy of a woman who escaped from her camper truck before it was crushed by a North Western train.

Congressional wrapup

From Roll Call Report

U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and U. S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th, were on opposite sides on votes on pesticide regulation and fishing rights taken by the U. S. House just before Congress' Columbus Day recess.

On the Senate side, U. S. Sen. Charles Percy voted with the majority in tabling two amendments to the Joint Resolution approving the Arab-Israeli Sinai accord. U. S. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III voted against tabling one amendment which would have declassified a State Dept. memo on the accord.

House

PESTICIDES. Amendment to give the Environmental Protection Agency the power to require states to have a certification program for private users of pesticides, adopted 250 to 155.

A certification program would require all individuals buying certain dangerous pesticides to be certified by the state and instructed in the use of the poisons. Opponents of the amendment said it would unnecessarily increase federal regulation of agriculture, since those affected would be mainly farmers.

YES: Mikva, Metcalfe, Murphy, Russo, Collins, Rostenkowski, Yates, Annunzio, Hall, Anderson, Price and Simon.

NO: Crane, Derwinski, Hyde, McClory, Erlenborn, O'Brien, Michel, Findley, Madigan and Shipley.

NOT VOTING: Fary and Railsback.

FISHING. A bill extending U. S ocean fishing jurisdiction from 12 to 200 miles beyond the U. S. coastline, adopted 208 to 101.

The bill was designed to protect domestic fishermen from foreign fishing fleets. It would take effect July 1, 1976, and terminate when an international agreement on fishing rights is established under the United Nations. It was sent to the Senate for action.

YES.: Crane, Russo, Hyde, Collins and Michel.

NO: Mikva, Murphy, Rostenkowski, Yates, Annunzio, McClory, Erlenborn, Hall, Anderson, O'Brien, Railsback and Simon.

NOT VOTING: Metcalfe, Derwinski, Fary, Findley, Madigan, Shipley and Price.

Senate

SINAI. An amendment to declassify a State Dept. memorandum detailing all secret U. S. commitments underlying the Sinai agreement, tabled 59 to 32. Much of the memo was leaked previously to the press.

YES: Percy.

NO: Stevenson.

SINAI. An amendment to prohibit U. S. troops from entering the Sinai to rescue 200 American technicians if fighting erupts, tabled, 68 to 25. The technicians will be stationed in the Sinai as part of the Arab-Israeli agreement.

YES: Percy and Stevenson.

Local woman candidate for national NOW office

The National Organization for Women will tackle the question of whether to endorse political candidates and will elect new officers this weekend at the organization's eighth annual convention in Philadelphia.

One of the candidates for the organization's national board will be Sherry Reynolds, 282 Ida Rd., Hoffman Estates, a member of Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 and a five-year member of NOW.

Sherry Reynolds

Reynolds said Thursday she is the only member of the Northwest suburban chapter of NOW planning to attend the convention. She said her own plans are in some doubt because of scheduling problems created for her by the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 teachers' strike earlier in the week.

"The strike has put my time schedule off," she said. "I really hope I'll be able to get there, but as of now I'm not sure."

REYNOLDS SAID the organization is expected to go through some internal fights during the convention where seven candidates are running for president and many other candidates will be vying for other offices.

"In any organization people have different ideas of how to achieve the same ends," she said. "The women's movement is maturing and dissent is something every movement goes through."

Other issues facing the organization, which has 70,000 members nationally, will be whether to begin endorsing political candidates or to leave such activity to the National Women's Political Caucus, a group which was an outgrowth of NOW several years ago.

In addition, workshops will focus on issues of women's history, education, women and religion and other aspects of the women's movement.

THE CONVENTION IS taking place in Philadelphia during the Bicentennial year, Reynolds said, because suffragette Susan B. Anthony celebrated the nation's centennial by reading the Declaration of Women's Rights at Independence Hall.

Campaigns for leadership positions in the organization are expected to be particularly heated at the convention because of new rules which allow unlimited campaigning by candidates. In addition to the seven candidates for president, there are three women running to head the national board, two for legislative vice president, four for legal vice president and four for finance vice president.

Betty Friedan, "mother" of the women's movement because of her book "The Feminine Mystique" and a NOW founder, and U. S. Rep. Bella Abzug, D-New York, will be among the convention speakers.

State Treasurer Alan Dixon, who is challenging Walker in the Democratic primary, also has been invited to the dinner.

Tickets are $10 each, and can be obtained by phoning Bob Glorch, 359-4730.

Girls state tennis tourney opens today

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Tennis Editor

Oak Park-River Forest will try to turn the clock back 12 hours before the rest of the nation this weekend, specifically to that hour last year when Joyce Carlson's Huskies won their third straight Illinois High School Athletic Association girls state tennis championship.

And while Carlson may get an extra hour of sleep on Saturday night she may lose much more than that Friday night because her team, although rated as favorites to continue a streak that has lasted as long as the tournament has been held, is far from a shoo-in.

"The girls have been feeling the pressure," Carlson admitted, "and although most of it is pressure they feel from within they know there are going to be some excellent teams playing this weekend."

Oak Park, champions of their own district last weekend, will gather with 29 other district winners plus assorted individuals on the courts of Arlington, Hersey, Forest View, Prospect and Rolling Meadows high schools beginning at 9 a.m. today to settle the issue.

On Saturday the quarterfinals will begin at Arlington at 9 a.m. with the semifinals to be played at 11 a.m. and the finals to be played at center court one hour after the completion of the semifinal round.

The showcase of the tournament will be Oak Park senior singles player Sue Replogle, who has won two state titles in the last three years.

"Sue is coming to the state tournament in good shape," Carlson said. "She has certain goals which she wants to attain and she's reaching the top level at just the right time."

Carlson is an avid supporter of her top player, praising her temperament and maturity.

"I've been extremely pleased with the improvement she has made in the four years she has been here," Carlson said. "There's nothing she wouldn't do to become a better tennis player."

At just 5-3, Replogle relies on placement and finesse to smother her opponents and Carlson is aware of her limitations as a player.

"Her height is her biggest drawback," Carlson said, "but she makes good use of what she has. If she was taller she'd have more power and le-

St. Viator vs. St. Francis for spot in playoffs

by MIKE KLEIN

Their names are Lou Citro and John Gillen. In your program, they are Nos. 14 and 32 respectively. When this old football season was young and new heroes were yet to be unveiled, Citro had a position that he wasn't playing. Gillen didn't even have a position.

Together, they watched.

Those days are no more. The two young men covet integral roles in St. Viator football, although each has come to that status by a different route.

Citro will spend much of this afternoon and early evening in silent contemplation. The same is true of Gillen.

And then together, alongside so many equally determined teammates, Citro and Gillen shall march onfield to answer a great challenge, the most important football game of their brief careers.

With Citro quarterbacking his second starting assignment, and bull-like Gillen running the ball in his fifth, St. Viator will attempt tonight to run St. Francis de Sales out the Elk Grove stadium gates, back onto the expressway and due southeast into Chicago from whence the Pioneers will come.

This one should make a good rooster fight or greyhound racing with live bunnies look pale in comparison. All the intense action begins at eight o'clock.

It will be the 15th round between these perrenial East Suburban Catholic football giants. DeSales, which has won the past three meetings by a combined 23-15 score, going into overtime once, joins the Chicago Catholic League next year.

Tonight's match between two angry football teams includes the honor of an ESCC championship and accompanying berth in IHSA Class 5A playoffs.

The loser departs Elk Grove with nothing. Whoever comes to defeat cannot possibly qualify for an IHSA playoff series at-large berth.

Teams with less than .800 winning percentages are not eligible for at-large berths. St. Viator already has two losses and deSales one, a 36-6 clubbing inflicted by Arlington.

The Pioneers defend a 5-0 ESCC mark and 6-1 total record. St. Viator's 5-2 season includes a conference loss to Marist and non-league defeat t Hersey.

DeSales has won five straight and last week crushed Notre Dame, 28-8, despite 13 penalties which left coach John Cappello feeling sick in his stomach.

"Our defense can be sporadic," said Cappello even though de Sales has crushed opponents by a combined 149-66. "We can play well, but we give up too much on penalties. If we don't stop that, it's Viator's ballgame."

The Pioneers haven't allowed more than one touchdown per week during their winning streak. There are no shutouts in that stretch, but Racine (Wis.) settled for one field goal.

Viator's patchwork offense has been good enough to thrust aside Notre Dame, Holy Cross, Carmel and St. Patrick. In truth, they've won with defense.

But it's no coincidence that 6-foot-2, 190-pound Gillen joined the offense before Viator beat Notre Dame. That wasn't much for the junior fullback, nine rushes for 18 yards.

But Gillen has been spectacular ever since, gaining 341 yards in three games and averaging 4.2 yards per carry. He came over from Viator's linebacking corps and has given the Lions something they lacked . . . ball control potential.

Viator head coach Lyne was committed to finding someplace for Gillen. But Citro apparently was destined to watch Jim Thompson quarterback the Lions all season.

Then Thompson got hurt, tearing knee ligaments two weekends ago during a 41-19 win over Carmel. Citro finished that game and worked all of Viator's 7-0 win at St. Patrick.

Now he enters a pressure game. "Last week, I was not too confident," Citro admitted. "I had never faced a first string defense." Lyne helped Citro by calling just one pass which fell incomplete. Gillen ran well, 108 yards.

"I've got a great offensive line in front of me, the best Viator's ever had," Citro said of guards Rich Somers and Dave Michuda plus tackles George Catalano and Dan Skarzynski and center Mark LaMantia.

"They do a lot for you. They're smart and the pick up stunts."

Lyne has promised Viator's most liberal offense to date. To heck with caution. "We're gonna do everything," said Lyne who has a 35-9 record at Viator.

"We're hungry and we want it. We don't feel any pressure. It's our last chance," said Lyne. "I don't know what's going to happen, but I know this, we're going at them."

Citro will throw. He's confident of a good passing game. "I've got good receivers. They've got good hands and the line gives me lots of time," he said.

The young man is very enthused

Radio coverage of Lions' game

WWMM-FM will cover the football action tonight at Elk Grove High School between St. Viator and St. Francis deSales.

Bob Houghton of WM radio and Bob Frisk of the Herald will be at the microphones for the crucial East Suburban Catholic battle between the Lions and Pioneers.

Air time is 8 p.m. at 92.7 on the FM dial although the varsity kickoff always is dictated by the length of the preliminary game.

The winner of tonight's game qualifies for the East Suburban Catholic berth in the Illinois state high school tournament.

Bob Frisk
Sports Editor

He is a product of the 1950s, that simple decade when hip was hep, good was boss and everything nice was copacetic.

Chicks in high school were gals with names like Peggy Sue and Barbara Ann, and squares were guys who parted their hair and wore pants with belts in the back.

The coolest cats of all strummed guitars, but the sports hero was still a big man on campus with his crewcut and letter sweater.

There were plenty of problems in the world, but those high schoolers in the 1950s didn't seem to care. The big worries were about cars, records, who broke up with whom, and, believe it or not, the weekend game. Ah, those were the days.

George Bork is a product of those times, an amiable, if quiet, young man in his playing days at Arlington High School, an extraordinary athlete with blond, crew-cut hair, a narrow face with a bony nose.

Bork now is cast in a different high school role, a coaching role, and this could be his biggest sports weekend since the time he was throwing footballs with the quick, wrist-snapping motion of a man firing darts.

Bork coaches the powerful Prospect High School golf team, and the Knights rank as one of the favorites in the state finals that will unfold today and tomorrow in Champaign.

"We've definitely got a chance," says Bork, "although Rockford Guilford has to be the favorite. They won it last year but now with Barrington and Hallberg (Bronco ace Gary) out, that seems to open up all sorts of possibilities. I know we're going down there in the right frame of mind.

"We're a closer-knit group than others I've had because we are smaller in number with only eight boys. I can give them a little more individual attention. This is just a super bunch of kids to work with. They've made my job so enjoyable."

If Prospect could shoot its way to a state championship, a dazzling new chapter would be added to the George Bork story, a story of excellence on the playing field and now excellence in the coaching ranks.

Goerge Paul Bork was Mr. Everything in high school, certainly one of the most gifted athletes I've ever watched in 30 years of following area sports.

He was a spectacular quarterback in football with the softest, most accurate passes you'd ever want to see. Quick pump and let it fly, short or long.

He was a high-scoring guard in basketball with a picture jump shot that belonged in the instructional guides. So effortless. So very accurate. Stop, jump, flick of the wrist ... two points.

He was a versatile regular in baseball, stepping in wherever needed with solid contributions. Nothing fancy, no .400 average, just steady play.

The headlines continued in football and basketball at Northern Illinois University, and he was the most celebrated small-college grid star in the nation. Yes, the nation. He passed opponents dizzy. He was featured in Sports Illustrated magazine. He threw for seven touchdowns in one game — and completed 37 passes in another.

Northern coach Howard Fletcher realized he had something very special when Bork came to college, and he provided the Huskies with an offense to take advantage of the passing.

Fletcher went to the shotgun with the ends split wide and the two halfbacks and fullback arrayed close behind the line of scrimmage. Bork was as isolated as a tree on the bare prairie, stationed eight to 10 yards back of the center.

He usually had five receivers breaking downfield, which put a great deal of pressure on the five blocking linemen, but part of Bork's success stemmed from this quintet's mobile effectiveness.

While searching downfield for his receivers, Bork was able to sidestep the tacklers. He would backpedal swiftly, move up into a protective pocket or scamper frantically from one side of the field to the other. He called the plays, but he was instructed never to run the ball himself.

Bork was so special at Northern that one cold, bright Saturday afternoon in DeKalb the band spelled out B-O-R-K at halftime and played "You Gotta Be a Football Hero." Yes, he was a bona fide hero, the kind you read about in books, Frank Merriwell and all that. The story was a smash best-seller for years.

Suddenly, the headlines stopped. The story stopped selling. Bork was passed over completely in the professional draft. "Too small" was the rap on this 6-foot-1, 170-pounder despite glowing pre-draft praise by pro scouts. Was he strong enough? Could he take a beating and still bounce back?

The Oakland Raiders (among others) contacted him after the draft and offered a contract, but George turned them down with the feeling, "Since you didn't draft me, I'm not anxious to play for you."

Bork did play professionally four years in Canada and two with the Chicago Owls of the Continental Professional Football League, a team that preceded our beloved Chicago Fire and Winds as bombs.

The Owls folded owing Bork a $2,500 paycheck and as he recalled later, "I got the hint to hang up the ol' football shoes right then and there."

Bork first tried golf as a high school student in the 1950s, but he "became a fanatic" while living in Canada, working his game to the scratch level and eventually returning home as the head coach at Prospect.

"It was a rough decision when golf was switched to a fall sport," Bork remembers. "It was a question of becoming head golf coach or staying as an assistant in football. I still miss being associated with football because it was a big part of my life, but I've never regretted the choice. Coaching golf here has been very rewarding."

And it could become even more rewarding for Bork this weekend.

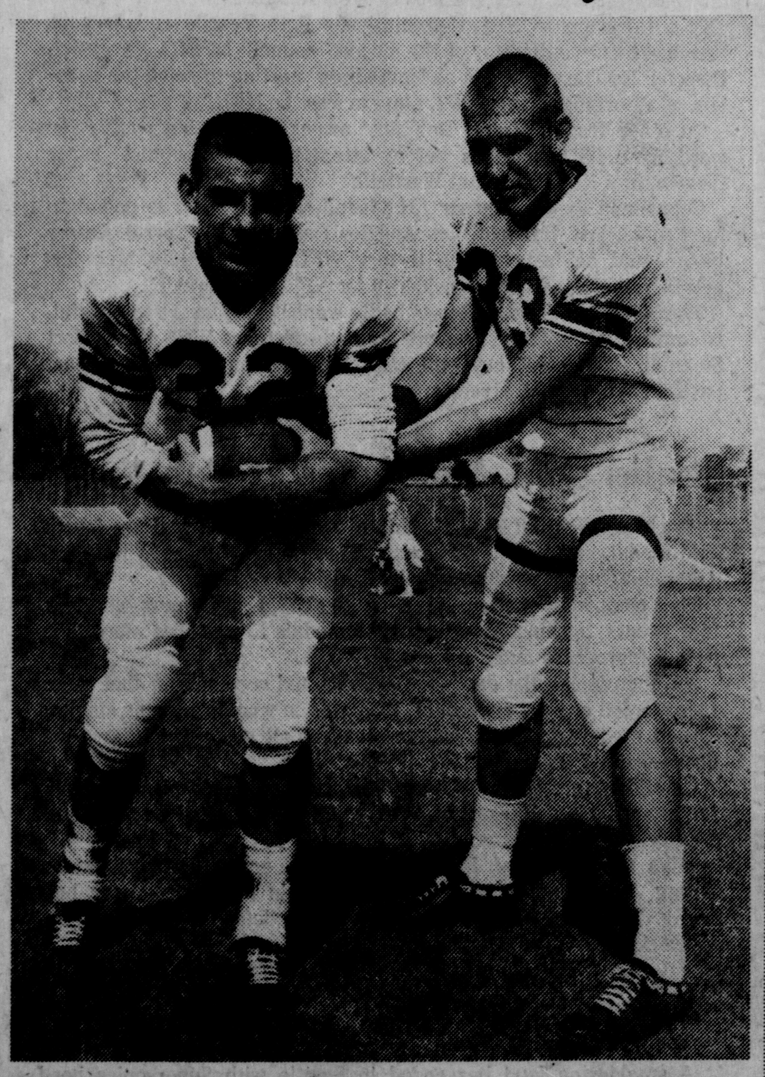
The big prize — a state title — that eluded him in his high school days may be the end result of 36 demanding holes over the University of Illinois Savoy course. Prospect has a chance, a good chance.

There were many exciting chapters in the story of George Bork, the athlete.

A fascinating new chapter may unfold this weekend in the story of George Bork, the coach.

It just might be best-seller time again after all these years.

Those were the days...



PASSING PARTNERS. When area product George Bork, right, was smashing national passing records as a quarterback at Northern Illinois University, one of his favorite receivers was Gary Stearns (32). Stearns today is the athletic director and head football coach at Elmwood Park High School.

NBA says 'No' to wishful ABA

National Basketball Association Commissioner Larry O'Brien announced Thursday that on advice of counsel he is rejecting "for the time being" the applications of all nine American Basketball Association teams for admission to the NBA..

The New York Nets and Denver Nuggets applied for admission to the NBA last month and on Monday of this week the remaining seven teams sent identical telegrams to the NBA also requesting applications for admission.

O'Brien said at the time he would have no comment until he sought the advice of NBA lawyers.

"As a result of the ongoing lawsuit originally instituted by the Players Association against the NBA and ABA," O'Brien said Thursday, "he NBA and the ABA are both presently subject to an injunction prohibiting the merger."

Because of that injunction, O'Brien said the NBA would suspend all action on the Nets' and Nuggets' applications, plus the seven others, until the ABA first obtains court approval permitting their consideration.

American Basketball Association President John Y. Brown, whose league won 31 and lost 17 in pre-season games with the NBA, said any merger would be done "for the sake of the sport" rather than for mere financial salvation.

What's up for WFL players?

Uncertainty over the future of ex-World Football League players continued Thursday, but the NFL Players Association made its stand known by demanding that teams increase their roster sizes so fewer players will lose their jobs to WFL refugees.

In a telegram to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle and Sargent Karch, executive director of the owners' council, NFLPA Executive Director Ed Garvey urged an immediate meeting to solve the problem of absorbing former WFL players into the NFL.

On other fronts, Miami Dolphins' owner Joe Robbie waited for word from NFL officials before attempting to reacquire Larry Csonka, Jim Kilck and Paul Warfield.

Celeveland Browns' owner Art Modell said he wants to negotiate for Csonka and Warfield. Los Angeles Rams' owner Carroll Rosenbloom said he believes the former WFL franchises in Memphis and Birmingham will be considered for NFL membership.

The NFL New Orleans Saints badly want WFL players to hopefully improve their team. Players from the defunct WFL Shreveport Steamer have said they will take legal action to gain at least partial payment of contracts.

Solid gold Americans at Pan-Ams

Seventeen-year-old Kathy Heddy of Summit, N.J., won her fourth gold medal on America's women's freestyle relay team at the Pan-American Games Thursday night.

That completed another sweep for the U.S.A. swimmers who took four events, pushing America's gold medals to 92, three more than it won four years ago.

America began the day with 87 golds and received another when Lele Forood of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., won in women's tennis singles. The 92 medals do not include two basketball golds which have not been awarded yet.

Camile Wright of New Albany, Ind., won women's 200-meter butterfly and Bobby Hackett of Yonkers, N.Y., won men's 1,500-meter freestyle.

Mike Currington of Birmingham, Ala., upset world champion Gregg Jagenburg of West Chester, Pa., in men's 100-meter butterfly. The U.S.A. men's basketball team defeated the Virgin Islands, 137-70.

Sonics ship Haywood to Knicks

A smoldering feud has ended in Seattle with Supersonics head coach Bill Russell trading forward Spencer Haywood to the New York Knicks. Haywood has been a member of the NBA All-Star team four times.

Haywood, a Detroit University graduate, said he has felt he was not appreciated in Seattle, a feeling which began during the playoffs last year and just kept growing.

verage but she knows exactly where the ball is going each time she hits it and I think she moves better than any high school player I've seen."

Joining Replogle in the Oak Park title bid will be a pair of doubles teams made up of junior Mary Ann Nelson and freshman Lynne Elbert and seniors Jean Barr and Janelle Barclay.

Both combinations reached the finals of the district where Nelson and Elbert ruled 6-1, 6-1.

Oak Park's stiffest test may come from the other side of the state, where Rock Island has a pair of doubles teams to challenge the best. The Rocks of Emma Trackwell won a district title last weekend and will field seniors Marsha Bladel, Beth McLaughlin, Carol Foss and Ann Radloff.

Bladel and McLaughlin are the defending state doubles champions while Foss teamed up to form half of the 1972 champions.

The host Arlington Cardinals won the Prospect district last week and, along with Fremd, will carry the area's hopes into the state tournament.

Mary Lou Hundt will have Leslie Grabitz going in singles while Mary Flynn and Maureen Coleman will be Arlington's doubles entrant.

Fremd will be counting on a pair of doubles teams. Heidi Giesler and Linda Warder knocked off fellow Vikes Kathy Pfaender and Kim Whiting in the championship of the Hoffman Estates district.

Lisa Smart, a freshman from Buffalo Grove who plays a smart placement game, was singles champ in the Prospect district and may be the area's best hope for a state title.

Clare Dowling of Hoffman Estates, with a district championship to her credit, and Barb Gallo of Rolling Meadows will be the other top area individuals competing in the state tournament.

New Trier West will counter with Niles West district singles champion Kathy Karzen and Colette Bennett while New Trier East, who won the Niles West district, will have doubles players Stephanie Frei and Liz Stogin.

Hinsdale Central clobbered the Richards district field and will be a contender with singles player Betsy Heidler and a doubles team of Mary and Nancy Keil.

On the eve of their fourth title defense Carlson speculated on the continuation of the Oak Park dynasty.

"This is a tennis community," she said, "and we are expected to do well. Our success is kind of taken for granted. Because we have done so well for so long we don't generate the enthusiasm that a school just starting out would.

"The upperclassmen have their pride and they feel the pressure to do their very best. We lost two dual meets this year (to Hinsdale Central and New Trier West) and we haven't done that in years. Still, I think we are ready to run our streak to four.

about Gillen ("He blows people out.") and in Viator's total rushing attack which also features Jack Gracheck, Mark Bonucchi and Bill Deal ("When the line blows them out, it doesn't matter who's running.").

DeSales boasts two fine runners in 5-11, 185-pound Len Funk and (6-0, 195) Rich Pavichevich. But the Pioneers are expected to pass at Viator's short defensive secondary.

Cornerback Vince Hall, at 5-11, is the Lions' tallest pass defender. Of shorter vintage are safety Terry Frett plus cornerback Nick Josten.

The Lions' third cornerback will be Craig Ameel, Steve Hauser or both. At 5-11, Hauser is two inches taller than Ameel.

Viator's defensive Front Four remains the same with ends Scott Zettek and Dave Nicolau plus tackles Bill Schmidt and Dan Young.

Zettek might spell Catalano at offensive tackle. Catalano was shaken in Tuesday's practice.

The Lions will uniform wide receiver Jim Kane who's been out with hamstring muscle pulls. But Kevin McAleer starts the game.

Mike Klein
Sports Columnist

The great, proud football teams of suburban St. Viator and cityside St. Francis deSales, where a young man earns his varsity letter by eating raw meat, ligaments and all, just haven't been smart enough to leave each other alone. Their lives would have been so much simpler.

Reminiscent of two upper slope residents from the Matterhorn, they've crashed bone into bone, muscle into muscle and helmet into helmet. The bodies strain, the inches come hard and viciously, the young men blend into piles of surging purpose.

There is damage which hasn't been witnessed since that suicidal maniac Humpty Dumpty hurled himself off the famous wall. With every young man so intent upon victory, they are often twisted into painful positions, then led away as the stadium falls quiet.

In all recent exhibitions of blocking, tackling, facemasking and other techniques which are football, it's been the suburban boys who've not lasted the extra mile.

City footballers claimed triumphs in each of the past three chapters to their personal argument. Although not by much. It was 6-2 in mud. Then 7-6. And 10-7 in overtime.

These are always vicious confrontations where the point totals suggest bad offense. In truth, the Lions and Pioneers have great defensive football teams.

While scores generally remain low, emotions are generated to a fever pitch. There are two games a St. Viator football player never misses lest someone question the strength of his pride.

The first is Hersey. And the second deSales.

A young man's most nagging injury confounds modern medicine as it remarkably heals before a deSales game. The pains which he might mention any other day are now kept quiet.

The smallest defensive back can suddenly leap higher than anyone ever knew. And even the slowest offensive lineman develops feet so quick you might think he had been trained on live coals.

Every young man who steps onto the field, whether he's among the Lions or Pioneers, comes assured of a good fight. The opponent who has been a fictitious figure drawn in so many ways upon a blackboard, and who has been only an air bag dummy all week, now looms before him in angry flesh.

Hit or be hit. Block or be trampled. Tackle or lose. Play football as if you were born to do nothing else. Or find yourself replaced in the lineup. You give everything of yourself in this game because you owe your teammate that much effort.

It's an exceptional football series which St. Viator and deSales will continue at eight o'clock tonight in Elk Grove's Haskell Stadium. They've played to capacity crowds and tonight will be no different.

All that matters this evening is the East Suburban Catholic championship and the IHSA Class 5A playoff berth which comes as its prize. It has always been that way, one excellent team against another. No fan ever complains he has been cheated at night's end.

One overpowering quality, intensity, cannot be mistaken between these Lions and Pioneers. But how did it become so magnified? The question is not easily answered.

These are schools 40 miles apart. They are young men who would not recognize each other on any street. It is not like playing against Hersey and perhaps knowing the kid who defends at Huskie cornerback is your next door neighbor and former little league teammate.

But when 7:45 p.m. becomes eight o'clock, the young men who are Viator and deSales football players move toward the middle of their stage.

There is no more time for designing new plays, boasting of accomplishments from games played long ago or talking of how badly this opponent will be defeated.

The first kickoff moves downfield into waiting hands, eyes shuffle back and forth searching for even the smallest speck of space. Within seconds, there is a great collision. It has begun.

They always play this game along the line of scrimmage. The football is fierce. As it was with Vince Lombardi teams, the ball itself seems unimportant. You do not move the ball downfield. You move the team.

It is the same fiercely competitive credo advanced by Jim Lyne of St. Viator. And John Cappello at St. Francis deSales. Some young men, because they are stronger and bigger, play the game better than others. All of them are good.

And therein lies the answer to the intensity which has been so important between St. Viator and deSales. It's the game, and their love of playing football well, which has these two schools so intensely determined.

It's knowing that the opponent is worthy of your respect. And that you are worthy of his. It's knowing that you can't quit because he won't.

And it's the realization that you have spent one entire year getting ready for a challenge which lasts just two hours.

This is high school football, as Viator and deSales have so brilliantly played it. From the dingy old field which deSales used for many years in Hammond, Ind., to any of Viator's "homes," they've battled and pushed and played the game with heart.

The series ends tonight. There will be no more getting ready to play deSales for the Eastern Suburban Catholic championship. There will be no more remembering last year's game, how that man handled you or how you dominated him.

There will be no more trips to Hammond, Ind. Or even to deSales' new home which is Gately Stadium on Chicago's far south side. And they will not come to the suburbs.

St. Francis deSales joins the Chicago Catholic League next year. It is an intelligent decision which speaks of realistic traveling distances and close-to-home opponents. It is progress.

There will be new rivalries for the Pioneers and Lions. But even should Viator and deSales meet in non-conference games, it won't be the same.

This was East Suburban Catholic football at its finest. A series which grew bigger than any individual athlete who ever participated in it.

So they are down to the last game. It's very sad, really, almost like finding out that your father is Santa Claus. Or that all the King's Men couldn't put Humpty Dumpty back together again.

Where is girls' cross country?

I read the article in Wednesday, Oct. 22 about the "new prize" — a girls Paddock Cup for girls sports. Good idea! It gives girls teams something to really work for as a whole. You also mentioned that for a sport to be included, half the MSL had to have teams.

Tehn why isn't cross country included in this contest? There are, or your paper lists, 13 schools. Out of these, the following have teams: Arlington, Prospect, Fremd, Hersey, Palatine, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, and Rolling Meadows. That's eight. Half of, or rather more than half, of the MSL's schools do have girls teams. So what's the problem?

I'd also like to say that your coverage on girls cross country leaves a lot to be desired. Many times after a meet I'll go buy a paper and there would be a little, just names, no story whatsoever. Once, there wasn't even names (Prospect-Hersey duel).

Thank you for listening.

Jody Stembridge
Hersey girls team

EDITOR'S NOTE: The athletic directors and the principals of the Mid-Suburban League Schools voted not to consider girls' cross country a conference sport this fall. There was a meet at the end of the season for the girls, but it wasn't considered a league championship. Thanks for your interest.

CLEANUP HURLERS

Fans Forum:

I was dissatisfied with your answer to the question in last week's (Friday, Oct. 17), Fans Forum regarding pitchers who have batted somewhere other than the ninth spot in the order. You mentioned Babe Ruth, but there have been plenty of others.

I recall, for one, Bob Freind of the Pirates who batted seventh in several games in 1956 under manager Bobby Bragan. Also Don Larsen, who hit 14 homers in his career, batted cleanup in his rookie year with the St. Louis Browns and also later on with the Kansas City Athletics. Bob Lemon, a good hitting pitcher with the Indians, also hit cleanup on occasion. The Cubs' Hal Jeffcoat frequently hit higher than ninth.

I remember too, that Bert Campaneris was the starting pitcher and the leadoff batter in a game in 1965 when he played all nine positions.

It is especially true that in the old days, way back in the 19th century, pitchers commonly batted higher than ninth.

Dear Editor:

How come every time it rains in the world series, the newspapers start talking about shortening the season or moving the series to Tampa or Seattle or Dry Gulch? It's rained about a half dozen times in all the history of the series, and only three times — 1911, 1962, and this year — has there been a lengthy delay. So what's the big deal? There may be some good reasons for reducing the length of the season, but the weather in October isn't one of them. Who wants the series in Timbuktu in the middle of July? Not me.

Just when I thought I'd buy a Cutlass Supreme, I found I could own a Grand Prix for $32 less!

1976 GRAND PRIX Comparison Price

MSRP COMPARABLE EQUIPMENT	GRAND PRIX $4798	MONTE CARLO $4673	CUTLASS SUPREME $4291

I thought I knew all there was to know about the specialty cars. But when I saw the price on a '76 Grand Prix, I had to think again.

It turns out the manufacturer's suggested retail price on '76 Grand Prix with wheel covers and AM radio is actually $32 lower than the m.s.r.p. for a comparably equipped Cutlass Supreme.

And with Grand Prix, you get a 350 cu. in. engine, turbo-hydromatic transmission, power disc brakes, power steering and clock as standard equipment.

That meant I could afford to choose. And as you can see, I'm very, very choosy.

1976 Pontiac's looking better all the time.

CSL scramble nears showdown

Central Suburban South leader Maine South must look to avoid being upset and runner-up Glenbrook South should win with few problems as the two teams point toward their meeting next weekend which will decide the CSL championship.

Maine South's Hawks host Niles West on Saturday afternoon. The Hawks haven't lost any of their seven games and last weekend gave defending state champion Glenbrook North its second straight shutout defeat.

Niles West brings a 4-3 record into the fracas. The Indians own consecutive victories over Niles East, 49-19, and Niles North, 35-8.

Glenbrook South visits Niles North tomorrow and should be more alert after Maine West nearly pulled a fine upset last Saturday, losing 14-13 when a two-point conversion try failed in the game's closing seconds.

The two Friday night games have Niles East at Maine West in the Warriors' final home game plus Maine East and Glenbrook North meeting in Northbrook.

Those are 8 p.m. games.

Maine West and Niles East are tied for sixth in the Central Suburban South, both holding 1-4 league records. Maine is 2-5 overall, having beaten Evanston in a crossover with the CSL North. The Warriors' league victory came against Niles North, 9-7.

Niles East claimed its only victory against Niles North, 21-16, but that was four weeks ago. They've since lost to Glenbrook South, Maine South, Niles West and Maine East.

Glenbrook North and Maine East, with identical 3-2 league records, will likely decide who finishes third in the CSL South.

Youth sports conference ahead

The first National Conference On Youth Sports will be held in Chicago, Nov. 19-21, with over 30 national youth sports organizations represented. The conference is being hosted by The Athletic Institute.

"Our purpose in sponsoring the conference" stated director Fred Engh, "is to provide a means for these organizations to learn from each other in the areas of similar needs and interests. Up until now, the heads of youth organizations have had little opportunity to share information and expertise about the many facets of youth sports in America."

An impressive lineup of talent and topics will be presented at the three-day conference. Dr. Rainer Martens, a noted Sports Psychologist from the University Of Waterloo in Ontario, Canada, will discuss the "Psychological Impact of Competitive Sports on Youth." In addition, Kyle Rote, Jr., former Superstar Champion and member of the Fellowship Of Christian Athletes, will talk on the importance sports play in the development of attitudes. Other topics to be covered at the conference include: "Reaching the Media With the Message," "The Role of Girls in Youth Sports," "Leadership Motivations and Communications," and "Fund Raising Techniques."

While the conference is open to Directors of Youth Sports Organizations and Staff, anyone wishing follow-up information about the conference is invited to contact The Athletic Institute Youth Sports Department, 705 Merchandise Mart, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Adult judo class signup

Classes in introductory Judo techniques and self defense will begin Oct. 28 for adults and Nov. 1 for those ages 10 to 16 at the Northwest Suburban YMCA, 300 E. Northwest Hwy. in Des Plaines.

Ernest Hauser, third degree black belt, will instruct the classes. Mr. Hauser who has 20 years of judo experience will focus on competitive sport judo and physical fitness, incorporating self defense maneuvers into the weekly classes.

Those interested may sign up for classes at the YMCA —membership at the Y is not required. The adult class meets from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, young people's class from 9 to 10 a.m. Saturdays.

Recently 12 judo club members attained rank promotions. In the adult club Jack Detzner, a student at Harvard University from Des Plaines, and Maurice Chung, Arlington Heights, were promoted to Sankyu (3rd class brown belt), and Casimer Dlugokecki, Arlington Heights, to Yonkyu.

Juniors receiving promotions were Jamsheed Attari, 12, to Yonkyu (orange belt); Bob Speer, 11, to Gokyu (yellow belt); Brad Johnson, 7, to Gokyu; Danny Lindstrom, 12, to Yonkyu; and Ed Leahy, 14, to Gokyu. All are from Arlington Heights. Also promoted were Keith Everman, 14, Elk Grove Village, to Yonkyu; and Peter and Werner Letscher, 11 and 10 respectively, of Schaumburg, promoted to Gokyu.

Title chases end but Mid-Suburban teams still have goals remaining

LOOKING FOR Fremd trouble is Arlington's Steve Leonhard as he carries for some of his 61 yards during Arlington's homecoming game. The Cardinals won, 29-15. (Photo by Dom Najolia)

This has to be one of the toughest weekends of the Mid-Suburban League football season.

The conference's North and South division champions were determined the week before, ending the hopes of the few remaining contenders.

All 13 MSL coaches face the challenge of getting their players 'up' for this seemingly meaningless weekend. Here are some of the reasons these head men will use for this second last game of the regular season:

- Schaumburg and Hersey — maintain their perfect records.
- Buffalo Grove, Prospect and Hoffman Estates — finish in second place.
- Palatine and Arlington — seeking their best records in years.
- Rolling Meadows — looking for its best record ever.
- Forest View and Elk Grove — .500 marks . . . in the league for the Grenadiers and over-all for the Falcons.
- Fremd — the chance to be a spoiler.
- Conant and Wheeling to win a couple of firsts . . . in the league for the Wildcats and over-all for the Cougars.

With this in mind, here are the weekend's matchups. All but one game — Hoffman at Schaumburg — will be played tonight, starting at 8:00.

Fremd will be entertaining Hersey, owner of a 7-0 mark and highly ranked in the prep polls. The Vikings (1-(1-6) could post an upset if the Huskies happen to still be enjoying their North Division championship.

"We're trying to gain a little momentum, we want to keep the pressure on . . . no let down," said Joe Gliwa, Hersey's coach. "We want to have an excellent game on offense . . . There's a lot of pressure off our kids now."

On Saturday at 2 p.m., the start of possibly a great rivalry will take place when Schaumburg hosts Hoffman Estates.

"We still are shooting for a perfect season," said Bob Ferguson, Schaumburg's coach.

The Saxons will be hoping that homecoming festivities will help give them the needed lift to get past a fired up Hoffman Hawks team. The Hawks of Coach Bill Gourley were eliminated from the South Division race last week, so they'll have nothing to lose and a spoiler's role to gain Saturday.

Schaumburg will be facing the top passer in the division — Wayne Jackson. And he'll be looking at one of the best secondaries in the state — Bob Connell, Steve Conrad, Scott Mielke and Gary Geels.

"At the beginning of the season, we thought the secondary was our weakest spot," said Tom Cerasani, its coach. "It turns out that it is just the other way around."

The Saxon defensive backs have allowed just 18 completions in 82 attempts for 187 yards or 27 per game. Six times they've intercepted.

Prospect and Hoffman are presently tied for second in the South with Buffalo Grove all along in second up North.

Buffalo Grove will face a stiff challenge from hosting Arlington as the Cardinals try to move into a tie for the runnerup spot. Arlington is also shooting for a 7-2 over-all record, needing victories in its last two games for the best mark since its perfect season in 1970.

Prospect must tackle a fast-improving Rolling Meadows team, winner of three straight. The Mustangs need two wins for a 6-3 mark.

Palatine has both a team and an individual record to shoot for — two wins will give the Pirates their best season since 1968 and another fine effort by Jim Popp will make him the all-time area rusher.

Popp has 1015 yards. The single-season record is held by Forest View's Mike Pryor at 1104. Palatine's super

Girls dive in for spots in state swimming meet

Swimming Editor

The young woman who coaches Sacred Hearts' water ladies, and who further admits her college swimming career was "no big deal," has generated some startling conclusions after six weeks on her first job.

"Everyone at this school is named Kathy or Mary," says Trisha Dean. "They are."

That trend does not apply to four young women known as Cheryl and Chris (Takata) plus Terry and Josie (Fitzsimons) who are new coach Dean's premier swimmers.

They will carry the little school's fortunes when Sacred Heart joins six Mid-Suburban Conference members, which includes repeat champion Prospect, in the 15-team field at Saturday's IHSA district swim meet in Olympic Pool.

Diving begins at 9:30 a.m. and swimming events at 2 p.m.

It's also the first district meet coaching shot for Dean who swam at Lawrence University before graduate studies at Northwestern.

Dean inherited Sacred Heart's program from Kathy Dalton who departed for New Trier West. It was love at first sight.

"She was quitting and I just happened to walk in the door," said Dean. "I was the only person they could dig up."

Right off, Dean was confident of more success for Sacred Heart. "Kathy Dalton was this super woman," said Dean. "Then they (the swimmers) get this person they don't even know."

And after Sacred Heart responded with a 5-1 dual meet record, there's not the least reason to be nervous about districts.

"I've been going crazy these past few days," Dean confided. "There are a lot of things I'd do differently next year. I have a whole list of them ... somewhere."

If poor Miss Dean appears slightly shaken, her swimmers probably aren't, and Sacred Heart could become the glue which catches flies at this district meet.

The Takata and Fitzsimons sisters all should qualify for next weekend's state finals at New Trier East.

The four comprise Sacred Heart's medley relay team which should fight against Prospect and Elk Grove for the district title. At any rate, all those teams are fast enough to reach state finals.

Terry Fitzsimons could have 50 freestyle to her lonesome unless Arlington's Sue Cripe entered the event. Cripe waited until after Thursday's practice before selecting between the 50 and 200 frees.

Cripe, Arlington's little pixie who captured two MSL titles last weekend, will compete in 100 free plus with Judy Weber, Wendy Meyers and Jill Nason on the Cardinals' 400 free relay team.

Sacred Heart's Cheryl Takata, Arlington's Cripe and Elk Grove's Kathy Amato are part of an outstanding 100 free field. And Chris Takata should give breaststroke entrants, who include MSL champion Patti Larsen of Prospect, a run for the glory.

There's no denying there's strength in this district which has MSL runner-up Arlington plus third place Elk Grove and fourth place Hersey. Rolling Meadows and Forest View are also in the group.

MSL schools Wheeling and Buffalo Grove are sentenced into the Highland Park district. Wheeling's Ann Mackie has excellent chances there in 50 and 100 freestyles. Their medley relay of Lori Nelson, Terri Wallace, Maureen Geisler and Mackie rates highly as does Wallace in breaststroke.

Buffalo Grove looks for strong efforts from its medley relay team of Sue Eliot, Debbie Cornell, Ann Rusche and Cheryl Kashmere. All those girls have chances to qualify individually, also, as does Teresa DeGroh.

Prospect is the team title favorite at Arlington's Olympic Pool. Other team entrants are Dundee, Maine West, York, Proviso West, Conant, West Leyden, Fremd and Palatine.

The following summary should provide a scratch sheet of swimmers who have chances to qualify for state finals at New Trier East.

PROSPECT: Medley relay team of Jema Allen, Patti Larsen, Pam Wilken and Terry Wilken. Allen and Larsen in individual medley. Larsen in breaststroke. Barb Stewart in 200 free plus Stewart and Nora Halversen in 500 free. The freestyle relay team of Ann Halas, Laura Prinslow, Stewart and Mary Ann Withey.

ARLINGTON: Divers Kelly Holland and Donna Wasielewski. Freestyle relay of Judy Weber, Wendy Meyers, Jill Nason and Cripe. Meyers in Butterfly and backstroke. Nason in 100 free. Cripe in all events she swims. Perhaps Weber in 50 free.

ELK GROVE: Medley relay of Kathy Amato, Sharon Bird, Shelley Bird and Diane Chrysokos. Amato in 100 free and backstroke. Sharon Bird in butterfly and backstroke.

HERSEY: Medley relay of Linda Merle, Barb Loner, Barb Behnke and Sue Richartz. Behnke in butterfly. Sue Laursen, Becky Wheeler, Mary Beth Wendell and Patti Wilcox in freestyle relay. Diver Wendy Hawes. Wheeler and Richartz in freestyle. Richartz and Loner in breaststroke. Behnke and Loner in individual medley.

FOREST VIEW: Pam Funk in 50 and 100 frees. Lynn Osswald in breaststroke and individual medley.

ROLLING MEADOWS: Freestyle relay of Connie Wilson, Debbie Royal, Kathy Nicklin and Dawn Grunwald. Wilson in 100 and 200 frees. Grunwald in 50 free.

runner could do it tonight at home against Wheeling with 90 yards.

It the Wheeling Wildcats could pull off an upset, they would register their first league win.

Winless Conant will have Elk Grove as its homecoming guest. The Cougars have shown some signs of being ready to break out of their slump. However, the Grenadiers — fresh from a big win over Hoffman — also appear to be finishing strong.

If the Grenadiers can come out ahead in this battle, they'll pull even in the South Division with a 3-3 record.

Forest View hosts Waukegan East tonight in a non-conference clash. The Falcons have an excellent chance of also reaching the .500 mark overall for Waukegan has only won one game.

Schachner joins FSU staff

Rick Schachner, a graduate of Wheeling High School where he earned six varsity letters in football and wrestling, has joined the staff of Florida State University as a backfield coach. The 24-year old Schachner was moved to the varsity staff after serving last season as a graduate assistant.

He will work with the backs in the newly installed Wing-T offense and also will help with the punters and scouting. Schachner graduated from Western Illinois University in 1973 after leading his team to a three year record of 24-9.

Area skaters in Skokie event

Debra Johnson of Des Plaines, Kimberly Carney of Arlington Heights and Blake C. Hobson of Buffalo Grove will be among the dozens of skaters to participate in the Skokie Valley Skating Club's competition to be held Nov. 1-2.

The purpose behind the exhibition is to give the public a rare opportunity to view top skaters. Local competitors also get a chance to perform their free-skating programs before an audience.

The Skokie Valley Skating Club will host the event at the Wilmette Park District Centennial Ice Rink, 2300 Old Glenview Road. Both National and Canadian figure skating champions will perform at two full shows: Saturday, Nov. 1 at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, Nov. 2, at 1 p.m. Tickets are currently on sale for $2.75 at the Centennial Ice Rink in Wilmette.

Last rec club outing

The Trailfriend's Trailer Club will close its outdoor activities for the season on Oct. 24-26. This is the last chance before putting your recreational vehicle away for the winter for you to enjoy the club meeting.

As in the past few years the club will furnish the meat (ham) for the pot luck supper. For entertainment, bingo will be played and each player is asked to bring a $.50 food gift for prizes. For further information contact Howard or Agnes Gray at 824-2089.

From campuses nationwide

—Running back Terry Stenger of Hoffman Estates was selected as player of the week on the Lake Forest College football team, following LFC's 13-6 homecoming victory over Carleton College.

Stenger's performance in the Carleton game was extremely versatile as he gained 73 yards in 23 carries and caught a trio of passes for 59 yards.

The former Conant High School star scored the final touchdown with 1:05 left in the game to insure the victory.

—Ken Slepicka, a sophomore signal caller from Wheeling High School now attending North Park College, has suffered a dislocated collarbone and will miss the next three games.

—Junior defensive back Paul Cucci-notto from Des Plaines, made the fumble recovery that led to Northern Michigan University's third touchdown in the opening period of a 20-7 win over Eastern Michigan.

—Robert C. Thompson, a Knox College sophomore from Arlington Heights, has been named winner of the Arvid P. Zetterberg Award. The honor goes to an athlete who, during the freshman year, "exemplifies the highest qualities of character, scholarship and interest" in collegiate athletics.

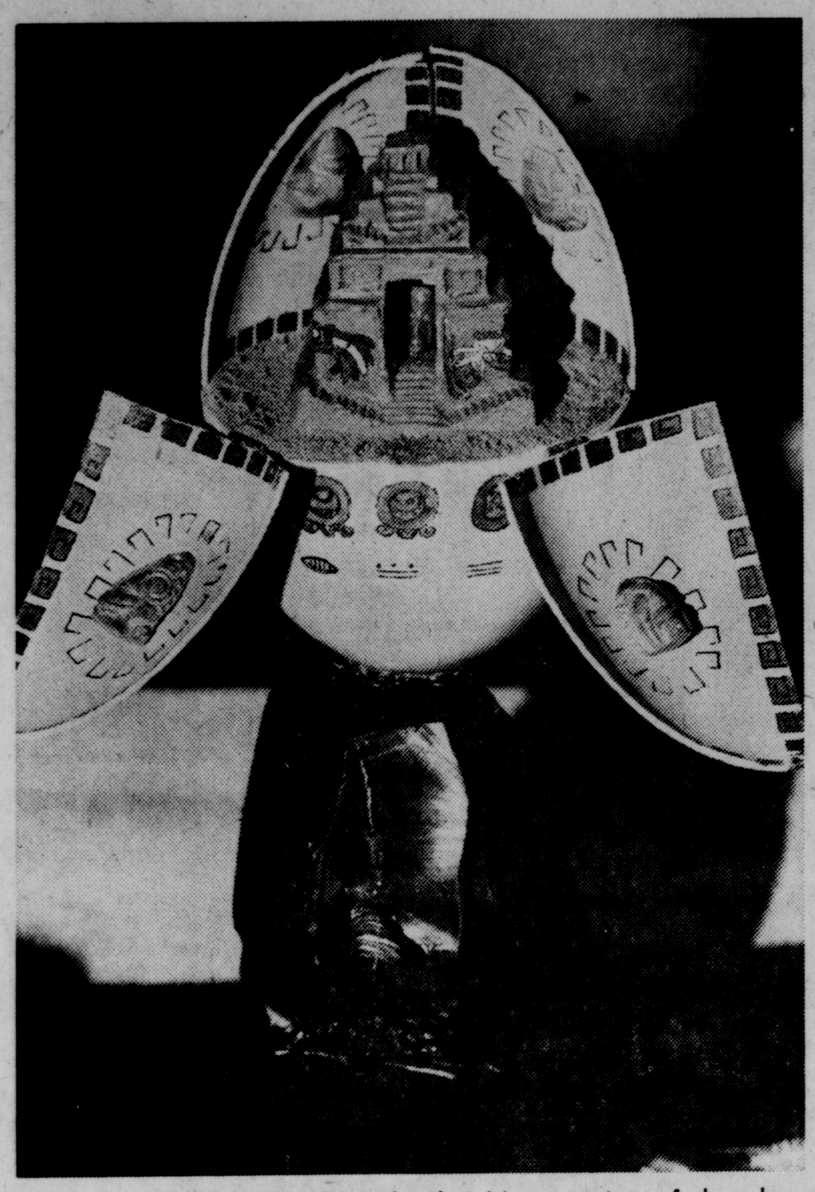
PEGGY DICKMAN of Granville, Mich., honors the Bicentennial. The figure of Betsy Ross is made out of bread dough.



FROM EL SALVADOR, Central America, Conchita Llach decorated this egg which highlights the Mayan ruins of her home country. She has put lights in many of her eggs.

THE RHEA WHO laid this egg would never recognize his work. It was decorated by Doris Lundsten of Wauconda, who has been an egger for 12 years. "It's a way of life now," she said.

IT WOULDN'T BE EASY to pop these egg balloons though they would break if you squeezed too hard. The balloon man with an apple carved face belongs to Grace Cummins of Scottsboro, Ala.

Decorated eggs

They dazzle even the Easter bunny

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Goose eggs, ostrich eggs, duck eggs, swan eggs and pheasant eggs all decked out in rhinestones, jewels and fancy trim. It's enough to dazzle the Easter bunny, put the goose who laid the golden egg to shame.

About 100 eggers from all over the U.S., and even from Central America, met earlier this week at Arlington Park Hilton for the annual Isobel Taylor Invitational Egg Show.

Once a year members meet to marvel over each other's private collections, exchange decorating ideas and, of course, occasionally trade eggs.

Though decorating eggs as a craft has become increasingly popular just in the last several years, it really dates back to the beginning of time, said Iva Britton of Waukegan, chairman of this year's show.

"EGGS WERE ONCE considered the source of life. Decorated ones were given as gifts to newly married couples to insure fertility. Or they were given to very good friends. Pagan ancestors used them in their rites to welcome in spring and then, of course, the Christians introduced eggs into their Easter celebration."

Yet much more time and effort go into the decorating of these eggs than what's usually put into a child's Easter basket. Truly, many of them are works of art and may be valued into the hundreds of dollars.

"Once you start you get hooked," said a 15-year veteran egger from Michigan who, like many others, started out by decorating eggs as Christmas ornaments for her tree. From chicken eggs she graduated to ostrich, rhea and goose eggs, painstakingly gluing on elaborate trims and often adding a miniature scene inside. Favorite themes are religious, weddings, nature and now the Bicentennial. Many of them even light up.

Unfortunately the Isobel Taylor show (named after a Galena resident who, though never an egger herself, supported many others in their endeavors) is not open to the public. For the ornamental display of dozens and dozens of hand-decorated eggs is an unusual exhibit indeed.

Yet the intent of the show is not to sell eggs or gain personal recognition.

"IT'S A SHOW OF friendship, a chance to visit and exchange ideas among ourselves," said Mrs. Britton. No judging is done. No awards are presented.

Many women turned to egging as a release from everyday housework. And though some have backgrounds in art which show up in handpainted eggs, scratched-carved eggs or some that have been specially decoupaged, most eggers were complete novices when they started, learning more by trial and error than anything else.

The only male member in attendance at the show, Harold Vickers of Darlington, Wis., became interested in decorating eggs 11 years ago. He often uses a very fine drill to cut out designs in many of his eggs.

Though there are mail order outlets available where one can order supplies, from the smallest egg, the hummingbird, to the largest, the ostrich, Vickers prefers buying directly from local farmers and hatcheries. And spring, the laying season, is the best time to stock up, he said.

The Isobel Taylor show was first organized five years ago by an egger from Three Rivers, Mich., who decided at the last minute to have a party and invite several eggers from her hometown to meet her egger friend from Tennessee. On the invitations she cordially invited all who knew other eggers to urge them to come, too. Altogether 68 eggers from 10 different states showed up.

TOO GOOD OF A thing to let die, they decided to meet annually. Next year the two-day convention is taking place in Atlanta, Ga.

Book tells how to ride almost everything . . . except a horse

by KAREN BLECHA
(A Review)

Do it yourself is an American motto, a way of life. Whether to make money, save money or outplumb the plumber, we have become possessed with the desire of "how to."

How to bake bread, build a houseboat or clean a sewer — countless books have been written on subjects like these. You can learn how to hook a rug, clip a poodle or improve your life in 10 easy lessons.

Now there's a new book for the do-it-yourself shelf. It won't save you money or make you money. But it will answer the basic question: "Hey, am I going to break my neck?"

THIS LATEST adventure in "how to" is called "How To Ride Just about Everything (except a horse)" and is billed as a guide to simple mastery of things that wheel and scoot, sail and fly, ride, slide and glide (Greatlakes Living Press, $4.95).

It is written byPaul DuPre, who at the age of six was swept over a 150-foot waterfall in a homemade raft. From then on, it's been up and down for DuPre on skis and hang gliders, in sailboat and dune buggies. DuPre says he doesn't have anything against horses, he just decided to stick to mechanical sports.

DuPre describes his book as "basic instruction with a light touch." It includes the basics of skiing, sailboating, ice and roller skating, skateboarding, surfing, windsurfing, cycling and snowmobiling.

YOU LEARN WORDS like luffing, blow back and thermal boosts, necessary in the sport of hang gliding. There are chapters on skimming the water in a hovercraft and types of motor homes and four-wheel drive vehicles on today's market.

With each sport, DuPre lists references including books, magazines, associations and schools for the sport as well as where to try out the sport and what equipment can cost. He also includes some history on each one.

Besides getting a basic idea of what you can do on a weekend, the book gives some practical tips. There are diagrams on how to build a soapbox racer and how to shift the gears and park an automobile. DuPre tells you how to size a bicycle, operate a motorcycle and select a motor home that gives good mileage. There is even a chart on wind-chill-factors so you know what to expect with a snowmobile.

"THE MOST INTERESTING chapter in the book is the one on hitchhiking, hitchen or "riding the thumb,' written by the author's son, Phillip A. DuPre. He says hitchen is "a good way to observe human nature, all kinds."

To hitchhike the right way, you've got to have the right attitude, Phillip writes. "You've got to put out good vibes," he says. "Hold the thumb close to your thigh and smile."

His tips for successful hitchen include being aware of the law since many states, including Illinois, do not permit hitchhiking; not hitching on trains and being able to psych out your driver.

Natalie Cole impressive in recent debut album

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

Natalie Cole's "Inseparable" (Capitol records) is an impressive debut album by the 25-year-old daughter of the late Nat King Cole.

Through a varied selection of 10 new songs, all written by producers Chuck Jackson and Marvin Yancy, Ms. Cole demonstrates the power and range of her strong, clear voice. She handles both ballads and shouting rockers equally well.

It is evident at this point in her career that the singer has been influenced by Aretha Franklin. There is the same gospel-based feel to her performance, and Ms. Cole has said she would like to do a gospel album someday.

ALL THE SONGS are short, 3½ minutes or under, and the arrangements are uniformly bright. The single from the album is "This Will Be" which is highlighted by horns. Other strong songs are the disco-oriented "Needing You," the funky ballad "Joey," the gospel-tinged, mid-tempo "I Can't Say No" and the pretty titled ballad.

Ms. Cole is a strong argument for talent being inherited as well as acquired. She should develop into one of our best contemporary singers.

Another woman who has proved she can shout with the best of them is Tina Turner, whose new album is "Acid Queen" (United Artists). Named after her role in the recent film version of "Tommy," the album has two distinct sounding sides.

On the first, she more than ably handles songs by the Rolling Stones, the Who and Led Zeppelin, with the title song, "Let's Spend the Night Together," and "Whole Lotta Love" as standouts. The second side features all original songs by husband Ike Turner and the music is more soulful, although the Sid Sharp Strings add a touch that will make it appeal to pop audiences as well. "Baby — Get It On" (sung with Ike) is my favorite.

Also new and of note are:

"STAMP ALBUM" by Climax Blues Band (Sire). This somewhat underrated group now has a long streak of fine albums and this may be the tightest, most compact yet. The band's bluesy rock style has expanded somewhat with the addition of a fifth member, Richard Jones on keyboards. "Using the Power" is its most commercial song to date. Also good are "The Devil Knows," "Running Out of Time" and "I Am Constant" (which also was on the band's 1973 "FM Live" album).

"Nomadness" by the Strawbs (A&M). Veteran British folk group (originally a bluegrass band) continues to expand into rock, while not abandoning its more folky elements. As always, David Cousins' lyrics are somewhat complex, particularly on the fine "Hanging In the Gallery." "The Golden Salamander" with its dulcimer and cascading background vocals also is fine. The better rockers are "To Be Free" and the very basic "Little Sleepy."

"WORLDS COLLIDE" by Hudson-Ford (A&M). This is the third album for the Strawbs' former rhythm section, Richard Hudson and John Ford. They are even more heavily into rock, so much so that the ballads are their weaker efforts. Still each of their albums has been very likeable and this one is no exception. There's heavy use of synthesizers, and the first two songs, "Did Worlds Collide?" and "Mechanics," deal with a Von Daniken-type visit by ancient astronauts.

"Ritchie Blackmore's Rainbow" (Polydor). Blackmore, former lead guitarist and founder of Deep Purple, has chosen members of the group Elf to form his new hard rock band. Unfortunately, I don't think the rest of the group is even close to Blackmore's playing ability and the album's strengths lie only with his guitar playing. Ronnie James Dio, in particular, is too one-dimensional (loud) as the singer.

The album is worth hearing just for Blackmore's licks, however, and there's a pretty good song in "Man on the Silver Mountain." The instrumental version of Yardbirds' "Still I'm Sad" also is good.

Newsman chronicles life of the war correspondent

by PHILIP KNIGHTLEY
Harcourt Brace Javanovich
$12.95

The book stall

"The first casualty when war comes is truth," Sen. Hiram Johnson, 1917.

"In the end, the Vietnam War was better reported than any other examined here. But that is not saying much," Philip Knightley, 1975.

These two statements somewhat painfully sum up, in my opinion, what happens when war and the news media come together.

Philip Knightley, an Australian who has never covered war himself, has put together a rich book on the history of that unique profession of war correspondent.

But the reader comes away with understanding that after toiling through the battlefield, fighting the censors and editors, the war writer's work did not add up to much.

KNIGHTLEY'S BOOK is filled with examples of individual correspondents battling on their own to try to get information to the public. But it is also filled with countless examples of how supposedly independent newsmen cowered in the face of government censorship or willingly lent their pens to help sell dozens of wars.

The author, who is a correspondent for the Sunday Times of London, also paints a portrait similiar to Tomothy Crouse in "Boys on the Bus." Whereas Crouse was writing about political reporters on the eampaign trail, both men show that journalists tend to run in packs and are sometimes satisfied with just putting out the same information their colleagues may have.

Pack journalism, in war or politics, makes it easier for the government to suppress what it does not want the public to know. Knightley, like Crouse before him, shows that while the government threw up some roadblocks, journalists generally accepted the role of lap dog.

THE BOOK chronicles the work of men and women throughout the past 125 years and Knightley suggests that war reporting has improved as lines of communication became more available. Knightley points to some of the more legendary war correspondents like William Russel in the Crimea, Ernie Pyle and Edward R. Murrow during WW-II and Peter Arnett, the Associated Press man who after spending a decade in Vietnam left when he said he could no longer write about killing but found himself inexplicably pulled back when Saigon fell.

Knightley does not condemn all war correspondents outright, however, the "was it worth" type question must be asked after reading of correspondents racing across continents to escape a censor only to learn that the government finally decided to release certain information and beat them into print.

This book will be a natural for journalists everywhere, partly because becoming a war correspondent is one of those goals writers tend to set for themselves while laboring in the bowels of journalism school.

BUT THIS COOK should also be examined widely by the general public because it helps to clean away a little of the mystery that sometimes clouds the news media and leads to criticism of the press.

Without the war correspondent, the public would probably not know a great deal about the various wars which have been fought. Their failings cannot be tolerated, but like the failings of the generals and the government, they might serve as useful lessons for the future, because the future will certainly contain more of those horrible social events called war. And there will be a need for men and women to write about it.

Impossible to leave without feeling full

It's easy to overeat and the temptation is particularly keen when dining out. But lest you want to return home feeling extremely uncomfortable, my warning to anyone trying the Copper Chimney Restaurant is to simply pace yourself. You may be sorry if you don't.

Not only are the portions generous but the price of the meal includes homemade soup, salad bar and, with the main course, choice of potato and corn on the cob.

I suggest foregoing the latter two items altogether. French fries or baked potato are always readily available and the mini ear of corn, out of season, will most likely turn off the true sweet corn connoisseur. I know it did me.

"I'VE YET TO come across corn on the cob in a restaurant that was satisfactory. It's truly an item that requires preparation in a home setting.

Featuring
Copper Chimney

Located at the intersection of Rand and Quentin roads, with actually a Barrington address, the Copper Chimney is new this year, having opened in February. But the owner is not new to the business. He also operates Little Heidelberg at 164 N. State, Chicago, a restaurant which for many years had specialized in German cuisine.

Though the Copper Chimney does not specialize in German food, it does feature on the menu smoked thuerinnger or bratwurst served with sauerkraut, $4.50, Schnitzel Ala Heidelberg, $5.50, and a nice selection of reasonably priced German wines.

We began our meal with a tureen of homemade lentil soup, the soup of the day, and though a cup would have been plentiful, I easily finished it all. Good homemade soup is hard to pass up.

THE SALAD BAR is next and, once again, it's easy to get carried away. In addition to a large bowl of crisp lettuce with all the accompaniments, there are usual items such as potato salad, three-bean salad, carrot salad and cottage cheese. It's all good but very predictable, except the macaroni salad made with a vinegar and oil base dressing instead of the usual, heavy mayonaise and that's worth seconds.

The salad bar can be a meal in itself $1.95. Soup a la carte is 60 cents.

Because it was framed and highlighted in the middle of the menu, I picked the combination of barbecued ribs and chicken, $7.95. The ample slab of ribs would have been enough, but I was also served a half chicken. The sauce was tangy but not overpowering and the ribs exceptionally lean. It was a wise choice.

MY PARTNER, tempted by the lobster tank she saw advertisd upon entering the restaurant, ordered the whole live Maine lobster broiled, $11.95 (market price). Prepared correctly, it was as good as any she'd eaten.

In addition to the regular menu that also includes sauteed whole red snapper, $6.95, and country-style broiled pork chops, $5.50, a nightly special is always added. That night it was roast chicken and dressing, $4.95. Our waitress told us the specials usually vary in price from $3.95 to $7.95 for prime rib featured Saturday and Sunday.

It's difficult to describe the decor of Copper Chimney other than to say it's cozy. A fireplace in one corner sets off the small dining room which is flanked on two sides by wide booths. A middle partition separates the dining room from the lounge area.

I was most impressed with the young waitresses who were most courteous and gracious. Reservations are recommended on weekends only. And when you decide to go, make sure you have a ferocious appetite.

—Genie Campbell

Actor returns home to do 'Cat'

Night out

by Genie Campbell

For actor JOHN REILLY, coming to Chicago to play Breck in ARLINGTON PARK THEATRE'S production of "CAT ON A HOT TIN ROOF" means returning home.

He was raised here, attended Mt. Carmel High School on the south side and worked here 10 years after college before deciding to move to New York. His family and three brothers all reside in Chicago and so do his two daughters.

But John won't have very much visiting time this trip. Since deciding just last Friday evening to take the major role being vacated by David Selby, who is leaving the show to join a new Broadway production, John has been dividing his time between memorizing lines and rehearsing the role of Breck and continuing to do his role of the last year and a half, that of Dr. Dan Stewart on "As the World Turns" (12:30 p.m., Channel 2).

Although knowing it was going to be extremely hectic, John accepted the role. It was worth all the plane hops and long hours.

"I like the role very much and wanted to work with Sandy (Sandy Dennis). Altogether it's an excellent cast. Let's just say it's a good opportunity to do a good role with good people. It's just a little tiring, that's all. But I get on and off planes very quickly.

Unlike most actors who plan a career in theater from day one, John had never even considered acting until five years ago. After attending college in Minnesota he worked in Chicago 10 years as an account executive before deciding to trade business for acting.

"I just decided to do it. I knew I could make a living at it." said John.

Getting his feet wet in community theater, he appeared in many Chicago professional productions, before moving to New York. He has since resided there except for a short time when he lived in California to do guest television spots and gain experience in films. He appeared in a bit part with Robert Redford in "The Great Waldo Pepper."

But during the last year and a half, he's been regularly appearing in "As the World Turns" and expects to continue for another year.

"It's the hardest work for an actor. The pressure is on from 7:30 a.m. when you first receive the script until 1:30 p.m. when the taping is made," he said. Originally, "As the World Turns" was done live.

"Soap operas are the last vestage of melodrama in our country on a day-to-day basis."

"It's amazing how many people do watch them," continued John, who added that many viewers are men who are currently unemployed and home during the day.

He labels them as "closet watchers."

"They don't like to admit to it because it means they're not working. People get tired of the game shows that just cater to man's greed. There's only so much you can take of that, particularly if you're unemployed."

The exposure, he admits, has been great though he's really in it "because that's what I like to do," which is why he decided to do "Cat" at Arlington Park Theatre. David Selby's engagement ends Sunday, and John Reilly steps in as Breck beginning Tuesday through Nov. 9.

COUNTRY CLUB COMEDY THEATRE will feature another world premiere this season, a four-character musical, "WHAT A SPOT!" co-written by Elk Grove playwright JACK SHARKEY and DAVE REISER, chairman of the music department at Palatine High School.

The production will open Dec. 10 in place of "EAT YOUR HEART OUT," which had been originally scheduled but is no longer available.

The current play, "WHO'S ON FIRST?", which was also written by Jack Sharkey, closes Sunday, "NORMAN, IS THAT YOU?" opens next Friday for a month's run. Featured is KENT MONKEN with ED SAUER, MARK FENSKE, DORIS SILVER and JANET PODOLSKY.

Lawry's The Prime Rib is not just another great restaurant. It's a show that starts the minute you sit down.

Your waitress arrives with a crisp salad on a bed of ice. As she dresses it, she spins it and tosses it while you watch.

Then the great, gleaming cart wheels up to your table. The Master Carver opens it up for you to see the magnificent prime ribs of Mid-western beef.

The slices are generous—thick or thin, rare or well-done, with bone or without. Then Lawry's famous spinach or buttered garden peas, baked Idaho or mashed potatoes, and Yorkshire pudding.

Prime ribs of beef is Lawry's only entree for dinner. Luncheon, from 11:30 to 2, offers a varied menu with other choices.

In all Chicago, you won't find a better evening. Certainly not one that will please your palate and your pocketbook so much.

Italian Indian chosen for film 'Winterhawk'

by VERNON SCOTT

Michael Dante is a proud and noble Italian who stars as a proud and noble Indian in "Winterhawk."

There are those who would cry foul, claiming an Indian should play an Indian.

But Dante, a hard-working actor whom stardom has eluded for a decade, only shrugs.

"I don't get angry at all the non-Italian actors who play Italians," he said. "There are hundreds of Italian actors, but who played 'The Godfather?"

"In more than a hundred roles I've portrayed an Italian only once. I guess that's because there are more ethnic-looking Italian actors than I. Ben Gazzara and Harry Guardino, for instance."

CERTAINLY, THERE are some Indians who are more ethnic in appearance than Dante. But few have had experience in leading roles.

The best known Indian in recent film history was "Cochise" — played by Burt Lancaster and the late Jeff Chandler in movies and Mike Ansara, a Lebanese, on television.

"Winterhawk" may be Dante's passport to stardom at long last.

The tall, handsome native of Stamford, Conn., is one of those rare actors who is neither a superstar nor starving to death.

HE WORKS regularly, usually a movie a year and several fat guest roles in television. He's never had a bad review.

"But if a great part comes along, Steve McQueen wants it," Dante said, "and that's that.

"I've always had to battle for recognition. I've done five independent films in the past few years without a studio behind them. That makes it difficult.

"So I've become something of a loner. I've even written five screenplays for myself out of frustration. The time for me is now. I'm not going to wait until I'm an old man."

DANTE SPENT five years as a professional baseball player, including a stint with the defunct Washington Senators — which gives one an idea of how Dante's luck has run.

Now, however, the future looks promising. Plans are afoot to film a sequel to "Winterhawk" which has been a huge box office success.

" 'Winterhawk' is a symbol of positive forces of the Indian," Dante said. "The Blackfeet Indians have made me an honorary tribe member.

"The most difficult thing I had to do was learn the Blackfeet language. An old Indian woman in Kalispell, Mont., taught me for hours on end. I learned to speak their language phonetically.

"INDIANS WHO have seen the picture tell me I speak it perfectly. They saw the film before it was released to make certain it didn't belittle them.

"We used 25 members of the Cree and Blackfeet tribes as warriors and a couple of hundred Indians of both tribes as extras."

"Winterhawk" has been released in various parts of the country. It is a great favorite wherever Indians have seen the film. Since its completion, Dante has visited the Rocky Boy and Blackfeet reservation in Montana where he has become something of a hero.

"I got the role on the strength of the old "Custer" television series in which I played Chief Crazy Horse," Dante explained.

"THE PRODUCERS were looking for an actor they thought could play an Indian convincingly. They settled for me.

"But what pleases me most is the reaction of the Indians who have seen the picture. They are proud of the way their tribes are depicted.

"And not a single one of them has objected to the fact that an Italian is playing one of their braves."

"I had one driver who for 180 miles told me over and over that he was a demolition expert for Twentieth Century Fox Studios and that my seat was wired with enough explosives to blow me to bits," he writes. "You meet a lot of weirdos."

DuPRE, WHO BUILT his own skateboard before the manufacturers did, admits that any of the sports in his book can be dangerous.

"But almost anything can be dangerous if you don't do it properly and try to exceed your limits," he says, adding that he left out how to fly a plane because he learned the wrong way — with a book, plane and a buddy who had done it before.

The author points out that even a cartload of books is not equal to one good instructor. He says his book is primarily to interest the person in the sport and give him an idea of what he has to go through to learn it. One problem with the book, however, is that it is written in a factual manner and doesn't make any of the sports sound particularly exhilarating.

DuPre has tried all the sports in the book but said he likes riding a motorcycle or a convertible in nice weather the best.

His book is full of advice and maybe the most wise of it is this: Whether you are 15 or 50, seize every opportunity for fun outdoors. Do it now. Don't wait.

Partners Wayne, Hepburn squandered in 'Cogburn'

by DAVID DUGAS

John Wayne and Katherine Hepburn are formidable assets for any movie marquee, but that investment is squandered in thier first joint effort. "Rooster Cogburn" (". . . and the Lady" was a last minute title amendment) is a trite and unconvincing western comedy, mildly diverting at best.

As Rooster Cogburn, the one-eyed U.S. marshal who fought his way to an Academy Award in "True Grit" six years ago, Wayne this time must keep a shipment of nitroglycerine out of the hands of no-good varmints led by Richard Jordan. He also wants to avenge the slaying of Hepburn's missionary father.

HEPBURN, AS THE Bible-quoting Eula Goodnight, helpfully tags along, fulfilling a plot function performed in "True Grit" by spunky young Kim Darby although the role now seems to have been written with Doris Day in mind.

"God help us!" Hepburn exclams in a moment of peril.

"If he does, I'll give up drinkin'!" Wayne drawls in an exchange typical of the limp script apparently written by producer Hal B. Wallis but credited to Martin Julien.

A lot of fellows are shot dead in the conventionally bloodless fashion of earlier Hollywood days. But the survivors prove bloodless too as they make their way through the pretty scenery of Oregon's Rogue River country.

SEVERAL OTHER actors, among them Anthony Zerbe, John McIntire and Strother Martin, appear in the picture. But "Rooster Cogburn" is tailored to the presence, if not the talents, of Wayne and Hepburn and subsidiary characters hardly matter, especially given Stuart Millar's uninspired direction.

"Rooster Cogburn" is a Universal picture, rated PG.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale E. Ankele

Bride, groom design church wedding banner

A wedding banner designed by the bride and groom decorated the church Sept. 27 for the wedding of Alicia Lynn Feaster and Dale Edward Ankele. Daughter of the Robert K. Feasters, Arlington Heights, Alicia and Dale, son of the Edward Ankeles, Barrington, were married in St. Paul United church of Christ, Barrington.

For the 1 p.m. service, during which the couple exchanged matching gold bands, Alicia wore her mother's wedding gown of hand loomed imported lace and her waist-length veil. Her flowers were orchids with dried baby's breath, wheat and pheasant feathers.

Alicia's sister, Vicki, was maid of honor wearing a floral print gown in brown, blue and cream. Her flowers were white mums, blue bachelor buttons and pheasant feathers. Bridesmaids were Ruth Barr, Hagerstown, Md., and Donna MacMurray, Arlington Heights, who wore print gowns in orange, brown and cream and carried white and orange mums with pheasant feathers.

SIX-YEAR-OLD Charity Teresi, Palatine, whose father, Frank, was one of the groomsmen, was flower girl. She was in a cream gown and carried her flowers in a basket. Ring bearer was the bride's 7-year-old brother, Richard.

Dale chose his brother, Don, as best man, and besides Teresi, the groom was also attended by Graham McNeill and Rich Flubacher, Palatine; Jon Rische, Barrington, and the bride's brother, Rob.

A reception for 130 guests was held in the church after which the couple spent a week honeymooning in Jamaica.

A '73 graduate of Rolling Meadows High, Alicia attended Northern Illinois University for two years as a textile major. Dale received a degree in journalism from Harper College and is now a sales representative for Anro Color Service, Chicago.

Nylon notable for picking up color

The homeline by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: My nylon lingerie is a mess. Some are dingy, and some of the white things have yellowed. Is there anything I can do to bring them back to their once-lovely white?—Gretchen Hankins

It depends on how long they've been stained. A stain allowed to stand for long often becomes part of the fabric. I suspect you've also been washing white nylons with other colors. Nylon is a notable scavenger as far as color is concerned. Anyway, try one of the popular fabric whiteners. These not only whiten dingy whites, but brighten colored garments. If this doesn't work, you'll have to move to a color remover.

Dear Dorothy: Here's a tip that may prove useful for those who haven't yet closed up their summer cottages. Last year, on leaving, we sprinkled powdered borax in the shower and around the edges of the bathroom floor. When we returned this last spring we found a mildew-free bathroom. We closed up shop a couple of weeks ago, and I did the same thing.—Nancy Bowen

Dear Dorothy: When I bake a pie crust, I prick it all over with a fork, but the crust still shrinks. What else might I do?—Joyce Valentine

Sounds as if you might be starting with not quite enough crust. You shouldn't have to stretch hard to cover the pan. I always watch a crust while it's baking; and if it looks like it's going to shrink, I pull it out and put a few more holes in the shell with a fork.

Dear Dorothy: I find that hair spray takes the ballpoint ink out of my husband's shirt pockets. I work it in just a little, then launder.—Claudia Zoll

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

400 guests greet bridal pair Sept. 13

Mr. and Mrs. Steven M. Swanson

Four hundred guests attended the wedding reception of a Sept. 13 bridal pair, Margaret Ann DiMatteo of Palatine and Steven M. Swanson of Crest Hill, Ill. The party at the Regency Hyatt House, Rosemont, followed their double ring ceremony in St. Giles Church, Oak Park.

The newlyweds then honeymooned at Dorado Beach, Puerto Rico, and are making their home in Crest Hill.

Margaret is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick DeMatteo Jr. Steven's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel R. Swanson of Galesburg.

The bride's sister, Katherine, was her maid of honor and two other sisters, Donna Owen, Oak Brook, and Mary Ellen Bond, Palatine, were bridesmaids along with Deb Svendsen, Hinsdale, the groom's sister, Pamela Schuetz of Mount Prospect and Elizabeth Hammond of Palatine.

SERVING THE groom as best man was his brother, Samuel Swanson III, Galesburg. Groomsmen included Robert Svendsen, Hinsdale; the bride's brother James DiMatteo; Michael Doyle, Mobile, Ala.; David Welch, Arlington, Va.; and Dirk Anderson, Arlington Heights.

The wedding guests were seated by Steven Lindley of Houston, Tex.; James B. Kite Jr., Oklahoma City; and William Kirkendall, Schaumburg.

Margaret graduated from Fremd High School, attended the University of Arizona and then graduated from Mundelein College, Chicago. Her husband attended Southern Methodist University and is employed at the Union National Bank in Joliet.

Drizzly weather forces garden wedding inside

Drizzly weather cancelled the garden wedding plans of Ann Youngren and Gary Larson, and just 45 minutes before the 11 a.m. appointed hour the service was switched to LeSueur Lutheran Church, LeSueur, Minn.

LeSueur is the home of Ann's parents, the Earl Youngrens. Gary's parents are the Ralph Larsons of Hoffman Estates.

Attending Ann for the double ring service was her college roommate, Nancy Thomas of Melville, Long Island, N.Y., and attending Gary was his brother Jeffrey. A reception for 150 guests was held at the Holiday House in St. Peter, Minn.

ANN AND GARY, who met at the University of Colorado, honeymooned at Gull Lake, Minn., and are now making their home in San Diego, Calif., where the bridegroom plans to work and the bride, a graduate of the university, plans to go on to para-legal school.

Next on the agenda

HOME ECONOMISTS

In an all day session Saturday in First United Methodist Church, Arlington Heights, Ruth Oblander, president of Sew/Fit Company, will describe her methods of pattern fitting and cutting to fit all figures. She will also demonstrate ready-to-wear professional techniques. Graduate home economists are invited. Information CL 3-1289.

THE SPARES

Attorney Albert E. Jenner Jr., former minority counsel for the House Judiciary Committee in its deliberations on impeaching former President Nixon, will speak Sunday evening to the Spares Sunday Evening Club. The meeting will be held at 7:30 in Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, Glenview.

Tight girdle contributes to her hiatal hernia problem

My mother is older than 75 and says she cannot stand it without a tight girdle that pushes her insides up against her chest cavity. This has been going on for several years. Now she is always complaining about her stomach hurting her, and her children have all tried to tell her that this could be causing her problem. What is the danger of this?

In your mother's age group she has a good chance of having a hiatal hernia, part of the stomach sliding through the hole in the diaphragm. This is often associated with leaking acid digestive juice into the lower esophagus (food tube) -where it connects to the stomach.

Tight girdles, belts or other tight garments squeeze the stomach and cause it to push through the enlarged hole and may contribute to reflux of acid digestive juice. This can cause burning and pain in the pit of the stomach.

You should not assume that is all that is wrong with your mother. To avoid missing something more serious I think she should have an examination. The presence or absence of a hiatal hernia could be established, and if she has some other cause for her stomach distress it could be diagnosed and treated.

I would like to add that tight belts and girdles can interfere with the normal movement up and down of the diaphragm. This can affect the functions of the lungs. There are many reasons to avoid an excessively tight constriction around the abdomen.

You wrote that a man with atrial fibrillation was given a pacemaker by his doctor. You didn't mention what kind of heart disease the man had. My husband has arteriosclerotic heart disease with atrial fibrillation. I asked his doctor if pacemakers were used to control atrial fibrillation and he just said, "no."

Does it depend upon the type of heart disease? Would you please clarify your comments?

You must have misunderstood something you have read. Atrial fibrillation is a fast beating of the upper chambers of the heart, usually about 500 per minute, so fast that they twitch rapidly and do not contract.

The lower pumping chambers beat at a normal rate but are irregular. Sometimes they beat too fast or too slow and medicines may be needed for that.

A defibrillator is sometimes used to return the heart to a normal rhythm. This is not done in all cases but is useful in selected cases. It depends on what is causing the fibrillation, and the length of time a person has had it and the patient's overall medical status. This is not the same thing as a pacemaker. It is an instrument to deliver a sudden electric shock to the heart and jolt it back to normal.

If there is a complete block between the upper and lower chambers of the heart so that the lower chambers beat very slowly then a pacemaker is needed in some cases. This can occur in some patients with atrial fibrillation. I assume that your husband's lower heart chambers are beating at an adequate rate and that this is not his problem. Hence your doctor didn't go into details about the need or lack of need for an electrical pacemaker for him.

The doctor says

The top is a rich oxford weave of 100% Dacron® polyester that's machine washable and dryable. Deep side vents and flap patch pockets accent shirt jacket styling for only $25.

The slacks are in coordinating plaids on heather-toned grounds for fall. Haggar's Comfort-Plus® styling with fashion pockets, and a gentlemen's flare complete a tasteful look for only $20.

Of course they're machine washable and dryable in 100% polyester doubleknit. So who says the cost of looking good is going up?
